BERLIN REPLY TO PROTEST EVASIVE; DEMANDS U. S. MAKE FURTHER INQUIRY

ALDERMAN TO ASK PROBE OF QUACK HOMES

Will Push Ordinance to Stop the Sale of Baby Killing Drugs.

HOSTETLER LOCKED UP

Aroused by the death of Anna Johnson and subsequent disclosures, city and county officials yesterday linked arms to sweep Chicago clear of abortionists and their death dealing practices. Ald. Carl T. Murray is preparing a resolution which he will introduce in the council on Tuesday demanding the suppression of the sale of drugs trafficked in by midwives and quacks.

He will also introduce a resolution calling for a council investigation of maternity homes and private hospitals referred to by those engaged in the hidden practice as "abortion parlors."

Coroner Peter M. Hoffman announced he would invoke the aid of civic organizations and women's clubs in driving the quacks from the county or sending them to prison. He obtained the promise of aid on the part of the police from Chief Healey to run down every available bit of evidence in every case brought to light.

Lock Up Hostetler.

And to make assurance doubly sure in the Johnson case the police swooped down on Marshall Hostetler, the victim's sweetheart, and locked him up on a charge of accessory to murder before the fact. This was done merely as a precautionary measure to hold him as a witness, it was said, and Hostetler, being unable to obtain bond, spent the night in jail.

Earlier in the day Dr. Eva Shaver, her son, Clarence W. Shaver, and Willis C. Harvey, said by some to be the woman's husband, were formally booked on murder charges and escorted to the county jail.

Tansy and Kindred Drugs.

Ald. Murray said he would use strenuous efforts to have an ordinance passed prohibiting the indiscriminate sale of pennyroyal, tansy, and the kindred drugs to which abortionists resort and on which they reap large profits in their nefarious profession of baby killing.

"It is an outrage," said Ald. Murray, "that such practices as these should be permitted in a civilized country and in a city as wideawake as Chicago is supposed to be. I know it obtains in nearly all cities, but Chicago must set them an example. This wholesale murder by midwives and unscrupulous doctors, or those who style themselves physicians, must stop, and now is the time to stop it. Lax laws and ordinances enable this class of persons to murder with impunity and immunity. I am going to seek to have an ordinance passed forbidding the sale of these 'pink pill' drugs and baby killing devices. I am also going to introduce a resolution asking that a council committee be appointed to investigate these socalled maternity homes and hidden private hospitals, which too often have proved murder traps for young mothers. Chicago is rid of the men's quacks. Now let us protect the women."

Coroner More Bitter.

Coroner Hoffman was even more bitter in his attack on the abortion parlors.

"Let's wipe out the private hospitals," the coroner said. "Let's provide a heavy punishment for the race suicide pill sellers and the abortionists' runners, as well as for the abortionists themselves.

"That is the only way we can change conditions unless some reform genius can eliminate from human nature the liability to err.

"In my tenure of office abortionists have been sent to the penitentiary for long terms. Thus it is well established that criminals of this class can and will be punished in Cook county.

"But that is not enough. We must regulate the private hospitals—secret havens such as Dr. Shaver conducted in her home. We must demand that they be licensed and under the control of the health and police authorities.

Club Women Aroused.

"Civic clubs, charitable and women's organizations, and other bodies are awake to the situation, thanks to the publicity which has been given to the Johnson case. It is high time such organizations should take steps to put the abortionists out of

Sixty Jailed by Flying Squadrons; Plan Daily Raids

Chief Healey's campaign to rid Chicago of crooks was given new impetus last night when seven squads of detectives, in charge of Lieut. James V. Larkin of the detective bureau, went into different parts of the city and took into custody sixty suspects. All were taken to the detective bureau, the Central, South Clark, and Chicago avenue stations.

Use Vagrancy Law.

"I ordered Lieut. Larkin and the thirty-six detectives who comprise the squads," said Capt. O'Brien, "to go out and arrest every well known criminal, thief, burglar, pickpocket, or holdup man they found who could not give a satisfactory explanation of his means of support. The vagrancy law will be used against them.

"Everybody else has had a fling at crime campaigns. Now it's my turn. Watch and wait for results. I'm following Chief Healey's policy.

Nightly Raids Scheduled.

"Every night from now on these squads will be sent out to every part of the city with orders to arrest all suspicious characters. I intend to drive the crooks from Chicago and I hope to do it within the next two or three months."

BATTLE GALE ALL NIGHT.

Two Chicagoans in 18 Foot Launch Twice Hurled Into Lake by Big Seas.

Muskegon, Mich., May 29.—[Special.]—Twice thrown into Lake Michigan, but later regaining their eighteen foot launch, disabled in the gale which swept the lake last night, William Johnson and J. H. Erickson of Chicago were picked up, their boat drifting helplessly, by the local coast guard crew today. Both men were exhausted. They were taking the launch from this port to White lake for the Fruitvale Transportation company. The two men had fought out the gale all night.

A MOTORCYCLE ELOPEMENT?

Mother of 17 Year Old Clerk Learns He Is in Wisconsin with Maid.

The police have been requested to search for Ruth O. Bannon, 17 year old Lake View High school student, and Joseph Nolan, a clerk employed by the Lincoln Park board. The couple disappeared on Thursday on Nolan's motorcycle, according to the girl's mother. Mrs. Nolan told the police her son had telephoned her from Racine, Wis., yesterday and said he and the girl were at her relatives' home. Mrs. Nolan said she fears they will marry. He is 17 years old and lives at 1706 Winnemac avenue. Miss Bannon lives at 1704 Winnemac.

Edison Willing to Help America in Event of War.

New York, May 29.—[Special.]—Thomas A. Edison says that he knows of still more cruel methods of warfare than even this war has disclosed. In a talk on science as applied to warfare he said:

"Of course, science can find much more effective ways of destroying life than by artillery and rifle fire, or the use of high explosive. The possibilities of chemistry and electricity have hardly yet been touched upon in modern warfare. They can do a lot better."

"How?" was asked.

"I don't want to say. I won't tell."

More Deadly Than Gas.

"Do you know of anything better? Could you invent something more deadly than the gas bombs?"

"Yes, I could; but I can't get myself to work on any such stuff as that. I don't want to destroy life; I want to make the world a better place to live in."

"Could electricity be used for destroying stores of ammunition and setting off high explosives at a distance by wireless?"

"Yes."

"Then why don't they do it?"

"That's their business, not mine."

Will Aid United States.

"Wouldn't you if your country was attacked?"

"Yes, if the United States gets into it and if my country is attacked, I shall help make it worse, certainly. But it is not essential that we should get into this war. For us to think of entering the war, of actual armed conflict with Germany — that is absurd, no matter what happens. We are not prepared to fight. The army we could raise would have no training. It would be just an undisciplined mob.

"If the worst came to worst, we could withdraw our ambassador and shut our consulates. But there are many ways in which we could make reprisals for injuries done to us other than by putting our untrained troops on the battlefields of Europe; and Germany can't get over here to attack us. At least it is in no condition to do that now, and will not be unless it wins this war."

ITALIANS RAID THE TRENTINO; NEAR TRIESTE

CROSS ISONZO RIVER.

(By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.)

ROME, May 29.—The Italian campaign is developing along three well defined lines in the shape of advances toward the Austrian cities of Trent and Trieste and in the province of Carinthia.

The Italian army on the western front is advancing on Trent from three directions, from the northwest, southwest, and south.

That portion from the south has taken the town of Storo and now is bombarding Riva. The portion to the northwest has pushed its way through Tonale pass, while the section from the southwest is supporting the double move on Trent.

Push On in Carinthia.

In the center, the Italian army continues its advance in Carinthia province meeting little resistance, while on the eastern front King Emmanuel's men are before Gradisca, which is about sixteen miles from Trieste.

In addition to the three land movements torpedo boats engaged two Austrian submarines that attempted to attack shipping at Venice, and sank one of the submersibles.

An Italian dirigible flew over Sebenico, Dalmatia, seventy-five miles southeast of Trieste, and bombarded a group of torpedo boats lying in the river.

Great Strategic Victory.

The most important strategic victory for Italy since the war began was won by the hardy Alpine troops in the Trentino.

They have seized the narrow road leading eastward from Storo and are fighting their way through the mountains to attack the Austrian fortified town of Riva, already under bombardment from the heights of Monte Baldo ridge.

The struggle now going on high in the Alps west of Lake Garda is without parallel in the history of the world. It is being fought along a rough road far above Ledro Ravine, that narrows at points to a mere bridle path, fringed by rocky precipices.

Details of the hot clash between Italian Alpinists and Tyrolese Jaegers that preceded the capture of Storo reached here tonight.

Big Fight at Condino.

Alpine troops, concentrated north of Brescia, began the rush northward into Trentino, occupied one Alpine village after another without encountering serious resistance until they reached Condino, north of Lake Idro. There the Austrian Jaegers made a brave stand, but fell back upon Storo.

Driven out of Storo, they barricaded the mountain road on the brink of the ravine of Ledrou. A bayonet charge was ordered.

The Italians dashed forward at a quick run in the face of a terrible fire. They vaulted the barricade and engaged the Jaegers in hand to hand combat.

The engagement lasted less than thirty minutes, according to reports. Then the Austrians broke and staggered back over the mountain path, dynamiting tunnels and wrecking fragile bridges in the path of the advancing army.

The fighting now going on around Riva and Serravalle, in the Adige valley, is preliminary to the decisive battle that must soon be fought for the strongly fortified Austrian town of Roveredo, thirteen miles southwest of Trent.

With Roveredo taken, the march on Trent will begin.

The crown prince of Saxony has arrived at Trent to coöperate with the Austrian commanders in the defense of the city.

Trieste in Hands of Mob.

Trieste is in the hands of a mob. Aided by gendarmes, frenzied throngs of Austrians are burning and sacking the property of all Italian citizens, and many Italians have been attacked and badly injured. The building housing the Italian paper Piccolo is in ruins.

The civil authorities are reported to have left Trieste, alarmed at reports of the advance of the Italian army. Italians and peaceable Austrians are fleeing, leav-

Dying Infants Suck Beets in Wasted Poland

Cities Leveled and Farms Ruined by Armies, Says Mme. Paderewski.

SEEK CASH AID HERE

Babies sucking a precious beet root wrapped in a rag to prevent the pangs of starvation. Men, who thought they had put aside enough money to keep them in luxury the rest of their lives eating bark and hay. Women dying with their children in makeshift huts because no food is to be had. Cities and villages, thousands of them, level with the ground. And the ground, which was rich and fertile, now covered with rocks and clay from the trenches of the Russian, German, and Austrian armies, and scarcely a living thing growing upon it.

Such is the picture drawn by Mme. Helene Paderewski of war ridden Poland. Mme. Paderewski came to Chicago yesterday with her husband, Ignace Paderewski, the great pianist, to push the work for relief in Poland. They are at the Congress hotel.

No Piano Since War Began

There is no piano in the rooms they have taken in the hotel. Mr. Paderewski has not touched a key since the armies of three countries began to swarm over Poland. He is spending his entire time raising funds for Polish relief.

Mme. Paderewski believes that a little playing might bring solace to his shattered nerves. He was ill yesterday and saw no one. His wife acted as his secretary, for he has given up most of the luxuries that he formerly considered necessary.

"We have not been in Poland since the war started," said Mme. Paderewski. "We were in Switzerland when war was declared. But we have seen so many who have come from Poland, and it is heartbreaking. Of all the cities and villages in Poland, only Warsaw and Cracow have been left as they were. Everything else is in ruins. Twenty millions of people are starving.

"Thousands of babies are dying because there is nothing to eat. There have been no cattle in Russian Poland since August, and the German army took every bit of grain and potatoes and beets.

"Dr. Ross of the Rockefeller Foundation, who went to Poland, said that the most pitiful thing to him was the hundreds of children who came to him in the streets, begging for bread.

"Our property in Galicia is totally ruined and the armies have been fighting on it since November. My husband doesn't care for his own loss. His thoughts are all of his people."

Money Most Needed.

Mme. Paderewski said that money is the easiest thing to get into Poland and will do the greatest good in the quickest manner. There are committees, organized under the work of Mr. Paderewski and Henryk Sienkiewicz, the author of "Quo Vadis," in Warsaw, Cracow, and Lemberg. The Poles of Chicago and vicinity sent 400,000 francs during the day. That makes 1,000,000 francs, or $200,000, in all from the Poles of Chicago, according to Mme. Paderewski. The work has been carried on by John F. Smulski.

Mr. Paderewski will speak this afternoon at the Polish National Manifestation at the Kosciusko statue in Humboldt park. There will be a parade of Polish societies, beginning at 2:15 o'clock.

WHICH WOMAN WAS ROBBED, MRS. STOUT OR MRS. STRONG?

Reporter Is First Told One Lost Diamonds and $125, and Then It Is Said Other Is the Victim.

Who was robbed of her diamond earrings and $125? Was it Mrs. Angeline Strong of 3963 Ellis avenue, or was it Mrs. Martha Stout of the same address? Police records indicate Mrs. Strong was robbed. A reporter called to see her last evening. Mrs. Strong denied she had been robbed. Mrs. Stout was the victim, said she, being despoiled of her valuables while with a Mrs. Haviland of St. Louis. Mrs. Stout, made ill by the loss, had taken to bed, so the reporter was told, and could not be seen.

Another reporter called at the Strong residence a little later and asked for Mrs. Strong. He was told she had been robbed and had taken to bed.

The first reporter was told that Mrs. Haviland and Mrs. Stout had been introduced by a Mrs. Anothony of 3166 Lake Park avenue. The Anothonys refused to discuss the case. They admitted Mrs. Haviland was staying at their house and that her husband had arrived from St. Louis because of some trouble.

NEW ISSUE OPENED BY DIPLOMATIC NOTE

Wilson Ready to Show Basis for Delay Does Not Exist.

BULLETIN.

Advices from New York at midnight were that the press associations and cable companies were uncertain as to when the text of the German reply would reach America. It is expected today. The Berlin papers, it is understood, will print it today. The official copy for the state department at Washington will be transcribed tomorrow or Tuesday.

(By the Associated Press.)

BERLIN, May 29.—The German reply to the American note sent after the sinking of the Lusitania, was signed by Herr von Jagow, the foreign minister, at 11 o'clock last night and delivered to Ambassador Gerard this forenoon for transmission to Washington.

The note expresses Germany's regret for injuries sustained by Americans as a result of submarine and aeroplane attacks, and offers compensation in cases in which Germany is found to be in the wrong.

The note defers a direct answer to the questions raised by President Wilson pending a further exchange of views. Germany desires to establish whether the Lusitania was a defenseless merchant ship or was being used for the transportation of war munitions and soldiers, on which unsuspecting passengers were permitted to take passage to safeguard the war materials.

REFERS TO FALABA AFFAIR.

The American representations regarding the torpedoing of the British steamer Falaba, in which an American citizen lost his life, are answered with the statement that it was intended to offer ample time for the passengers and crew to leave the ship.

The action of the captain in attempting to escape, however, necessitated summary action. Even then the commander of the submarine granted ten minutes for those on board to leave the vessel, and subsequently extended the time to twenty-three minutes before sinking the ship.

Germany expresses regrets for "the unintentional attacks" on the American steamer Cushing and the Gulflight. Germany disavows any intention to attack harmless neutral craft, and offers compensation wherever she is found to be in the wrong, and to refer doubtful cases to The Hague for a decision.

SEEKS LUSITANIA'S STATUS.

The passages in the American note concerning a possible disavowal by Germany of intent to sink the Lusitania and he discontinuance of its present practices of submarine warfare are not mentioned specifically in the reply.

The note states that, pending the reply of the American government to the German assumptions of fact regarding the real character of the Lusitania and its cargo, no attempt will be made to answer the demands contained in the American communication. These assumptions of fact are as follows:

The Lusitania was built as an auxiliary cruiser, subsidized, and carried on the navy lists as such. It carried, according to German information, two guns mounted and concealed below decks.

British steamers sailing from New York, according to information received in Berlin, repeatedly carried soldiers, artillery, war supplies, and contraband to England, the Lusitania on its last trip carrying 5,400 cases of ammunition, in addition to other war supplies and Canadian troops.

REFERS TO AMERICAN LAW.

Reference is made to the fact that carrying explosives on passenger steamers is contrary to American law. It is intimated that the German government would be glad to receive information as to how it happened that ammunition was

LEADING FEATURES OF GERMAN REPLY

According to the dispatches from Berlin, Germany's reply to the American note on the Lusitania will be a counter proposal, calling for further negotiations. The main features of the reply are:

A proposal that the two governments first agree on a statement of fact regarding the character of the Lusitania when it was attacked by a German submarine, before proceeding with the general question of Germany's submarine policy.

A complete disavowal of the attacks upon the American steamers Gulflight and Cushing and a promise to compensate their owners.

Expressions of regret at the loss of American lives in the Lusitania disaster and of the death of an American aboard the liner Falaba.

The suggestion that if further negotiations find the two governments not in accord, the questions then in controversy be referred to a court of arbitration.

GATHER FACTS TO CONTROVERT CLAIMS SET FORTH BY BERLIN

Information gathered by the American government has been prepared to controvert the claims put forward in the German reply.

Investigations conducted by Collector of the Port Malone at New York showed the Lusitania carried no guns, mounted or unmounted, and that it therefore could not be classed as an auxiliary cruiser.

The American government also is prepared to show that the Lusitania carried no ammunition of the sort forbidden by the federal laws.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador, has prepared assurances that the Lusitania was not armed and also that it was not classed in British naval journals as an auxiliary cruiser.

permitted to be shipped on the Lusitania, a vessel crowded with passengers.

Strong phrases are used regarding what is considered as apparently the deliberate policy of British shipping companies to protect war shipments by embarking American passengers on the same ships.

Germany contends it is impossible to settle the question whether proper opportunity was given to place the passengers and crew in safety until it is determined whether the regulations adopted after the sinking of the Titanic, regarding a proper supply of boats and watertight bulkheads, which are a part of the American law, were observed in the case of the Lusitania.

ASKS PRESSURE ON BRITAIN.

Finally, the American mediatory proposals designed to end submarine warfare and the throttling of food supplies and other conditional contraband for Germany are recalled. The government expresses the desire to know what steps, if any, have been taken to induce Great Britain to embark on negotiations to this end, after Germany indicated willingness to discuss a settlement on this general basis.

The delivery of the note to Ambassador Gerard was not attended with any special ceremony. A functionary of the foreign office carried it across the square to the American embassy, where it was placed in the hands of the American ambassador.

The embassy staff immediately began coding the message and transmitting it to Washington. Mr. Gerard, in the meantime, called at the foreign office.

U. S. TO OFFSET CLAIMS.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—The United States government is prepared to controvert every one of the points mentioned in the summary of the German position as published here.

Evidence was gathered by the Washington government prior to the sending of the note of May 13 to prove that the Lusitania carried no guns, either mounted or unmounted; that it carried no explosives within the meaning of American statutes, and that no British vessels have cleared from American ports for several months carrying guns of any character.

The United States holds that the carrying of arms or ammunition or other contraband or a few unarmed individuals who might be prospective soldiers does not destroy the right under international law and humanity of the belligerent merchantman to be visited and searched before being destroyed and the neutral or noncombatant passengers transferred to a place of safety.

NOT AN AUXILIARY CRUISER.

The claim of Germany that the Lusitania was built as an auxiliary cruiser and was carried on the British navy lists as such is met with the statement that the British government had never published the Lusitania on its navy list and that such action was necessary before it could be considered as an auxiliary cruiser.

Also, the Lusitania carried no guns, either mounted or dismounted, according to the investigation by Collector Malone at New York before the vessel sailed. There has been a distinct understanding between the United States and Great Britain, it was stated, that none of the merchantmen sailing from the United States would be armed.

The fact that a merchantman subsequently might become an auxiliary cruiser is recognized as a possibility, but the United States has always understood the British position to be that such a change could not be accomplished during a voyage and only in a home port.

The British ambassador here is preparing assurances that these are the facts.

LAW IS NOT VIOLATED.

The carrying of arms and ammunition is not contrary to American law, as the German reports claim, federal statutes being directed against the transportation of self-exploding material, from which class official rulings of many years excluded fixed ammunition.

Germany's contention that it is impossible to settle the question of whether proper opportunity was given the passengers to escape until it is determined whether the Lusitania was equipped with the life boats and appurtenances provided for in regulations adopted after the Titanic sank, was looked upon in official quarters as irrelevant because it was pointed out the torpedoing of the Lusitania without a moment's warning made it impossible to launch such life boats as the ship did carry.

The absence in the forthcoming note of any promises to safeguard American lives on unarmed merchantmen of any nationality and the failure to disavow intention to destroy American lives on the Lusitania produced a feeling of distinct disappointment in many quarters.

HINTS OF FURTHER PERILS.

That Germany has no intention of abandoning attacks on hostile merchant ships is shown in the following warning, sent to Washington by Ambassador Gerard:

> The American ambassador at Berlin has been informed by the German foreign office that, in view of the fact that during the last few weeks it has repeatedly occurred that neutral ships have been sunk in the waters designated as an area of maritime war by the German admiralty on Feb. 4, 1915, and especially in one case where it was established that the sinking was traceable to an attack by a German submarine which took the neutral ship for an English vessel in the darkness, on account of the inadequate illumination of its neutral distinctive markings, it recommended that American shipping circles again be warned against traversing the area of maritime war incautiously and also be urged to make the neutral markings as plain as possible, and especially to have them illuminated promptly and sufficiently at night.

Divided on U. S. Attitude.

Speculation on the attitude which the United States should assume toward a temporizing reply already is rife in Washington. Some administration officials contend that the United States cannot afford to accept any reply from Germany except the assurances demanded and that in the absence of such an answer Washington ought to sever diplomatic relations with Berlin without delay.

By these officials it is asserted that the facts are sufficiently established and that none of the considerations suggested by Germany could excuse the sinking of the Lusitania without warning and without ample provision for the safety of the noncombatants aboard.

There are some administration officials, however, who favor acceptance of the German suggestion to discuss the circumstances further before taking up the American demands. Secretary of State Bryan and some of his colleagues are committed to the principle of investigation of any dispute, including one of national honor or vital interest, as provided by the Bryan peace treaties.

Germany is only suggesting informally in regard to this controversy what Mr. Bryan suggested formally when he asked Berlin to sign one of his peace treaties.

ATTACHE MAKES REPORT TO PAGE ON NEBRASKAN

Findings Indicate That American Ship Was Struck by a Torpedo and Not Mine.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—The state department this afternoon received from Ambassador Page, London, a preliminary report on the Nebraskan case. It was based on an examination of the ship by Lieut. Towers, naval attaché of the London embassy.

Lieut. Tower's report brings out the facts as follows:

That the Nebraskan had left Liverpool, bound for the Delaware breakwater, on the afternoon of May 24, and was in water ballast. The words "Nebraskan of New York" were painted on each side amidships in letters six feet high.

The vessel flew the American flag continuously up to approximately 8:10, May 25, at which time the ship was about forty miles southwest of Fastnet.

The flag was then hauled down because the sun had set and the ship was considered at sea.

Engineer Saw Torpedo.

The chief engineer of the ship at 8:24 p. m. observed a white streak in the water perpendicular to the ship on the starboard side, and a severe shock was almost instantly felt, followed by a violent explosion abreast hold No. 1. The air was filled with oil and débris, the double bottom compartments below hold No. 1 having been used for tanks for fuel oil. Bottom plating and pieces of side were blown up through the decks. The ship immediately settled by the head and officers and crew took to the boats.

After remaining off the ship for about one hour they returned and headed the ship for Liverpool. Under orders of the British admiralty a British naval trawler came up at midnight and remained with the Nebraskan until it reached the mouth of the Mersey. No one seriously injured.

Examine Wound to Ship.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LIVERPOOL, May 29.—The hull of the Nebraskan, which is in dry dock on the Mersey, was inspected today by British and American naval officers. The general opinion is that the damage was done by a torpedo rather than a mine.

As the hull of the Nebraskan appeared out of the water today it was seen there was a big gash forward on the starboard side and below the water line, which had carried away the bottom of the ship at that point. The plates around the hole were buckled inward.

SERBIANS AND THE U. S. FLAG

John R. Palandech Points Out Unintentional Omission from McCutcheon Cartoon.

Chicago, May 29.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Mr. McCutcheon's cartoon in this morning's TRIBUNE certainly most effectively illustrates why we should be neutral in the war. While the cartoon is as all of Mr. McCutcheon's cartoons, of a great value to the world, the omission, unintentionally, I hope, of the Serbian star in the represented American flag is a great injustice to the Serbian race, the race whose courage, bravery, and willingness to sacrifice themselves for freedom, civilization, and humanity has won for them the admiration of the world.

The elimination of the Serbian race from the cartoon is not fair to the two millions of Serbian speaking people in the United States, whose sympathies and prayers are with the Serbian race.

The race that has given America so many good citizens, among whom are the great Tesla and Pupin, who are the acknowledged leaders among the greatest scientists of the age, and the race that has accomplished the most gallant and heroic feat in the present war and has undergone more suffering than any nation in the war, certainly is entitled to a place in the flag of America, represented by Mr. McCutcheon's cartoon.

American Craft Sails with Every Cabin Filled—Maggie Teyte Aboard.

New York, May 29.—[Special.]—With every cabin filled and 265 in the steerage, 100 of her passengers being Americans, the American liner New York sailed today for Liverpool.

Among the pasesngers was Maggie Teyte, the opera singer, who has been on a concert tour to the coast since last November.

Members of the company of Sir Johnstone Forbes Robertson, who have been in this country thirty-seven weeks, were also on board, and Charles P. C. Beresford, brother of Lord Beresford, was another. He has been in this country seeking engineers to work in South African mines.

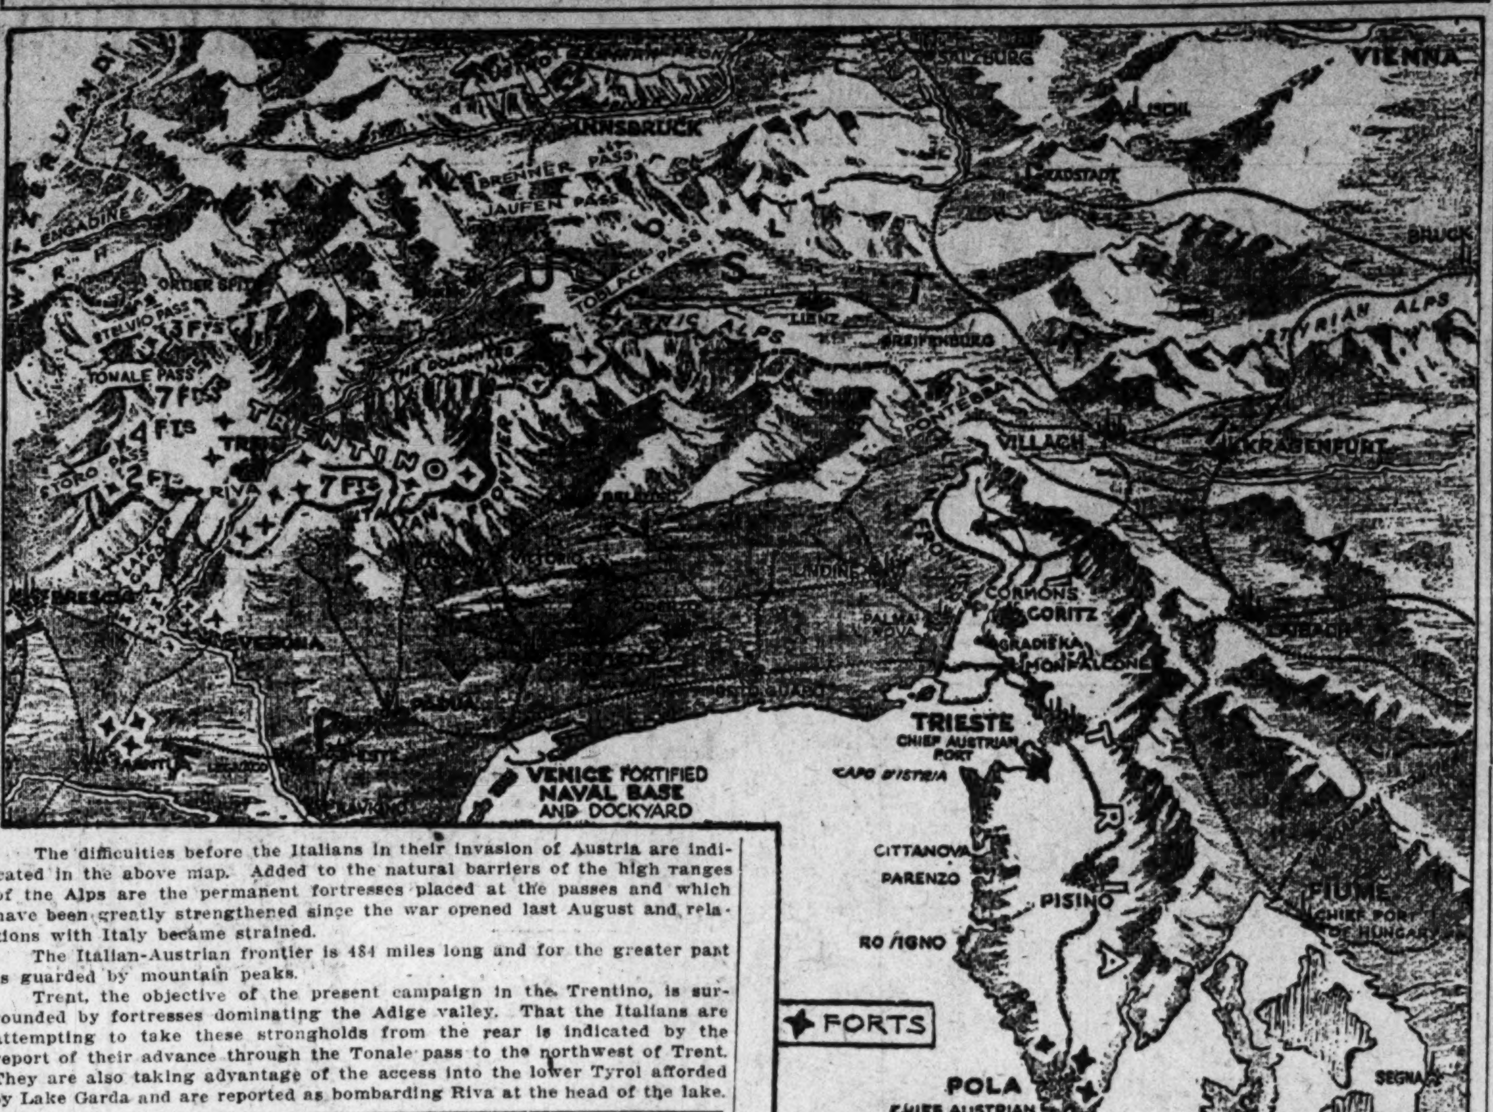
Passes Into Austrian Tyrol Guarded by Modern Forts.



The difficulties before the Italians in their invasion of Austria are indicated in the above map. Added to the natural barriers of the high ranges of the Alps are the permanent fortresses placed at the passes and which have been greatly strengthened since the war opened last August and relations with Italy became strained.

The Italian-Austrian frontier is 484 miles long and for the greater part is guarded by mountain peaks.

Trent, the objective of the present campaign in the Trentino, is surrounded by fortresses dominating the Adige valley. That the Italians are attempting to take these strongholds from the rear is indicated by the report of their advance through the Tonale pass to the northwest of Trent. They are also taking advantage of the access into the lower Tyrol afforded by Lake Garda and are reported as bombarding Riva at the head of the lake.

ing the city in the hands of the worst elements.

Refugees arriving at Udine say it is impossible to predict the fate of the city unless Italian troops arrive within a few days. There are scarcely any Austrian soldiers in the city.

Crossing Isonzo River.

A strong Italian army is engaged in crossing the Isonzo river. When this has been accomplished, it is expected that the hard struggle will begin.

On the right bank of this river, Austria lacked a solid fortified base, while on the opposite side, near Goretz, there is a series of mountains, the highest of which is Monte Santo, joining to the southeast the Corso chain.

A high rocky plateau dominates Trieste by land. On the Corso the Austrians have the intrenched camps of Sessana and Divaca, which command the whole sea coast on both sides of Trieste

Italian Dirigible in Raid.

The dirigible M-2, which flew over the Adriatic and attacked enemy destroyers off Sebenico, was violently bombarded by Austrian aircraft guns, but returned safely to its base.

An Austrian hydroplane has been captured off the Italian coast and its crew taken prisoners, it was officially announced today.

An Austrian aeroplane early today crossed the Adriatic and attempted to bombard the Italian seaport of Brindisi. Two Italian aviators gave chase and engaged the Austrian in a revolver duel above the water. The Austrian fled toward Cattaro, his aeroplane apparently having been hit.

Italian War Report.

The official communication from the war office says:

"Along the Tyrol-Trentino frontier a violent artillery duel is proceeding in the uplands around Tonale Pass and Asiago. The enemy is replying vigorously.

"Austrian forts at Luserna, Bosa, and Spitzverlo have been heavily damaged. On May 27 Italian infantry entered Ala, carrying three lines of Austrian trenches at the bayonet.

"Along the Carnian frontier our artillery is bombarding Monte Croce and Malborghetto.

"On the Friulian frontier on the nights of May 27 and 28 Italian dirigibles bombarded the enemy's frontier successfully, despite heavy fire, and attacked and brought down an Austrian aeroplane."

Trent Civilians Ousted.

GENEVA, May 29.—The civil population, including both Austrians and Italians, have been ordered to evacuate the Austrian city of Trent. Only those who are well known to the authorities and who have a sufficient supply of provisions to maintain themselves for a long period have been permitted to remain.

All the reserves in the Tyrol and in Carinthia between the ages of 43 and 55 have been mobilized. Youths of 17 years also are being accepted for military service.

Imprison 300 at Milan.

MILAN, May 29.—Three hundred persons have been placed under arrest since martial law was proclaimed here.

Germans Flee from Italy.

CHIASSO, Switzerland, May 29.—Italian authorities at Como and several other points along the Swiss border have begun seizing Germans fleeing out of Italy.

For several days there has been a great exodus of Germans from Italy. The border officials say Germany is delaying an actual declaration of war to allow its nationals time to get beyond the Italian frontier.

Air Raid on Venice.

VIENNA, via London, May 29.—In an air raid on Venice last night by several Austrian naval airmen a large number of bombs were dropped, causing several extensive fires in and near an arsenal. Another bomb caused an explosion in Port Nicolo. News of the raid is given in an official statement issued tonight by the war office.

BALKAN NATIONS IN PARLEY.

Turkey Reported to Have Offered to Cede City of Adrianople to Bulgaria.

LONDON, May 29.—A Bucharest dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company says important negotiations are in progress between Roumania and Bulgaria. The Bulgarian minister to Roumania, the dispatch adds, left yesterday for Sofia. Turkey, according to a report current, has offered to cede Adrianople to Bulgaria.

MERCY ON TOLSTOI'S SON.

Austrians Will Not Punish Him for Attempt to Escape from Prison Camp.

BERLIN, May 29.—Because of the respect in which his father was held Coun Tolstoi, son of the famous Russian novelist, will not be punished by the Austrian authorities for his recent attempt to escape from a prison camp at Reichenberg. The count, who is a colonel in the Russian army, was captured in the battle of Limanova.

CRIES FOR JOY AT PEACE SONGS

Founder of Apollo Club Praises School Children for Anti-War Effort.

While the voices of 300 school children in Fullerton hall filled the Art institute yesterday morning with the music of peace songs William L. Tomlins, founder of the Apollo Musical club, on the platform, put his handkerchief to his eyes and cried. He said he cried for joy.

"That you little children should come downtown in the rain of your own accord and here send these notes of song out into the world, putting your souls into their musical message, makes me cry with pure joy," he said.

"Sounds Never Die."

"You know, children, that sounds never die; they go on and on, and even when we no longer hear them they still are traveling on the waves of the air around the world. And you know these songs of peace you have put your souls into are traveling on into eternity and I believe the angels are joining in with you.

"'Peace on Earth!'—sing it out again. You remember the heralds of old—how they sounded their trumpet calls? You are little heralds of today; you are calling out to the world: 'Peace on Earth'—sing it."

Sing Hibbard's Songs.

The director of the Apollo Musical club put his handkerchief in his pocket and turned to the piano. He played the accompaniment as the children sang the song of Angus S. Hibbard, which he had dedicated to the Apollo Musical club, which originated the plan for the choral pilgrimage of peace now being conducted by the National Choral Peace Jubilee committee.

Besides the 300 school children were more than 100 teachers. Mr. Tomlins directed the singing of ten peace hymns which have been published and are being distributed throughout the country by the committee, of which Mayor Thompson is honorary chairman.

REPORT POPE MAY DEPART CAUSES ALARM IN ROME.

People Fear That Absence of Pontiff May Remove Obstacle to Aerial Attacks.

ROME, May 29.—Reports that Pope Benedict intended to quit Rome for the period of the war, though scoffed at in Vatican circles, aroused some misgivings here.

It was feared that with the pope absent the Eternal City would lose its last claim to consideration at the hands of the Austro-Germans. Horrified at the stories of German spoliation of Louvain, Italians believed that the kaiser would not hesitate to send Zeppelins to attack historic buildings if his holiness departed.

LONDON, May 29.—The Serbian government has created Sir Thomas Lipton a grand commander of Saint Sava, which is the highest honor the government may confer upon a foreigner.

TEUTONS ADMIT LOSS AT ABLAIN

Berlin Statement Says Position in the Town Has Been Evacuated.

AIRMEN MAKE RAIDS.

LONDON, May 29.—Except for their admission of the evacuation of Ablain, which they say was carried out without the knowledge of the French, the Germans claim to have repulsed all attacks along the western line. As the same claim is made by the French, who also state that they have made further progress, the situation does not seem to be much changed.

It is not expected that the French will make any marked advance at one time, for they are attacking strongly fortified positions which have to be taken one by one in the face of innumerable and cleverly concealed machine guns.

Air Raids by Germans.

BERLIN, May 29.—German aviators have bombarded the French seaport of Gravelines, twelve miles northeast of Calais; the city of St. Omer, twenty-two miles southeast of Calais, and the French aviation camp at Figmes, seventeen miles northwest of Reims, the war office announced this afternoon.

ANTI-GERMAN RIOTING STARTS IN CHILEAN CITY.

Mobs Attack Teutons, Break Shop Windows, and Injure Police Official in Santiago Outbreak.

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 29.—Anti-German riots broke out here today. A mob broke the windows of a German shop and attacked several Germans. A prefect of police who attempted to put down the rioting was injured.

Minor anti-German demonstrations have been of nightly occurrence this week, but today's attack was the first of a serious nature.

The hostility to Germans arises partly from reports that Germany has ignored Chile's last note of protest, regarding alleged violations of Chilean neutrality, and to rumors of a possible severing of diplomatic relations.

REPORTS ON TRIUMPH DEAD.

Casualty List Issued in Regard to Disaster to Warship in the Dardanelles.

LONDON, May 29.—The casualty list of the British battleship Triumph, torpedoed off the Gallipoli peninsula, which was issued tonight, shows that three officers and eleven men were killed and that 420 men are missing.

TURKISH LOSSES ARE GREAT.

ATHENS, May 29.—Turkish losses in the Dardanelles fighting to date total more than 60,000, according to private advices reaching here from Constantinople.

TEUTON ALLIES PRESSING CLOSE UPON PRZEMYSL

Desperate Efforts Being Made to Encircle Fort Which Was Taken by Russians.

LONDON, May 29.—The battle for the fortress of Przemysl, in middle Galicia, remains the outstanding feature of the war.

The Germans and Austrians, with an enormous weight of artillery, continue to fight desperately in an effort to encircle the fortress, which is reported to be under bombardment.

Army Along San Checked.

Their armies on the San, to the north of Przemysl, have, however, apparently received a check. The Russians, after driving them back across the San in the neighborhood of Sieniawa, have turned their attention to the forces which crossed the river to the north and south of Jaroslau and have been delivering furious attacks. All of these the Austrians and Germans claim to have repulsed.

To the southeast of Przemysl the Teutonic allies are meeting with more success, but their progress is not so rapid as it was a few days ago, and the communications to Lemburg, which were reported to have been severed, are still intact.

Gain in Baltic Provinces.

At the other end of the line in the Baltic provinces heavy fighting also is in progress, with the fortunes ebbing and flowing, neither side beinig able to make any important advance.

These operations, which were originally lassed as a raid by the Russian military critics, are being more seriously considered and larger forces are being sent to meet the German invaders.

One wreath was presented by the city of Paris and the other by the artists of France.

W. G. Sharp, the American ambassador, was given an album of original drawings by French artists.

President Poincare and all the members of the French cabinet attended the ceremonies. There were cheers for the United States, for President Wilson, and for Secretary Bryan in the course of addresses in which the American republic and its stand were highly commended.

JUDGE REFUSES WRIT TO ENJOIN SHELL MAKING

Pearson Complaint Against the Chalmers Plant Held Political, Not Legal.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 29.—Judge Turner of the state Circuit court today dismissed the action of Gen. Samuel Pearson in which he sought to restrain the Allis-Chalmers company, Otto H. Falk, and others from manufacturing shrapnel shells which, it is alleged, were being supplied to the allies.

The court concludes that in view of the well settled principles of international law it must be apparent that the relief sought by the plaintiff is political rather than legal, and that to grant such relief would be for the court to entertain jurisdiction upon a matter exclusively within the political and executive branch of the federal government.

Can't Prove War Would End.

The allegation that the war would cease if the shipment of shrapnel shell is stopped is only an expression of opinion, not susceptible of proof, and cannot be made the basis of judicial action, according to the court.

The allegations of this affidavit fall far short of showing such casual connection between the injury complained of and the damages apprehended by the plaintiff, says Judge Turner.

Reference is made to the treaties, and the rules of international law, which the court states must be recognized by the courts of this country as defining and limiting the rights of all neutrals in their relations with any of the belligerents.

Louisiana Suit Cited.

Express reference is made to a suit brought in Louisiana during the Boer war in which Gen. Pearson, then a citizen of the Orange Free State, sought to enjoin the shipping of horses to be used in the conflict then pending between Great Britain and the South African republic and Orange Free State. In that action the plaintiff lost on the same grounds Judge Turner cites.

Continuing, the court says:

"The plaintiff, a United States citizen, maintains that he is owner of securities of the German empire; that if the war continues his securities will diminish in value and that the furnishing of shrapnel to the countries at war with Germany will cause prolongation of the war. In such a case as the present one, where the aid of equity is invoked to protect property rights, the injury apprehended must be a clear and reasonable one, proximately resulting from the act sought to be enjoined. The injury apprehended seems to be entirely speculative."

Points to Treaties.

Judge Turner cites the treaty concluded between the United States and Prussia in 1785 and in 1799, in which the subjects of Prussia and the United States are permitted free intercourse in the sale of contraband.

The proclamation of President Wilson last fall is referred to and reference made to that portion which recognized the right of any American citizen to ship contraband at his own risk.

GERMAN MASONIC ORDER CUTS FRANCE AND ITALY.

Grand Lodge Severs Relations with Other Bodies Because of Pro-War Action at Rome.

BERLIN, May 29.—The German grand lodge of Free Masons today adopted the following declaration:

"In view of the attitude of the Italian Free Masons, who, inspired by French sympathizers, took part in the political struggle leading to the war, and thereby violated the cardinal principle of Free Masonry expressly forbidding such methods, the German grand lodge hereby severs all former relations with Italian and French Free Masonry.

"Toward Free Masons in other hostile lands the grand lodge reaffirms the decision adopted at an earlier date that all relations of various grand lodges be suspended from the outbreak of hostilities."

DARES DEATH TO SAVE BOY.

Thomas Watson, West Park Chauffeur, Drives Into Team on Chicago Avenue.

Thomas Watson, chauffeur for the board of West park commissioners, was driving west in Chicago avenue yesterday with Jack Palmer, Lyman Atwell, and Eddie Johnson, three newspaper photographers. Near Noble street the pavement has been ripped up so vehicles are compelled to use the car tracks. At Noble street a boy darted in front of Watson's machine. A wagon was approaching on the other track.

"I'm not going to hit that boy," Watson shouted to his companions. "Hold tight. I'm going to take the wagon."

The machine crashed into the team almost head on. The shafts pierced the side of the car and pinioned Watson in his seat, but did not seriously injure him.

PARIS PUTS LID ON WAR SEERS

Police Prohibit Clairvoyants Giving "Messages" from the Front.

BY CAROLYN WILSON.

[Copyright: 1915: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, May 14.—The happy days of fortune telling is over. Mediums, clairvoyants, astrologers, readers of palms and cards will have to make their living some other way.

For the Paris police found that too many women were spending their hardly-come-by pittances in fortune telling parlors. Naturally the poorer the person the greater the superstition, so that now the ban has gone forth and only last week sixty-nine of these professors of occult knowledge were brought before the magistrates.

Poor things—one felt sorry for them.

"What harm does it do?" they asked. "Wel always tell encouraging things. W always prophesy letters and good news. It keeps people cheered up and happy."

So many of them said their only sons, their husbands, were at the front. All source of revenue was cut off and they had to do something. But the magistrate was obdurate and said the profession was entirely out of keeping with the seriousness of the times and that a recurrence of the offense would mean imprisonment.

Give No Definite Dates.

Some of them continue to prophesy, but adhere strictly to the letter of the law in not giving any definite date. Mlle. Rayzis one of the best known of them here, was telling the fortune of a young actress.

"You will receive a letter soon—I can't tell you exactly when, the police have forbidden me to."

And for this little phrase she asked $2.

In these police courts you see so many pathetic cases. There are many which are due solely to the war, new professions, new crimes which have sprung up only on account of the war.

For instance, there are men with one leg who get a uniform and go around soliciting alms under the pretense that they lost the leg in the war. And what scores of men and women who are up for theft and who always (there is never any variation in the argument) have this to say:

"Your honor, I have a son—a brother—or perhaps a husband at the front. I know what he is suffering off there in the trenches and I couldn't resist the wish to send him something. Alas, I had no money and that is why I committed this unpardonable act. But my love was stronger than my conscience."

Excuse for Short Weight.

Having heard this about twenty times in one morning, the judge was a little weary of it. And when a woman came up who was accused of having given short weight in butter—only half of what she was being paid for, in fact, he said:

"Well, you, at any rate, can't make use of the argument that you were sending something to the trenches."

"It comes to the same thing," she said, calmly. "I have a friend in the trenches and the morning this thing happened I got word that he was seriously wounded. I simply lost my head and didn't know what I was doing, that was why I didn't notice how much butter I was selling."

"I notice it was never to your disadvantage," said the judge, dryly.

There has been every sort of a charitable society formed here in Paris since the war, from those that concern themselves with the physical welfare of the soldiers to those of the moral and religious. More new organizations have sprung up than could possibly be counted. There were godmothers for orphans and godmothers for lonely soldiers.

But it remained for the Fantasio to launch the latest and evidently the most popular. This new and novel organization is called the "Society for the Flirt at the Front," and came into being through the letter of two sergeants to Fantasio in which they begged that paper to do something to provide them with a little of the tender sentiment of life. They were so wearied with the continual masculinity of the trenches that they thought if some kind and thoughtful young ladies of Paris would only write them tender epistles they would feel cheered to make the offensive against the Germans.

Consequently Fantasio has undertaken the work in all seriousness, forwarding such letters as are addressed to its care by modest maidens who do not wish to sign their real names and acting in return as a distributing postoffice for the effusions which come back from the soldiers. A mild, innocuous form of diversion, surely, with just enough excitement on both sides to make it entertaining.

New Aeroplane Muffler.

I understand there has been a new kind of muffler invented for use on the French aeroplanes which so successfully muffles the sound of the engines that the machine can volplane to within a very short distance of the enemy's lines without being heard and consequently at night without being detected. With the French motors hey can shut off the engine entirely, so the pilots say, but this can only be done with an engine that turns over and not with the Curtis planes.

These, of course, are being used almost exclusively with the British army. I understand the British government is doing about $5,000,000 worth of business with one American aeroplane firm and when the manufacturers said they had neither the facilities nor the money to produce on the huge scale and in the immediate haste that was demanded the British government advanced $650,000 as a neat little starter.

Freight Exceeds Car Cost.

With the increasing troubles with German submarines of course the transportation of these necessaries of war becomes more and more difficult. I was talking to a man who wanted to buy a small, inexpensive car made in the United States. In an incautious moment he started to figure the freight and found that the cost of transportation would be nearly $100 in advance of the cost of the car.

Firms engaged in shipping motor lorries, for example, have to reckon $500 extra for the freightage on every one of their trucks.

Interned Italians Released.

ROME, May 29.—Because of Italy's entrance into the war on the side of the allies the government today released 137 survivors of the French cruiser Leon Gambetta, torpedoed in the Adriatic, who had been interned at Syracuse since April 27. A band preceded the French sailors when they left camp and they received an ovation.

HERMAN RIDDER, ARMS FOE, SELLS BRITAIN MUNITIONS?

International Typesetting Machine Company, of Which He Is Head, Said to Be Working on Contracts.

New York, May 29.—[Special.]—The International Typesetting Machine company, of which Herman Ridder is president, is said to be making war munitions for the British government.

Mr. Ridder, who is also president and editor of the New Yorker Staats Zeitung, has already attracted world-wide attention by his vigorous condemnation of the exportation of arms and ammunition from the United States to the allies.

The International Typesetting Machine company, it is claimed, is executing in its Brooklyn factory an order for 1,400 aeroplane parts, according to plans furnished directly by the British government.

Workmen in the Ridder plant are executing one large contract for Great Britain, according to sketches bearing the imprint of the Royal Aircraft factory of Farnborough, England, which is operated by the British war office.

Peace Conferees at Berne, Switzerland, Also Denounce Violations of Neutrality.

BERNE, Switzerland, May 29.—An international conference of the World's Union for the Future Interests of Mankind met today at the headquarters of the international peace bureau. Resolutions were adopted opposing the annexation of territory against the will of its inhabitants and the violation of neutrality in time of war. Other resolutions favored measures to prevent the waging of wars for revenge and to secure the sacredness of treaties.

STEAMER MACKINAW SAFE AFTER NIGHT OF TERROR.

Wireless from Vessel, Afire in 70 Mile Gale, Says Craft Thought to Have Foundered Survived Peril.

San Francisco, Cal., May 29.—The Robert Dollar steamship Mackinaw is safe off Montara after a night of terror from fire aboard, according to a wireless received by the owner from Capt. W. G. Krebs today. Part of the crew of forty men took to the boats and were picked up by a pilot boat.

Krebs stated that four steamers passed the Mackinaw during the night without heeding its wireless calls for help or seeing the smoke and flames. The fire, which was in the engine room, was extinguished this afternoon. A steamer is on the way to tow the disabled boat to port.

This message was the first word from the Mackinaw since its wireless cracked out "S. O. S. Afire in seventy mile blow off Point Reyes," last night. When the steamers Coronado and Estabrook rushed to the rescue the Mackinaw was nowhere in sight, and after cruising around for an hour, hope was abandoned. It was supposed that the Mackinaw had gone down.

PASTOR EXTOLS BRAVE DEATH OF HERBERT STONE

Friends of Chicagoan Who Lost Life on Lusitania Attend Memorial.

The Rev. John Timothy Stone yesterday paid a tribute to the gallantry of Herbert S. Stone, who lost his life when the Lusitania was torpedoed. At the beginning of his remarks at the memorial services in the Fourth Presbyterian church, Dr. Stone read a dispatch which stated that the late Mr. Stone had lost his life after giving his life preserver to a woman passenger.

The theme of Dr. Stone's sermon in memory of the late Mr. Stone was built on this dispatch—the fact that Mr. Stone gave his life to save another.

Among Those at Service.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Melville E. Stone, Melville E. Stone Jr., and Miss Elizabeth Stone, a sister, and Mrs. Herbert S. Stone and her mother, Mrs. William G. McCormick, these, among others, attending the services:

Opened with Song.

Numerous other friends of the late Mr. Stone when he was a publisher in Chicago attended the services.

The services opened with the song, "For Those at Sea," in which the friends of the decedent joined with the choir. Dr. Frank Gunsaulus, an intimate friend of the family, pronounced the invocation recognizing the "divine mind and the devout heart in the hour of bereavement and human mystery."

The choir gave the anthem, "Souls of the Righteous," after which Dr. Stone read William Cullen Bryant's Thanatopsis. The service was a simple religious recital of the incidents of the death of Mr. Stone and references to the brave manner in which he lost his life.

Reading from Scripture.

The scriptural reading was the fifteenth chapter of Corinthians, emphasizing the thought in the beginning of the chapter: "For greater love has no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends."

Dr. Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, officiated at the wedding of Mr. Stone and Miss McCormick in 1904 at the Brown Memorial Presbyterian church in Baltimore. Mrs. McCormick, mother of the widow, also was married in the Baltimore church.

PALS BELIEVED ADRIFT.

LONDON, May 29.—Sixteen men of the crew of the Elder-Dempster liner Ethiope, torpedoed by the German submarine U-24 were missing this afternoon, but believed to be adrift in one of the steamer's boats.

The chief officer and sixteen of the crew were landed at Falmouth today. They said the commander of the U-24 gave the crew five minutes in which to escape.

Dispatches received here made no mention of the liner carrying any passengers.

The Ethiope was a 3,794 ton steel screw liner of the Elder line, under British registry from the port of Liverpool. It was 340 feet long and 47 feet beam. The craft was built in 1906. Its captain is given by Lloyd's as A. W. Sullivan.

FORTY ON RUSS VESSEL DIE WHEN CRAFT BURNS.

German Spies Suspected of Starting Blaze in Steamer in Gulf of Finland Harbor.

STOCKHOLM, May 29.—The Russian steamer Bore II. caught fire and burned to the water's edge in the harbor of Helsingfors, Gulf of Finland, today. Forty lives were lost.

Helsingfors dispatches say that German spies are suspected of setting fire to the vessel. The blaze started in a hold filled with flax and spread rapidly, destroying the ship before other harbor craft could come to its aid.

The Bore II. originally was a Swedish steamer, but was sold to a Russian firm acting as agents for the Russian government.

GERMAN PEACE OFFER REJECTED, SAYS CZAR'S AID

Foreign Minister Declares Ruler, Standing by Allies, Refused Teuton Overture.

MILAN, Italy, May 29.—Sergius Sazonoff, Russian foreign minister, interviewed by a correspondent of the Secolo, is quoted as saying it was true Austria and Germany attempted to conclude a separate peace with Russia, but that such a thing was impossible.

"All the allies are entirely in accord," M. Sazonoff continued. "Consequently the war will continue until it is possible to conclude a really lasting peace. It will be a long, hard war, as the enemy is still strong. Knowledge of his strength must make us stronger and more persevering in our efforts to reach a definite result."

Italy Took Wise Course.

M. Sazonoff expressed the opinion that Italy, in terminating her alliance with Germany and Austria, had acted wisely. He asserted Italy's principal compensation for her present trouble would be acquisition of the commercial influence in the Balkans previously possessed by Austria and Germany.

M. Sazonoff urged that Italy cultivate good relations with the Slavs. Otherwise, he said, the Dalmatian coast, which had been assigned to Italy, would be a wall instead of a bridge in her relations with the Balkans.

He declared Russia had neither a moral nor a political interest in the Adriatic, and that with Venice, Pola, Avlona, and Otranto in the hands of Italy the Adriatic might become another closed sea.

Have Two Closed Seas.

"We already have two closed seas—the Baltic and the Black sea," M. Sazonoff continued. "We do not want a third. If it were the Atlantic, then that would be different. The Black sea is a Russian sea. Russia cannot permit barbarian Turkey to possess the key to this sea. The commercial life of Russia already has suffered by the closing of the Dardanelles, which must end.

"Bulgaria and Roumania have nothing to fear, because all would have equal commercial rights through the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles, which in the hands of Russia would guarantee order and safety of navigation."

BRITAIN FACES URGENT NEED FOR MUNITIONS

Demands for Supplies from All Branches of Service Show Lack of Foresight.

BY HENRY J. REILLY.

[Copyright: 1915: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 15.—When the war broke out the British navy was not only the biggest in the world but it was reasonably prepared to fight a campaign.

The British army was almost the smallest in Europe, and was far from having a sufficient reserve supply of munitions of all kinds for even such a small force to fight a long, hard campaign.

When it came to the supplies necessary to equip and maintain the new armies which had to be raised, not only were they not in existence but the industrial situation of the country was not sufficiently organized to permit their being rapidly brought into existence.

The government had been run by civilians who for the most part paid no serious attention to the possibility of war, or else thought they knew more about it than the trained officers who persistently warned them of the need of preparation.

Few people have any conception of the immense amount of material needed to fit an army out, let alone to keep it going once it is fitted out.

Soldier's Needs Many.

Once having the division organized, it is then necessary to keep its equipment up to the standard, to feed the men and horses, and, above all, to see that no soldier armed with a rifle shall ever lack ball cartridges for it, and that no gun shall ever lack shrapnel and high explosive shell.

When it is considered that a division is merely part of an army corps, that an army corps is only part of an army, and that an army is only part of the group of armies which is operating in any one theater of war, some conception can be had of the immense amount of material necessary to bring these armies into existence and to keep them going.

That was the problem faced by Great Britain at the beginning of the war. Probably no nation on the face of the earth refusing to prepare for war ahead of time the way Great Britain did could have had greater resources to draw upon once war came.

In spite of this, two things were found necessary: one to buy material abroad, and the other to increase the home output.

Buying abroad in war time is objectionable for a number of reasons. War time prices are always high. When the immense commissions which have to be paid for material bought abroad are added to the price, the country is paying a good deal for what it gets.

Offers Turned Down.

It is said on good authority that at the beginning of the war many British manufacturers wrote to the war office and said they would make the necessary transformations in their plants to manufacture munitions of all kinds, and particularly ammunition for field guns, provided there were some prospects of getting sufficient orders to justify the change.

The war office told them that at the present time they saw no necessity for any such change, but should the need arise later they would notify them.

It is now gradually becoming known that even the small British army in France cannot have all the field gun ammunition it wants, for the simple reason that Great Britain has not got it. Twice Sir John French has been reprimanded for using too much.

Artillery Is Essential.

In all wars artillery has been impor- In the present trench warfare, even on days in which there is no real fighting, the artillery nearly always fires for an hour or two. This always occasions casualties.

These casualties in the small British army alone average about 200 a day on dull days.

Gen. French and Lord Kitchener keep asking for more ammunition and emphasizing the need of it. The government has given out that from September to March they have increased the output of ammunition twenty times, as if the number of times the output had been increased altered the main fact, which is that the artillery of their small army in the field has not enough.

France foresaw the need of an immense amount of field artillery ammunition and stored up quantities of it before the war. Nevertheless, she is now producing 600 per cent of what she produced when the war broke out and soon will have increased this output by another 300 per cent.

It cannot but be asked what will be the case when the Dardanelles campaign really develops and when Kitchener's new army of a million men, with all their artillery, takes the field.

Apparently, a large factor in the increase of output of ammunition and other munitions of war is the labor question. There is a scarcity of the right kind of laborers.

Prices Jump in Britain.

Everywhere in Great Britain prices have gone up. There have been some heavy rises in the price of foodstuffs. In some of the country districts this has gone to the extent that many people are unable longer to have as much meat as formerly with the result that county councils and other bodies are teaching them to use tapioca to make soups of various kinds.

The necessity for this is not that there is any real distress, but simply that the point has been reached where the wasteful methods which formerly obtained must be done away with. Anyhow, this rise naturally tends to create a demand for higher wages.

Also the workers know that tremendous profits are being made by the manufacturers of war supplies. As they are having to do a great deal of overtime work, they see no reason why they should not share these profits.

On the other hand, there is little doubt that the workers have an exaggerated idea of their rights.

The fact is that the disputes between the employers and employés have resulted in a number of strikes and threatened strikes.

A number of attempts are being made to overcome these difficulties. An industrial reserve made up of men of all classes is doing some of the work for which there is not enough labor. This is mostly unskilled or semi-skilled labor.

A strenuous campaign has been started against drink. Lloyd-George has stated that drink is a greater enemy than Germany and Austria. All sorts of statements of the ravages it works in the ranks of the workers have been made.

Drink Not Alone to Blame.

On the other hand, there seems to be considerable evidence that drink, while doing some damage, is not in any way as much responsible for the failure to produce a sufficient quantity of war munitions as was the failure of the ministry to appreciate, both before the war and since its commencement, the huge quantities which would be necessary.

To prevent disputes, the government has proposed a new scheme for the limitation of profit, for the compulsory arbitration of strikes where government work is being done, and the doing away with the limitation of output now imposed by the labor unions in many cases.

A bill has been passed in the house of commons authorizing the government to take over shops where war material is being made.

While many of the rises in foodstuffs and other articles are undoubtedly due to war conditions, others are considered to be the result of manipulation. The government is trying to find the persons responsible. As is usual when large quantities of supplies are bought in a hurry, there have been found to be cases of graft.

In the meanwhile, the public is getting heartily tired of both the manufacturers and the laborers quarreling over the spoils of war profits.

In other words, the typical American and British system of refusing to prepare for war until war comes and then trying to get what is necessary on the principle of "never mind the price, we have got to have it and have it immediately," has resulted in the usual waste and usual inefficiency.

German White Book Emphatic in Calling Charges of Atrocities in Belgium Libel.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, May 29.—An emphatic denial of charges of extreme and unwarranted cruelty to civilians in Belgium, made in two official reports, is contained in a white book just issued by the German government.

In this document the government makes counter charges of a concerted and premeditated attack upon the German troops by the Belgian population, in reply to which the soldiers resorted to only such measures of retaliation as were justified, and, indeed, necessary.

The first of the two reports to which the white book is an answer was that made public in Washington on Sept. 16 last by a commission sent to the United States by the Belgian government.

The second report was that of the British commission, headed by Viscount Bryce, which was made public in Washington and London simultaneously on May 12 last.

The alleged attacks made upon the German troops by the Belgian population are declared to be in violation of articles 1 and 2 of the Geneva convention, in that the assailants were not organized troops. The soldiery, the document sets forth, was actuated only by the instinct of self-preservation.

The charges of atrocities made in the two reports are declared to be libels. So far from admitting the allegations of atrocities against women and children, the white book declares that particular care was taken to protect women, children, and old men from danger, whenever possible.

The document charges, on the other hand, that Belgian women frequently participated in the attacks made upon the Germans. Hot tar and scalding water were poured upon the troops from upper windows and many captured soldiers were mutilated cruelly.

At Aerschot, the document states, presidents of the city fired upon the troops without provocation and the German commander was treacherously murdered in the mayor's residence.

At Dinant the cathedral was used as a point of attack against the Germans.

In Louvain, it is charged, the population turned against the troops after pretending to show friendship. There priests goaded the citizens to the attack, and German hospitals were fired upon. The Germans admit setting the houses of some of the offenders afire, but declare that they themselves checked the conflagration in order that innocent persons might not suffer.

"Immediately after the start of the present war," the book says, "a wild fight of the entire people against the German troops broke out, which forms a flagrant violation of international rights and which had more serious results for the country of Belgium and its people.

"This war, fought by people excited to the highest passion, lasted during the entire advance of the German army through Belgium. As the Belgian army, after stubborn fights, retreated before the German troops, the Belgian civilian population in all parts of the country not yet occupied by Germans endeavored, by all means to delay the German advance.

"They did not hesitate, in places which already had been occupied by German troops, to hurt and weaken the German army through cowardly attacks. That the Belgian civilian population of every rank, age, and sex, with the greatest fury and rage, took part in the fights against the German troops is proved by overwhelming material founded on official and in many cases sworn testimony.

"According to material in hand, the Belgian civilian population in numerous places in the provinces of Liege, Luxemburg, Namur, Henegau, Brabant, East and West Flanders fought against German troops, and the fight was particularly terrible in character at Aerschot, Ardenne, Dinant, and Liege, of which special reports have been received by the German war department from special military committees appointed to look into violations of the rules of war.

"According to these, men of various professions and trades, workingmen, manufacturers, physicians, school teachers, even priests and women and children, were caught with arms in hand in parts of the country from which the Belgian regular troops had retired long ago.

"Shots were fired at the German troops from houses, gardens, roofs, cellars, fields and woods. During these fights means were used which certainly would never have been used by regular troops, and there were, therefore, many wounds from shotguns and scalds from hot tar and boiling water.

"What we principally accuse the Belgian population of is shameless violation of the rules of war in various places. For instance at Liege, Brussels, Aerschot, and Dinant German soldiers have been murdered from behind, which violates the rule against 'assassination or wounding of members of hostile people or army.' [Article 23, paragraph 1B of the treaty of The Hague.]

"The Belgian people have besides paid no attention to the flag of the Red Cross, thus violating article 9 of the Geneva convention especially. They have not hesitated to shoot at German troops protected by this flag, and attack hospitals containing wounded sildiers as well as surgeons and nurses performing their duties.

"Finally, it has been proved beyond a doubt that German wounded soldiers have been robbed and murdered, nay, even mutilated, in a most horrible manner, and that even women and young girls have taken part in such horrible crimes. The German wounded soldiers have had their eyes gouged out, ears, noses, and fingers cut off, their abdomen cut open, while in other cases the German soldiers have been poisoned, hanged in trees, sprinkled with burning fluids, and burned in other manners so they died in a particularly painful manner.

"This beastly behavior on the part of the Belgian population, not only against the express obligation to show respect and look after the sick and wounded of a hostile army [article 1, paragraph 1, Geneva convention], but also a blow in the face of the first principles and rules of war and humanity.

"Under these circumstances the Belgian civilian population who took part in the fight had, of course, no right to claim to be treated as belligerents, but the instinct of self-preservation of the German army distinctly demanded that the sternest of measures be taken against these franctireurs. All of these persons who fought against German troops therefore had to be killed, and the prisoners taken could not be treated as prisoners of war, but as common murderers.

"In spite of this we have, whenever it was not against the necessity of war, endeavored to preserve the rules of war, and prisoners were, whenever it was in any way possible, shot only after a regular examination or as sentenced by a court martial.

"Old men, women, and children, even when suspected, were spared as far as it was in any way possible, and, although the patience of the German soldiers was tried to the utmost by those vicious attacks, they often in a most self-sacrificing manner cared for these people in every manner, giving aid to the helpless, sharing their bread with them, and nursing the weak and suffering.

"That the Belgian government must take the blame for this violation of international rights by the people of Belgium is beyond any doubt.

"The incontestible fact that from the very beginning the German troops in Belgium were forced in the interest of self-preservation to fight against the population may easily be proved by looking into the matter through a commission from any part of the world.

"In various places it has been proved that explosives and bombs were used, and it also is proved that hot tar was poured on German troops. In single instances part of the population even committed dreadful cruelties against helpless German soldiers.

"A reservist found in the cellar of a house at Louvain the body of a German soldier whose abdomen had been cut open with a sharp knife, so that the bowels protruded. Another German soldier was mutilated by furious inhuman inhabitants in such an atrocious manner that he died.

"Those inhabitants who had taken part in the attack were shot and the houses from which the shots had been fired were burned. It was not possible to prevent the fire from spreading to other houses and destroying some streets.

"The Belgian government itself has never dared to state that regular troops belonging to the Belgian army took part in the Louvain fighting. It was a cowardly attack by franc tireurs, who were willingly received and hidden by the people of Louvain.

"Crimes committed by the civil guard were revealed to the entire civilized world. At Louvain unfortunately a number of priests were fanatic enough to abuse their influence upon the people and advise them to receive franc tireurs, and it was proved that a number of them even took a personal part in the fighting.

"Whoever reads the reports of the German government concerning Louvain —which were not founded on observations of excited, and in most cases uneducated people, but on a rational calmly undertaken examination—must realize how worthless are similar accusations against German troops which have been made by the Belgians.

"How little value the commission itself places upon its imaginary statements which have been reproduced elsewhere, without any attempt of criticism, is proved by the execution of Bishop Coenraet and Pater Schmidt. It speaks, itself, of an imaginary execution and adds to the story that involuntary witnesses to this imaginary scene were forced to show their approval by clapping of hands.

"It is not possible to produce stronger proof that this material was hurriedly gathered for the purpose of making a sensation regardless of truth and justice than the fact, of which the Belgian commission can hardly pretend to be ignorant, the Bishop Coenraet is even today safe and sound, living with Prof. Dr. Toels in Jirlen, Holland."

RESIDENTS FIGHT FIRST CAVALRY AT SPRINGFIELD

H. N. Cooper Denounces Col. Foreman's Interpretation of Patriotism.

Once more the proposed site of the First Cavalry armory has precipitated a fight between adjoining property owners and officers of the cavalry. This time the site suggested at the foot of Chicago avenue is objected to by several dozen property ownwers living in the exclusive residential section immediately to the north.

They will be on hand to denounce the proposed site when the matter is thrashed out before a subcommittee of the legislature tomorrow. Col. Milton J. Foreman asserted yesterday that the cavalry is tired of being shunted to and fro at the protest of property owners, and that if the armory is not built on the park property suggested it will mean the end of the regiment.

Threatens Legal Action.

This assertion was ridiculed by H. N. Cooper, spokesman for the residents. He added that if the legislature approves the site, legal steps will be taken to prevent the construction of the building.

"Citizens interested in parks and playgrounds will not abandon their opposition to giving any part of grounds dedicated and used for park purposes as a site for the armory," he said.

"With reference to Col. Foreman's statement, to assail defenders of parks as wanting in patriotism is pure buncombe. The citizens opposing the Chicago avenue site are the ones who are benefiting the First cavalry. The passage of a bill authorizing the use of the property would result in litigation which, in the light of the Grant park decisions would prevent the armory ever being built on the site involved. This property is dedicated for park purposes only.

Retort on Patriotism.

"The park, the Lake Shore drive, and the municipal pleasure pier are important features in the idea that Lake Michigan should be enjoyed by all the people. To say that unless we can stable our horses in Lake Shore drive we will give up the First cavalry is not patriotism."

Among the property owners who have joined in the movement to enjoin the construction of the armory are Bryan Lathrop, John V. Farwell, W. J. Chalmers, R. Hall McCormick, George F. Porter, Stuart G. Shepard, Ogden T. McClurg, Potter Palmer Jr., Adrian C. Honoré, Louis Guensel, Nels Gross, Francis H. Hardy, and Dr. E. C. Dudley.

JOURNALISTS "IN MAKING" INSPECT "TRIBUNE'S" PLANT

Northwestern University Class Sees Practical Application of School Principles.

Fifteen members of the class in journalism of Northwestern university held their final lesson of the year last night in THE TRIBUNE building. The business of making a modern newspaper was inspected from the time the story is ticked out on the typewriter to the mailing room, where the finished product starts on his way to the readers.

"My students have studied forms of composition all year," said G. B. Denton, instructor of the class, "and this visit to THE TRIBUNE's plant is the best possible lesson in practical application of what they have learned."

Mr. Denton's class used THE TRIBUNE as a model during the course in newspaper work, and the students became so interested in their study of the paper that they asked their instructor to arrange a visit to see THE TRIBUNE made.

VOLUNTEERS MAY BE CALLED OUT IN MEXICAN CASE

National Guard Would Replace Border Regulars if Invasion Is Begun.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 29.—[Special.]—President Wilson has completed his ultimatum to the warring factions of Mexico—that unless they compose their differences and establish an orderly government, the United States will be compelled to undertake the task of pacifying the country.

The president will submit his statement, which is about 1,500 words in length, to his cabinet on Tuesday. He intends to send it immediately thereafter to the leaders of each of the factions in Mexico and to make it public as an official statement of the policy the administration henceforth will pursue.

The administration is giving every possible aid to the Red Cross, which is managing the work of Mexican relief. The organization has taken over the government warehouses at Galveston, Laredo, and El Paso, for storage of the provisions which will be collected as a result of the president's appeal for funds and food for the starving Mexicans.

As soon as these shipments arrive at the Mexican border the question of protecting them from seizure by Mexican troops and bandits will arise. Secretary of State Bryan said today that the government will take whatever steps are necessary to insure delivery of the food supplies to the people who need them.

He declined to say what measures these would be, but it is known that the war department is preparing to furnish armed escorts for the shipments over the railroad from Vera Cruz to Mexico City and elsewhere.

How to Invade Mexico.

Members of the general staff of the army believe that it will take from one to two years of hard, consistent work on the part of the United States to clean up Mexico, in the event that President Wilson decides this country should attempt the work.

"If we had any military policy or an army of even respectable size," said one of the officers today, "the work would not be difficult. At it is, it will take at least six months to get it well started and an equal period to finish it, if it can be finished in that time."

The general staff has no illusions about Mexico being easy to conquer at the present time because of the alleged lack of munitions in the various armies there.

"They have just as much ammunition as they ever had," said another officer today, "and if we go in and have to fight, they'll be able to put up a pretty stiff resistance for some time. Eventually, of course, the United States could cut off all their ammunition supplies, as well as other supplies.

"But there would be several big battles first, battles in which the Mexicans would prove themselves mighty good fighters, according to my way of thinking.

"No matter what course the president decides upon, if he attempts to send an army into Mexico he cannot leave the border unprotected. There are barely enough men there now to handle the situation as it should be handled.

Would Call Out Volunteers.

"I believe the first step should be to call for the services of those eligible under the Hay volunteer army law. This would permit the national guard to replace the army on the border, when the time arrives to send the latter over the border.

"Then the volunteers, without previous service, could be drilled and organized to relieve the militia when it becomes necessary to send it to the support of the regulars.

"It would take at least six months to get a volunteer army in shape to perform work such as will be needed in Mexico if we go in. But in six months' time the United States should be ready to meet the problems."

Gen. Leonard Wood, when he was chief of staff, estimated that it would take at least 500,000 men to clean up Mexico. Many officers hold the same view now. They believe the time demanded for the work, however, will depend upon the number of men allowed to begin the work. If given only a handful the army cannot expect quick results.

Staff officers hold the view that the minute the United States goes in all of the factions which are now at each other's throats will cease their internecine warfare and unite against the Americans. Whether this actually happens or not, the army will proceed on the theory that it is to happen.

Villa Losses Near 5,000.

El Paso, Tex., May 29.—The Villa army in assaulting and failing to take the Obregon positions below Leon last week lost more than 5,000 men, according to reliable private advices received here today.

Persons arriving from the south stated that 1,000 wounded arrived yesterday at Chihuahua City, while similar numbers have been transported from the battle front to other cities along the central railroad. More than 1,000 dead, it was estimated, had been left before the Carranza trenches, and these bodies, together with those of horses, have caused a condition threatening an epidemic should the two armies remain for long in their present entrenchments.

Seek Relatives of Man.

George G. Shetterley, an undertaker of St. Cloud, Minn., yesterday asked Capt. P. D. O'Brien to try to find relatives of a man of the name of Danes, whose body Shetterley holds. Joseph Danes of 4859 South Seeley avenue may be a brother.

Brings Back Diploma and Ring.

MISS ALICE I. LOWREY

HARRY J. RIESS

When Alice Irene Lowrey comes back to Oak Park from Beloit college next month she will bring not only a diploma but a ring. To certain suburban beaux the ring will tell its own story.

The man from whom the ring came is Harry J. Riess of Jefferson, Wis. Being a junior, Riess will have to stay at college another year. That will give him a chance to catch once more on the college nine and to serve again as captain of the eleven.

Miss Lowrey was leader of Beloit women in scholarship; college representative in Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic society, star Greek play cast, leading lady senior play, prima donna, Girls' Glee club and Vesper choir, leading member Shakspeare society and English club, and one of the two women among the six commencement speakers.

LOCAL RED CROSS BODY ASKS AID FOR MEXICO.

Donations Are Solicited to Relieve the Hungry Populace of War Stricken Country.

HOW TO SEND MONEY FOR MEXICO.
Send all cash and make all checks payable to Orson Smith, treasurer, at the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company bank 112 West Adams street. For information call John J. O'Conner, director central division, Red Cross, room 1205, 112 West Adams street, Central 906.

Following the publication of President Wilson's appeal for money and foodstuffs for the starving people of Mexico, arrangements were made hurriedly yesterday by Chicago Red Cross officials for receiving contributions for a Chicago relief fund.

Frank G. Logan of Logan & Bryan, a board of trade firm, reflected the sentiment of many business men when he stated: "I am certain that President Wilson's appeal, which has been made after long and careful study of the Mexican situation, has touched the heart of our people. Our assistance to these poor people will do much to increase our friendship with all the South American peoples who have been watching our course in Mexico with intense interest. I hope the fund will be a large one. I am sending a check for $100 and will give more later."

Michael O'Brien Resigns.

Michael O'Brien tendered his resignation yesterday after thirty-four years in the city's service—ten years in the fire department and twenty-four years as a patrolman. Injuries sustained in the railroad strike of 1894 had disabled him, he said, so that it was hard for him to travel a beat. He is a widower with six children and lives at 350 West Forty-fifth street.

Estate Bequeathed Widow and Sons Shows Ex-Wife Got Near $20,000,000.

New York, May 29.—[Special.]—The will of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who was drowned in the sinking of the Lusitania, was filed today in the surrogate's office. The total value of the estate is estimated at $30,000 000.

Generous provision is made for the widow, Mrs. Margaret Emerson Vanderbilt, whom he married in London in December, 1911. First she receives $2,000,000 in compliance with the ante-nuptial agreement, then an added $1,000,000; also the income of a special trust fund of $5,000,000. She also receives the houseboat Venture and the great Adirondack estates, Sagamore lodge and Moose river tract.

To his eldest son, William H. Vanderbilt, child of Elsie French Vanderbilt born in 1901, Mr. Vanderbilt bequeaths a fund of $5,000,000 left to him by his father, Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Residue to Younger Sons.

After donating the $3,000,000 given outright to Mrs. Margaret Emerson Vanderbilt, the trust fund of $5,000,000 left to her and $1,650,000 given in other bequests to his brother, Reginald, and others, the residue of the estate, about $15,000,000, is given to his sons by Mrs. Margaret Emerson Vanderbilt.

These are Alfred Gwynne, born in 1912, and George, born in 1914. This, the bulk of the estate, is to be held in trust until the boys are 21 years old, when they receive one-quarter of it; then another quarter at the age of 25, and the remaining half when they reach the age of 30.

No mention is made in the will of Elsie French Vanderbilt, his first wife, who got a divorce from Mr. Vanderbilt.

Left $50,000,000 by Father.

Henry B. Anderson, who was attorney for Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and is an executor of the will, stated that the estate disposed of in the will amounts to about $30,000,000. Inasmuch as the estate Mr. Vanderbilt received from his father, Cornelius Vanderbilt, was worth more than $50,000,000, it now appears that he must have settled at least $20,000,000 on his first wife and their son, William H. Vanderbilt, at the time of the divorce.

MARION ULRICH PRIZE BABY.

Little Girl, 4½ Years Old, Wins 444 Votes at May Festival.

Marion Ulrich of 2113 North Clark street was the winner of yesterday's baby show at the May festival in the Bismarck garden. She is 4½ years old, and received 444 votes. Marion is a musical wonder and plays grand opera on the piano. She has never heard ragtime and her parents are trying to keep it from her.

Other prize winners were Wallace Erawert of 4214 South Richmond street, second; Marjorie Cramer of 4857 Christiana avenue, third, and Charlotte Selleck of 404 South Ashland boulevard, fourth.

The fair will be continued through this week. On Tuesday there will be a concert by a band of 100 pieces donated by the American Federation of Labor.

PASTOR'S DOG GETS RIDE.

The Rev. M. P. Boynton Phones Police and Quick Recovery Is Made of Missing Canine.

The Rev. Melbourne P. Boynton, pastor of the Lexington Avenue Baptist church, telephoned to the Woodlawn police station:

"My collie is gone again. Only last night I paid a boy $1 for returning the dog. I let the collie out this morning and it never returned."

Sergt. Fitzgerald hung up the receiver and happened to glance out a window. He saw a collie. It answered the description. He notified the minister, who went to the station and took the dog back home.

RAIN, AND THEN A BIT MORE RAIN

Another Inch of Water Falls on the Moist Landscape of Chicago.

ALSO IN OTHER PLACES.

For the first time in several years Chicago yesterday came within a few hundredths of an inch of catching up with her average precipitation. Two weeks ago the deficiency in rainfall since Jan. 1 was 4.5 inches, and a week ago it was 2.11 inches, but at 7 o'clock last night this deficiency had been reduced to .17 of an inch. During the day .87 of an inch was registered, making a total fall of nearly three inches for the week.

The week's rains have swollen the streams around Chicago until they are on the point of breaking over their banks and flooding the suburbs.

The Desplaines river went out of its banks at the Santa Fe bridge south of Lyons and flooded many acres. It was still rising last night, and residents along its shores were making preparations as far as possible to prevent basements from becoming flooded. The Fox river was reported rising, as were the Little and Grand Calumet.

Heavy Rain Farther South.

Farther south in the state the rains have been still heavier. Peoria reported a downpour of 4.83 in eight hours and resulting damage to crops of about $100,000. The south end of the town was under water, and street car and railroad traffic was disorganized.

Other towns reported high water, and still more serious overflows are looked for. The weather man holds out no hope for sunshine today in Chicago, although he does not predict rain. Tomorrow, he says, it probably will be fair.

KENOSHA PARTLY FLOODED.

Kenosha, Wis., May 29.—[Special.]—More than 200 acres of the city of Kenosha is under water today. The entire portion of the city on the west of the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric track, from Grand avenue to Salem avenue, is inundated. Hundreds are marooned in their homes. There is a foot of water in the first floor rooms of residences.

Vandalia Dike Breaks.

Vandalia, Ill., May 29.—[Special.]—Twenty thousand acres of lowlands surrounding Vandalia were flooded and a property loss estimated at $100,000, mostly the destruction of growing crops, sustained today when the levee protecting the bottom farms from the Kaskaskia river broke in two places three miles north of Vandalia.

Little Fear at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., May 29.—While preparations were being made tonight in the west bottoms district of Kansas City to meet high water conditions predicted for the next day or two, there was little fear locally of serious overflow. Interest in floods in the southwest was divided between the ravages of the Missouri river in the central counties of this state, where that stream continues to spread out over the bottom farm lands, and the situation in Arkansas, where the Arkansas river, sweeping through breaches in levees, is doing great damage to fields.

Other points where floods have obtained or have been threatening the last few days report conditions practically have assumed normal shape.

GRIEF

Cook prize poem awarded Archibald MacLeish, of Glencoe, by Yale University.

ARCHIBALD MAC LEISH, son of Andrew MacLeish of Glencoe, has won the Cook prize for the best poem written during the year by an undergraduate at Yale university. MacLeish will be graduated in June. The poem, which appears in the current number of the Yale Review, is entitled "Grief." It follows:

Hadst thou been queen in Babylon,
My queen who lies so still,
A proud tumultuous pyre had shone
Upon thy burial hill,

And gold and pearl and amethyst,
Thy crown, thy gilded lyre,
Thy very slaves, had kept thee tryst
In that high flaming fire.

And there had flung an ancient dirge
Against the burnished sky,
Like ocean threnodies that surge
And swell and swooning die.

But Love has crucified death's fears;
The grave has set thee free;
And all the sweetness of slow tears
Is turned to mockery.

O white Lord Christ, thy love's caress,
Thy prophecy that saith
These dead shall wake from weariness,
Shames all who mourn for death;

And faith in immortality,
Affrighted blind belief
That troubles death's reality,
Has crushed dim fragrant grief.

Nay, I were mad to weep for thee—
But O, thy silken hair!
And O, the twilight memory,
The darkening despair!

See then it is not thee I weep,
It is not thou art dead:
Thy lidded eyes are but asleep,
And weary thy dear head.

I weep the silver dreams we wrought
Long years, long years ago;
I weep the sun-drowsed days that caught
Our dreams in their sweet flow.

VOTE ON DU PAGE FORESTS.

Citizens in June 7 Referendum Will Decide Whether or Not to Act Now.

On June 7 in Du Page county the voters in referendum will vote on the question of the creation of forest reserve districts, as provided by the legislature in 1913. The promoters of the preserve hope to prevent the shameful waste of the beautiful forests in Du Page county, the finest existing in northern Illinois, and by their early action safeguard the county against eventually paying several million dollars for the woodlands that can be secured now at comparatively little cost.

Dignitaries of Order Present at Exercises for New Building of Auburn Park Lodge.

The corner stone of the new Masonic temple of Auburn Park lodge was laid by the Illinois Grand lodge of Masons yesterday. Henry T. Burnap, grand master, was the chief ceremony officer. A uniformed parade preceded the exercises at the building site. The new temple will be equipped with athletic quarters, as well as lodge rooms.

PEACE DEPENDS ON PARLEY TODAY BY CARPENTERS

Will Meet Contractors Under Eye of Building Construction Employers.

Five men representing the 16,000 striking carpenters, five men representing the 600 carpenter contractors of Chicago, and officials of the Building Construction Employers' association will meet this morning at 10 o'clock in the offices of the Building Construction Employers' association in the Chamber of Commerce building to try once more to end the carpenters' strike.

For several days Charles W. Gindele, president of the Building Construction Employers' association, has been meeting with the officials of the Carpenter Contractors' association and the Carpenters' District council in an effort to bring the two organizations together since the break occurred a week ago at the refusal of the rank and file of carpenters to accept the contractors' offer.

Wage Raise Real Issue.

Mr. Gindele succeeded late yesterday in arranging for the meeting this morning. The representatives of the carpenters and the contractors compose the joint arbitration board of the two organizations in times of peace. Although there are several features in the proposed agreement between the two organizations which will have to be eliminated, the question of wages is said to be the real reason for the continued strike of the men.

The committee this morning will get to the question of wages quickly, and it is expected a definite peace plan will be agreed on before the negotiations are again interrupted. The officials of the Building Construction Employers' association will point out to the carpenters and the contractors the immense damage being done to the business of the city and on a basis of public good urge the two sides to come to an adjustment of their differences.

Threaten to Hire Strike Breakers.

The Carpenter Contractors' association during the day followed up the plan of action announced in THE TRIBUNE, by announcing that strike breakers would be brought into the city if some peace plan could not be effected within a reasonable time.

Contractors and carpenters alike said they believed the meetings of the joint arbitration board under the eye of the Building Construction Employers' association would bring about a speedy settlement.

Cadillac Leadership Compels Adoption of V-Type Motor for High Class Cars

Nearly a year now since the V-type Cadillac Eight was announced. It was a great surprise to everybody—including all car makers.

In the beginning it was ridiculed—then it was envied—then its "objections" were pointed out. But nothing could stem the tide of public favor.

Every man who bought a Cadillac Eight and every friend who rode with him—all just overflowed with enthusiasm for this car that gives a new zest to motoring.

There was nothing for other makers to do but acknowledge Cadillac leadership and get in line. Some fairly jumped in—the story of following the Cadillac lead on electric cranking all over again—helping us prove to the public that the Cadillac always gives you the best there is, and gives it to you first.

To say that this is significant of Cadillac success is putting it mildly. He must be queer indeed who questions the success, the endurance, the perfection of the Eight Cylinder Cadillac when makers of costlier cars acknowledge Cadillac leadership and adopt the V-type motor.

Cut Open Chassis at Our Store Now Come See How V-Type Motor Works

This motor which is making over the high grade cars is worth your study. A special lecturer here from the factory explains it clearly. Most people say: "Oh, I didn't realize it worked that way." And then they smile with satisfaction, because they see with their own eyes the simplicity, the correctness, they could not before imagine. "Standard of the World" is so true of the Cadillac Eight that it sounds modest to those who understand. Best of all, you can get a Cadillac Eight soon. We are receiving an average of six cars a day from the factory and are now only a few days behind on orders.

FRIENDS PREDICT RE-ELECTION OF JUDGE FARMER

Claim Vandalia District Partisan Fight in Favor of Bundy Has "Kicked Back."

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., May 29.—[Special.]—Justice William M. Farmer's friends in the Vandalia Supreme court district now claim that his reëlection to the Supreme court bench is assured.

With the June judicial elections only one week away, they assert that the straight partisan fight against Justice Farmer in behalf of William F. Bundy of Centralia was "kicked back." They also express the belief that the issues interjected into the campaign as part of the attack upon Justice Farmer have reacted in favor of the justice.

Up to this period of the campaign, Justice Farmer is the only one of the four "old" judges in the high court whose reëlection seems to be at all doubtful.

United Behind Judge Carter.

Republicans and Democrats are united behind Justice Carter in the Chicago-Kankakee-Joliet district. Justice Cartwright, Republican, the ranking justice in point of service, has a modicum of opposition from Frank G. Plain of Aurora, who is making a so-called "independent" campaign against him, upon the theory, it is asserted, that he can get the solid wet support through northern Illinois.

The whole interest in the election, to be held on June 7, one week from Monday, seems to center in the Farmer-Bundy contest. Fifty-one Circuit judges downstate are to be elected on the same day, but in only two or three circuits is there any real fight.

Nonpartisanship or recognized ability has served to keep down the usual number of competing candidates. Thirty-eight out of fifty-one of the sitting judges are renominated, and most of them, if not all, will be reëlected.

Many Issues Advanced.

Justice Farmer has been assailed on the wet and dry issue and on the Bible in the public schools issue. He is assailed by the Bundy mwanagement because he held with the minority of the court in the opinion which sustained the woman suffrage act, notwithstanding the fact, as Justice Farmer's friends show, that he wrote the opinion which sustained the local option act in the first instance. He is also confronted with the fact that he joined in the opinion that a school teacher could not assert a right to read the Bible in the public schools in the face of instruction from superior school authorities in the district to the contrary, a matter which reached the Supreme court upon a minor case appealed from Scott county.

The school proposition as it is being used in the closing days of the campaign is similar in many ways to that employed in the finish of the fight made against Justice Cooke in the Quincy-Rock Island district contest three years ago

Candidate on His Record.

Justice Farmer's position, as he announces it, is that he is a candidate upon his record of nine years in the Supreme court, and that he has acted without fear or favor, and that he, or no other aspirant for Supreme court honors, is privileged to make an ante-election campaign upon the strength of promises or pledges as to how any issue will be disposed of in the Supreme court.

Mr. Bundy's friends are disclaiming responsibility for precipitation of the issues which have gone to the front. They are relying for his election upon his recognized standing, professionally and personally, and from a practical standpoint, upon the normal Republican majority said to exist at this time in the district.

Some of the best known of the present Circuit judges in the downstate circuits will quit the bench with the coming elections, either through voluntary retirement or through failure to land renominations under the system of convention nominations which prevailed.

LABOR BOOM FOR MANN NEWS TO UNION LEADER.

President Gompers Knows Nothing About Workingmen's Association Which Backs Congressman.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—[Special.]—Officials here today declined to discuss the efforts of the National Republican Association of Laboring Men to boom Congressman James R. Mann of Chicago for the Republican presidential nomination.

No one in Washington, including the officials of the American Federation of Labor, appears to know what the alleged association of laboring men consists of.

Samuel Gompers, president of the federation, said:

"I do not care to discuss Mr. Mann's candidacy at this time. As far as the National Republican Association of Laboring Men is concerned, it may do well as a political stalking horse. It is not connected with the American Federation of Labor in any sense."

Bar Association's Judicial Ticket.

These candidates have been recommended to the voters for the election on June 7 as the choice of the majority vote of the members of the Chicago Bar association, which announced its selections on May 20. The list is here reprinted for information of voters.

VOTE STRAIGHT, IS PLEA OF G. O. P.

Prizes Put Up at Roundup of Party Committeemen for Judicial Fight.

"Vote the ticket straight," was the theme of several speeches delivered yesterday at the roundup of Republican committeemen from the country towns of Cook county at the luncheon given by the Republican judicial candidates at the Bismarck hotel.

Cash prizes were offered by Coroner Peter M. Hoffman, Assessor William W. Weber, and County Commissioner William Busse for the precinct organization which would show the largest percentage of the normal vote polled on June 7.

John M. Cameron of Riverside presided. He said the Republican ticket was the best judicial ticket ever presented to the voters of Cook county, and that there was no reason why every Republican in Cook county should not walk up to the ballot box election day and vote a straight ticket.

"Going to Win."

"Soldiers in the trenches, we are going to win," asserted David F. Matchett. "The ticket is made up of men who have been vouched for by the communities in which they live as best fitted to serve on the bench of this county."

"There is not a candidate on the Republican ticket who ought to be scratched on election day by a Republican voter," said Judge Kickham Scanlan.

"I predict," said Carl R. Chindblom, "that if you elect the men on the Republican ticket they will do honor to the party and to the state by the quality of their service on the bench. And by that service they will make the Republican party stronger and so contribute to future successes when there will be more partisanship than there is in this campaign."

Judge Jesse A. Baldwin spoke for the entire ticket.

Robert E. Turney said in his opinion overconfidence and failure to get out the vote were the only dangers faced by the Republican candidates.

"If we get out 75 per cent of the vote instead of 31 per cent," he said, "the whole ticket will be elected."

Others Who Spoke.

Other candidates who spoke briefly were Oscar M. Torrison, Judge Merritt W. Pinckney, Thomas Taylor Jr., David M. Brothers, Charles M. Thomson, George E. Barrett, Edward H. Taylor, and Thomas J. Peden.

County Commissioners Joseph Carolan, William Busse, and George W. Miller, all from the country districts, appealed to the committeemen to bestir themselves on election day and try to get out the full vote.

A note of discord came up from the Sixth ward when the Progressive organization there, headed by Thomas D. Knight, refused to be amalgamated or assimilated by the Republicans. Resolutions were adopted indorsing the sitting judges of both parties and inveighing against the attempt of other Progressive leaders to deliver the Sixth ward organization to the Republican "bosses." Mayor Thompson also was commended for his stand for the nonpartisan judiciary.

Democrats Refer to Wilson.

The Democratic managing committee issued the campaign text book, which carries a prominent mention of President Wilson.

"Inspired by the leadership of the president of the United States," reads the text book, "and aware of its grave responsibilities, the Democracy of Cook county offers this ticket, composed of men who are of the type that means conscientious, public spirited, patriotic service in behalf of the people."

business—to make the town too hot to hold them."

Coroner Hoffman was talking while on his way to the office of Chief of Police Healey, whose coöperation he planned to ask in a campaign against the murder quacks. His interview with the chief achieved his purpose.

In future, Chief Healey promised, trained detectives will be put to work immediately when reports of deaths of women reach the police. Heretofore it has been the practice to accept brief reports from wagon men, who seldom take time to determine what might have been the cause of death.

The chief at once notified Capt. James O'Toole of the Chicago avenue station to report to him why Lieut. August M. White, on night duty at the station, released Dr. Shaver and her son early Thursday morning after Lieut. William Murphy had arrested them the previous evening and ordered them held.

The chief said it appeared Lieut. Murphy had good cause to arrest and hold them, especially in view of the developments in the case, and he did not understand why the woman and her son were released by Lieut. White.

Lieut. Murphy left the station and went to his home Wednesday midnight. It was after that that the woman and son were released. The following morning when Murphy reached the station and found the Shavers had been liberated he asked White why they had been freed. White said he freed them because there was no reason at that time for holding them.

Robertson Has Authority.

The chief pointed out that jurisdiction over hospitals and maternal homes rests with Dr. John Dill Robertson, the health commissioner.

"I will instruct my men, however, to work with the health department's investigators in every way," he said.

Coroner Hoffman amplified his remarks when he came from the interview with the police chief.

"I believe there are hundreds of midwives in Chicago who use their homes as maternity homes, in spite of the fact that they have no license from the city to conduct or maintain such a place," he said. "It is this kind of places that must be driven from our city.

"The patients are taken in as 'roomers' or 'maids' or 'domestics' as a blind. That is exactly what happened in the Johnson case. Dr. Shaver represented that the Johnson girl was employed in her home as a maid. In reality she was there as a patient, undergoing treatment that wound up in an illegal operation and her death from a revolver shot.

"If this kind of places must exist in our city it is the duty of the authorities to make the owners qualify and obtain licenses."

Coroner Hoffman will ask the corporation counsel for an opinion as to whether it is a violation of a city ordinance or statute for a doctor or a midwife to admit a patient to her home and allow the patient to remain there for a course of treatment.

Three Formally Booked.

Dr. Shaver, her son Clarence, and Harvey were formally booked on a charge of murder at the Chicago avenue station at 9 o'clock. On the arrest book the name of Marshall Hostetler, sweetheart of the dead girl, appears as complainant.

Dr. Shaver gave her age as 45, Harvey as 42, and Clarence Shaver 26. All of them were booked as unmarried. The notation "held without bail" was written after each name. Capt. James O'Toole obtained a mittimus for their removal to the county jail.

Another son of Dr. Shaver, older than Clarence, held a conference with her at the station. He avoided newspaper men and refused to discuss the case.

Bail Denied for Present.

Application for bail for Dr. Shaver and the others was made to Judge Dever in the Criminal court building by Attorney Irwin R. Hazen shortly before 11 o'clock. Assistant State's Attorney William H. Duval opposed the motion.

"I do not believe the court should even consider such a motion before the court has informed himself of the nature of all the evidence in this case," he said.

"I agree with the prosecutor," said Judge Dever. "I wish to hear every bit of evidence before I consider this matter of bail."

Judge Dever instructed Attorney Hazen to return to his courtroom next Tuesday morning.

Says Girl Was Robbed.

Marshall Hostetler, sweetheart of the victim, startled Lieut. Murphy at the Chicago avenue station when he declared a diamond lavalliere which he gave Anna Johnson a year ago was missing.

"There was a heart suspended and a diamond set in it," he said. "I called it 'Sweetheart's necklace.' Anna always wore it. She was wearing it when she went to the Shaver home. It was not around her neck when her body was removed. The body lay there six hours before the police arrived. Some one must have taken it. Anna thought the world of it. I just thought the police ought to know about the matter."

The police spent several busy hours looking for the lavalliere. When they found it what some sanguine detectives regarded as a new murder clew of the first water went to smash. The lavalliere was where the Johnson girl had left it—in the home of her Evanston employers, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Allen.

Crimson Shoes Found.

A pair of shoes belonging to Dr. Shaver, which were spotted in places, were turned over to Coroner's Chemist W. D. McNally for chemical analysis.

Dr. Shaver was a graduate of the "National Medical university," operated by Dr. L. D. Rogers in connection with his "National hospital" on Wells street a few years ago, it developed during the day.

If Dr. Shaver, who is a licensed physician, is convicted in connection with the death of Miss Johnson, Attorney Thomas S. Hogan, counsel for the state board of health, says he will prefer charges against her with the state board in an effort to have her license revoked.

Detective Sergt. George Scrivner took the shoes from the doctor's home.

Dr. Shaver was wearing the shoes in question when she was taken to the police station the night Miss Johnson's body was found, the police say.

JOIN CRUSADE AGAINST ABORTIONISTS

CORONER PETER M. HOFFMAN—Only 10 or 15 per cent of the abortions committed in Cook county ever come to public notice. Whenever the coroner's office hears of a case it is a mere accident. I hereby appeal to all civic bodies working for a safer and cleaner city to get behind this movement to suppress the loss of life due to criminal operations.

Abortions are the hardest kind of cases to prosecute. In the ten years I have been coroner I have successfully stowed away in the penitentiary at least twelve or fifteen abortionists. As a matter of fact, all the convictions put over in Cook county have been the work of my office under my régime. The first case I successfully prosecuted was perhaps eight years ago. The defendant was Lucy Hagenow, a midwife. She had been indicted twenty-five or thirty times previously, but always beat the case. She was 60 years old when she was committed to serve twenty years. She will probably die at Joliet.

Abortions are hard to prosecute because there is never a third party present. It is only the aborter and the victim. The victim dies and the aborter refuses to take the stand, and where is the state? The state cannot prove a case except if the defendant takes the stand, and the state is able to confuse him or her, and the jury sizes up the confusion as an admission of guilt.

I have requested Chief of Police Healey to start a school of instruction among policemen. My idea is to take one or two men from each station and instruct them on the proper method of cross questioning witnesses in murder cases and keep these men practically on reserve for this sort of crime, have them ready to serve day and night. I believe that many abortions could be proven if the properly instructed policeman grills the accused before they have a chance to get instructions from a lawyer.

Nobody ever comes to our office and tells us of an abortion of his or her own free will. It's up to the doctor, the relatives, or the undertaker. Sometimes, but seldom, one of these come to us with information because of fear of becoming involved. It is more often that we get information through gossip of the neighbors.

The abortion cases for this year total only twenty-four. But we know of many more. We cannot prove it because we have no evidence, and that a great number of cases, even appearing on our dockets, but not listed in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, have to be classed as "spontaneous" cases. I mean cases of known abortion where it cannot be proven up as an "induced" case, cases where those interested tell us that the victim fell or was otherwise injured.

And don't think that all of our abortion cases are unmarried young women. We have them at all stages of life. Most are married women. The race suicide idea seems to predominate.

THOMAS S. HOGAN, attorney for the state board of health—THE TRIBUNE is going after this thing in the proper way. THE TRIBUNE'S crusade against quack doctors did more good than all the other agencies combined. I will get behind any prosecution that THE TRIBUNE exposes. The state law is inadequate. It doesn't fit the crime, but I know THE TRIBUNE will make it interesting enough to drive the offenders out of business. I will take steps to revoke the licenses of any registered physicians shown to be abortionists. Only 5 per cent of the abortion cases ever come to public notice.

DR. HUGO E. BETZ, director of the Chicago Medical society—The community needs just such a crusade against abortionists as THE TRIBUNE is able to launch, and I will guarantee all possible aid from the medical society. Our organization has a special committee of three just to look after abortion cases, but the proof is hard to obtain.

NOTICE! GET OUT! ON SHAVER'S DOOR.

A REPORTER for THE TRIBUNE entered the office of Robert L. Davis, manager of the First National bank building, shortly before noon yesterday.

"Have you taken any——"

"O, yes, we already have ousted Clarence W. Shaver," he said. "We are of the opinion THE TRIBUNE furnished evidence enough to take such action. At any rate, he won't come back here. We went down there early and have now in our possession papers and other belongings we think are his. It is possible other steps may be taken regarding that office. From what I hear, though, I am reasonably sure none others in that suite had knowledge of what was going on. Those left there, although subtenants, I am sure, had nothing to do with Shaver's private affairs."

Early in the morning the following notice was posted on the doors leading to Shaver's office:

MASS OF BILLS ON VITAL ISSUES ALREADY DEAD

Nearly Forty Measures with Powerful Backing Doomed in the Legislature.

Springfield, Ill., May 29.—Nearly forty measures that have attracted unusual attention and that have been urged with extraordinary persistency have been killed by the legislature. As the probabilities are that the legislative session will last two or three weeks longer, this number probably will be increased.

Included in the list of the more important measures which have met defeat are bills and resolutions which have had the backing of some of the most prominent organizations and societies throughout the state.

One of the strongest fights to meet with failure was made in support of the proposition of a constitutional convention. The Illinois constitutional convention league worked for years upon this matter and at the outset of the session leaders in the movement were confident of success. The resolution failed in the house to receive the required two-thirds vote.

Amending Clause Bill Lost.

The proposition to amend the amending clause of the constitution was urged by Gov. Dunne and was advocated by a strong contingent. It, too, has gone into the discard. Along with it has gone the resolution granting full suffrage to women, the initiative and referendum, and the proposal for the initiative on legislative measures. Out of the lot the tax amendment was the one to meet with the favor of the lawmakers.

All the "wet" and "dry" measures were defeated. As against the anti-saloon advocates and the liberals the conservative element held the balance of power, with the result that the liquor laws were left unchanged.

The efficiency and economy commission, created two years ago with a view to remodeling the system of state government, reported to the present legislature a series of bills designed to place the state government upon a basis following closely the system employed in the national government. Practically all of these measures are admittedly dead.

The two bills most earnestly advocated by organized labor in the state have fallen by the wayside. The house this week killed the women's nine hour bill. The child labor bill remains on the house calendar, but the national child labor committee has withdrawn support since the bill was amended. The prospects of passage have materially diminished.

Rail Campaign Dead.

The "campaign of candor" inaugurated by the railroads for an increase in passenger fare rates to 2½ cents a mile has come to an end.

The fifty car limit bill urged by railroad employés is on the house calendar, but is far from secure.

Among the measures in which the citizens of Chicago have evinced especial interest that have gone down to defeat in one way or another were the bills providing for nonpartisan judicial elections, nonpartisan municipal elections, and the Cook county civil service bill. The measure providing for nonpartisan municipal elections still holds a place on the house calendar, but with no prospect of advancement.

The boxing bill met death on roll call in the house. There is no prospect that the racing bill will make any progress.

Legislation looking toward state control of private banks is considered another dead issue.

L. V. L. URGES PASSAGE OF TWO ECONOMY BILLS.

Fears Measures on Prisons and Printing Will Not Survive Closing Rush in Legislature.

A saving of $300,000 to the state of Illinois can be effected if two bills are passed by the legislature, according to a statement issued yesterday by the Legislative Voters' league. They are those creating a state board of prison administration and a responsible state printing department. The league fears that unless action is taken to urge special consideration of the bills they will be jammed out in the rush to adjourn.

The prison bill was introduced by Senator Manny, who submitted figures showing that under the control of the state boards each prisoner costs $208 annually, while the annual cost of inmates of state charitable institutions is only $156 each. The measure was tried out on passage in the senate last week, but mustered only twenty-two votes, four short of the necessary constitutional number, but Mr. Manny has asked for a reconsideration of the bill and will try to get action on it this week.

The league contends $100,000 could be saved every year by the enactment of a law creating a superintendent of printing to have have full charge of printing and binding as well as purchase and distribution of materials.

THE SCENIC LINE OF THE WORLD

There are 350,000 children

in Chicago alone who live in apartment buildings with almost no opportunity for the good, wholesome, outdoor exercise and play so essential to proper physical development and growth.

Robust manhood and womanhood is the surest foundation of happiness and success. It must be developed during youth. In large cities lack of sufficient playgrounds and the necessity for avoiding undesirable associates make this a serious problem for parents to solve.

It was especially to meet this condition that the

was designed along scientific lines by experienced engineers.

It has solved the problem; you see them everywhere; the children like them because they go fast, and with but little effort—just enough to bring into gentle, healthy action every muscle of the body—yet makes play out of it instead of work.

Not a push car

The Skudder car is an entirely new idea. It's as far ahead of other "go" toys as the automobile is ahead of the buggy.

The child rides all of the time, simply shifting the weight of the body from one foot to the other to make it go; so easy a 3-year-old can run it. Ball bearings, rubber tires.

A college athlete writes: "I am convinced that it will do more for the physical development of the coming generation than any other one agency, for it gives just the kind of exercise most needed at an age when it will do the most good."

Marquette Manor is the center of the great Southwest Side. On every side are great industries, built-up residence sections, many business centers and hundreds of thousands of population. It is miles within the city limits. It is intersected by 63d St. with its car line and 59th St. with another car line. It is bounded by Western Ave. and Kedzie Ave., both of which streets have car lines. It is only 40 minutes by car line from the Loop, yet it is not dependent on the Loop for its future greatness and value.

Marquette Manor Is Chicago's Greatest Individual Real Estate Enterprise

The manner in which this subdivision has been developed has increased the value of property all around it. We have spent $2,000,000 on Marquette Manor. It is a city in itself—a section of Chicago in which everyone should be interested—a subdivision of which Chicago may well be proud.

Every one who has purchased Marquette-Manor property has made money. There have been a hundred resales of Marquette-Manor property where the profits have ranged from $100 to $40,000 a lot. Just think of this! We could raise the price of Marquette-Manor lots 30% today—where they really belong—and still sell out this subdivision in a short time.

LAST week was an eventful one in a real estate and building way, the showing, as a whole, probably being the best of any week of the present year. It is true the sale of the Tacoma building, the feature of the week's market, did not approach in magnitude that of the Fine Arts building several weeks ago, but, taken in connection with a generally free movement of outside property, included in which were a number of unusually interesting transactions involving in some instances building projects of a highly important character, a surprisingly good showing was made.

When it is further considered that the showing was made in the face of a tieup in the building trades and generally disturbed business conditions resulting from the German complications, it furnishes striking evidence of the really great strength of the market and the confidence of the investing public in Chicago land and buildings.

Building Projects Encourage.

It certainly is encouraging to note the announcement that all the financial arrangements have been made for the construction of a big hotel of the Ritz-Carlton type on Sheridan road, which with the furnishings and land will represent an investment of approximately $1,700,000, and also the proposed construction of six thirty-six apartment buildings in Oak Park to cost around $750,000. This is good enough without the additional announcement that ten other projects of a similar character are under consideration, taking in Evanston and several of the populous outlying residential districts of Chicago. In addition to this, subdividers report an improved market, so that all along the line there seems to be much doing, despite complaints heard here and there that it is only a trading market.

Tacoma Sale of Interest.

The sale of the Tacoma building at the northeast corner of Madison and La Salle streets by James R. Walker to the University of Chicago for $1,040,000 was of unusual interest for several reasons. A unique interest attaches to the property because it generally has been regarded as the first steel skeleton construction building to be erected in Chicago. This honor, however, is also claimed for the Home Insurance building at Adams and La Salle streets, erected in 1884. This building was designed by W. L. B. Munday of Jenney, Munday & Jensen.

Not taking the building into consideration, the sale was at the rate of $128.71 a square foot and $10,297 a front foot for the Madison street frontage, and $13,000 for the La Salle street frontage. The board of review valued the property at $1,086,172, of which $200,000 is in the building.

Wonder of Its Day.

The latter is a thirteen story and basement structure on a lot fronting 101 feet on Madison street and 80 feet on La Salle street. At the time of its construction in 1888 it was looked upon as a veritable wonder in a building way. It was designed by Holabird & Roche and much public interest was aroused when the plans for its construction were first announced. The first story of the building is occupied by stores and the upper floors by offices, many of which have been occupied by the same tenants since the erection of the building.

The sale was subject to a mortgage of £103,000 held by the Scottish Provident institution of London, made in 1898 for fifteen years at 4 per cent interest. It was renewed in 1915 for a term of ten years, with prepayment privileges, at 4¾ per cent. It is stated that an offer of $1,350,000 was made and refused for the property within the last few years. The sale was negotiated by Albert L. Strauss, the university being represented in the transaction by Wallace Heckman, its counsel and business manager.

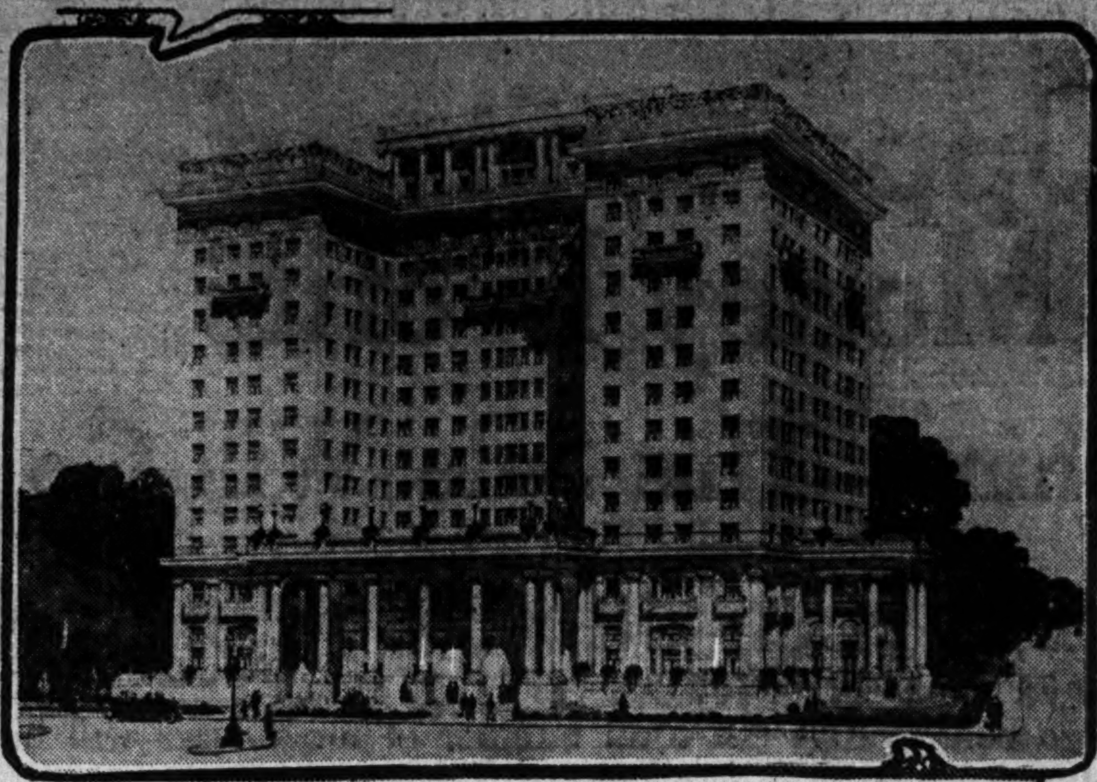
Part of Walker Estate.

This property, together with the property at the southwest corner of Van Buren street and Wabash avenue and at the southeast corner of Harrison and Dearborn streets, was until recently owned in undivided half interests by James R. Walker and the Wirt Walker estate. A division of these interests was recently made whereby James R. Walker took over the Tacoma building in settlement for his interest in the two other properties.

The purchase is looked upon as a good one for the university, which, it will be recalled, owns the opposite corner at the northwest corner of Madison and La Salle streets, now a part of the site of the Hotel La Salle under a long term lease on the basis of a valuation of $142 a square foot on a 4 per cent capitalized basis.

In the present transaction Noble B. Judah of Judah, Willard, Wolf & Reichman and Charles L. Allen of Herrick, Allen & Martin attended to the legal details. A. G. Hines, who has been the agent of the building since its erection, will continue in charge under the direction of the new owners.

De Luxe Hotel Designed for Social Purposes.



THE proposed new north side hotel is stated to be designed particularly for social uses, and is expected to set a new standard for structures of this kind in the west. It is stated that $500,000 is to be expended on the two lower stories to permit the most elaborate balls and banquets to be given without intrusion on the regular guests of the hotel. The entire second floor is to be given up to this purpose. On the west side of the building a large banquet room extends from the north to the south wall, so arranged that any desired part may be set apart from the rest of the room to suit the number to be served. The middle of the floor is to be given over to the ballroom and the east end to reception and dressing rooms and smaller ballrooms. The rooms on the nine floors given up to guests will be so arranged that a number of private bedrooms, from two to ten, may be grouped around a large living room, fronting either north or south. On the east side the room for general family purpose is to be double that on the west side. The purpose is to decorate each suite to suit the occupant's taste, the idea being to provide a town house with all the comforts of a hotel, on the Ritz-Carlton plan. On the roof is to be a two story structure to house the private servants of the guests on the upper floor. Below this a great playroom. The hotel is to occupy practically all the plot of ground facing south, 286 feet on Sheridan road and 175 feet east on the new drive, with terraces on the west and sun balconies.

Subdividers Continue Busy Despite Rains.

IN the face of a rainy week, sales in the subdivisions continued good, according to reports from subdividers. One south side subdivision reports an aggregate sale of 421 lots.

W. F. Kaiser & Co. say that sales continue to be normal in the Metropolitan subdivision, but do not report much activity in their northwest side properties.

The sales in Koester & Zander's Forty-eighth avenue property were about the same last week as during the previous week. The activity in this section continues, and it is reported that one builder will erect twenty houses near Forty-eighth and Diversey avenues during the summer months.

Thomas Hulburd will build a dozen or more houses in Oak Park on Austin avenue. It is understood that Austin avenue will be paved to North avenue, on which street the car line will be extended as far as Austin avenue. The southwest corner of North and Austin avenues has been sold by Biggs Bros. for a reported consideration of $10,000.

William H. Britigan, manager of Marquette Manor, says that his sales for the week ending May 27 have been in excess of $90,000. In commenting on the condition of the market for subdivision property, Mr. Britigan says:

"I have never seen such a stretch of bad weather as we have had during this month. Although our total volume of sales has not been affected, I am certain that the weather has operated strongly against a greater volume and that it has had a bad effect on the general subdivision market. With good weather in June, and with the financial market in the condition in which it is, I am sure that Chicago real estate—and particularly subdivision property—will be in great demand by investors."

OAK PARK TAKES A LEADING PLACE IN FLAT BUILDING

Labor Troubles Fail to Cut Down Construction Permit Record.

Chicago builders do not seem to be disturbed seriously in their building plans by the present trouble in the building trades, if one is to judge by the number of new and important building projects being announced. Last week made a truly remarkable showing in this respect, and it was emphasized by the figures of the city building department in the way of permits issued, which indicated a marked increase over the corresponding week a year ago. It may be that all of these permits do not represent work actually being done, but they certainly evidence the intentions of a large and growing number of people in a building way, and it may also be added that much work is also being done.

A remarkable showing was made in the way of proposed apartment house construction, in which Oak Park held first place with the announcement of plans for the construction of six thirty-six apartment buildings to cost about $750,000, not including the cost of the land.

First of Ten Transactions.

The transaction has a peculiar interest for the reason that it is said to be the first of ten transactions of a similar character taking in locations in Evanston and several outlying parts of Chicago.

The Oak Park deal covers a plot with a frontage of 333 feet on both Humphrey and Austin avenues, between Lake and Ontario streets, having a depth between the two avenues of 342 feet, exclusive of a twenty foot alley.

The property was purchased from Charles K. Offield and Henry F. Towle of Offield, Graves & Offield, attorneys, by John C. Snowhook. The consideration is withheld, but the property is said to have been held at about $100,000.

There will be three of the proposed buildings on Humphrey avenue and three on Austin avenue, each of a high type of construction, and which are expected to cost about $125,000 each. Each will contain twenty-one apartments of four rooms, six of six rooms, six of three rooms, and three of five rooms. There will be a court 40x100 feet, with a twenty foot building line. The apartments are expected to rent at from $35 to $65 a month.

Built on Most Modern Lines.

Each apartment will contain a sun parlor, with a dressing closet, with an in-a-dor bed, giving each of the apartments two of these beds. Plans for the building are being prepared by Ira C. Saxe. The sale of the property was negotiated by Paul V. Smith & Co.

As stated before, the Oak Park transaction is said to be the first of ten similar deals, involving the construction of large high grade apartment buildings in various parts of Chicago and in some of the suburban towns.

Another forty-five apartment building is planned for Oak Park, to cost in the neighborhood of $150,000. It will occupy a lot 125x216 feet at 811-17 Lake street, being 149 feet west of Oak Park avenue. The apartments will contain four and five rooms and it is expected to have a gross annual rent of $26,700. In connection with the construction of the building S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten a bond issue loan to Lyman Furbeck of $110,000, running six years at 6 per cent.

WILSON AVENUE PROPERTY SHOWS REMARKABLE VALUE.

The Cuneo property at the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Wilson avenue, 200x150 feet, and which Wilson avenue, 200x150 feet, and which is said to have a gross annual rent of about $33,000, is reported to be held at a net annual rent of $40,000 for a long term lease. This evidences in a striking manner the marvelous advance in values in that section during the last few years.

An important deal on Milwaukee avenue involving the construction of a store, office, theater, and hall building to cost about $150,000 was closed during the week. It comprised the sale by the Church of the Resurrection to Frank F. Architect Henry L. Newhouse has prepared plans for the building, which is to be three stories. It is stated a department store is figuring on leasing 125 feet of frontage in the proposed building. The sale was negotiated by Louis H. Shapiro of S. W. Winefield & Co., while E. J. McArdle and H. C. Levinson and Leo Hoffman attended to the legal details. Winefield & Co. will have charge of the building.

Another notable deal in Lake Forest acres was reported closed last week in the purchase by Frank E. White, vice president of Armour & Co. of a tract of 200 acres on the west side of Telegraph road, four miles northwest of Lake Forest, where he will establish a country home. It is said two other transactions of much importance have also been closed there.

Leases and Loans.

COMPARATIVELY few building business leases of an important character were closed during the week. The situation as regards both store and office space is none too good, although better than it was three mnths ago.

The most important transaction of the week in this field was the lease by the Westinghuse Electric and Manufacturing company from the trustees of the Marshall Field estate of about 10,000 square feet of space on the twenty-first floor of the new Conway building at Washington and Clark streets. The lease is understood to be for a term of ten years at a reported term rent of $180,000. It is stated the Westinghouse company will take possession of the leased premises as soon as the work of fitting up and equipping the offices is completed. The company also has leased about 1,300 feet of space on the same floor. Among the corporations which have taken space in the building are the Chicago Mill and Lumber company, Paepke-Leicht Lumber company, Close Bros. & Co., White Pass and Yukon route, Calvert Lithographic company, Wirebounds corporation, Calumet Brick company, Southwestern Milling company, Gugler Lithographing company, Flasch Chimney company, A. L. Webster company, Cleveland Wire Springs company, Illinois Brick company, Adams Express company, Allis Brick company, American Equipment company, Retail Credit company, American Oven and Machine company.

Another interesting transaction was the lease by S. W. Straus & Co. to the Hotel Sherman company of the store at 104 West Madison street in the Straus building at the northwest corner of Madison and Clark streets for a term of five years at a reported term rent of $58,500.

The eight story and basement building at 520-26 South Canal street has been leased by Jennie McCorkle and others to Janeway & Carpinger for a term of four years from May 1, 1916, at a term rent of $55,000 for the storage of wall paper.

E. B. Beatty of Ben I. Greenebaum's office has leased for Emil Morris to the Newark Shoe Stores company the store and basement at 9139 Commercial avenue, South Chicago, for a term of ten years from Aug. 1, for a reported term rent of $30,000. Mark Levy & Bro. represented Mr. Moris in the transaction.

Louis Birkenstein has given a trust deed to J. Roberts Foulke on the property on Ontario street, 361 feet west of Orleans street, north front, 130x100 feet, as security for a loan of $50,000 for five years at 5 per cent interest.

Frank J. Petra, exclusive agent for the River Highlands subdivision, registered under the Torrens system eighty acres bounded by Joliet avenue and the Desplaines river, and Forty-third and Forty-fifth streets, for Levy Mayer, Sarah Meyer, and Joseph Rosenbaum, trustees.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $200,000, five years, at 5 per cent, to Eugene H. De Bronkart, secured by a two-sevenths interest in the property in Michigan avenue, 141 feet north of Randolph street, 27x130 feet, east front, the southeast corner of Clark and Monroe streets, 43x90¼ feet, and other property.

CITY AD MEN TO HOLD OFF THE STREET FIELD DAY.

The Off the Street club is familiar to most Chicagoans. It is located at 1346 Van Buren street, and its aim is to furnish the poor children of Chicago's crowded districts a place of amusement and keep them from the dangers of the street. The Advertising Association of Chicago every year gives a benefit field day at the White Sox park, the proceeds of which go to the maintenance of this club. This year the event will be held June 19, and the feature will be a ball game with the St. Louis Advertising association. As a ball game it won't be up to the big league mark, but every one who buys a ticket and attends will be hitting into home run land for the kids of poverty.

ACRE DEALS ARE MART FEATURES

De Luxe Addition of 100 Lots to Be Subdivided in La Grange.

Several noteworthy acre deals were reported during the week, one taking in La Grange on the southwest and another North Evanston on the north. Frederick H. Bartlett was the purchaser of the La Grange property, which comprises forty-five acres within the corporate limits of the town.

It has been platted and recorded under the name of the De Luxe Addition to La Grange. It is limited to 100 lots, the smallest having a frontage of 80 feet and the largest 110 feet. All the improvements, including pavements, ornamental light posts, pergolas, formal garden, shrubs, and other decorative features will be put in at a stated cost of over $160,000.

The property is within about a block of the Country club, and it is proposed to make of it an extra high grade residence subdivision.

Buy Sixty Acre Tract.

McIntosh Bros., subdividers, are to open a subdivision in North Evanston, having just closed the purchase of a tract of sixty acres from Allen G. Mills. The property is about one block west of the present city limits of Evanston and has several hundred feet of north frontage on Central street. The consideration is withheld, but the $32.50 of revenue stamps on the document, together with an incumbrance of $19,077, would give an indicated consideration of about $41,000.

Title to the property was taken by Alma C. Hansen, and it is understood the purchasers plan to subdivide the property and place it on the market at once. It is stated that it is thought this tract, together with other desirable acres in that locality, are likely to be annexed to the city of Evanston. Schrei & Read were the brokers.

California Avenue Deal.

A tract of a little over nine acres at the northeast corner of West Fifty-fifth street and California avenue has been conveyed by Caroline O. Jones to Karel Janovsky for an indicated consideration of $13,000; also same to same 4¾ acres at northwest corner of Fifty-fifth street and Washtenaw avenue for an indicated consideration of $8,500.

R. A. Cepek, the subdivider, has sold to Albert Cermak a tract of eighty-four lots at the northeast corner of Belmont and Laramie avenues for an indicated consideration of $25,000, subject to an incumbrance of $20,000.

A tract of thirty-four lots at the southwest corner of Addison street and Central Park avenue has been sold by Ethel S. E. Lewis to Ald. Oliver L. Watson for an indicated consideration of $13,000.

BIG PROFIT ON SMALL DEAL.

A profit of $2,500 in two weeks on an investment of $15,000 is not bad. Eugene Hildebrand and Julius Breuhaus are said to have made this turn last week in the sale of 100x225 feet of vacant at 3731-39 Pine Grove avenue to Harris, Kusel & Co., builders, for $17,500. It was stated the purchasers will improve with a high grade twelve flat building.

"The names were selected with no purpose of attaching publicity or special blame upon any of them, but with a view to perfecting service on a certain number, one of which could be selected in a proceeding to test the question of the repeal of the misdemeanor section applicable for failure to file a schedule by a court higher than the trial court, it being the opinion of the assistants assigned to the tax department, from their research on the subject, that the section in question has not been repealed and is still in force and effect.

"There was no intention on the part of the state's attorney's office to make public the list in question, and it was only after notice was given to the press by certain persons served that this office thought it advisable to issue this statement with the list of names attached thereto."

Errors in List Suggested.

The city news bureau, in sending out the list, says:

"In the list given out by the state's attorney's office there are evidently several errors. Those in charge say the names as given out are those taken by them from the records and are being used by them as a basis on which to work. The name of E. J. Mayerstadt" is evidently E. J. Magerstadt. "E. McVeigh" is presumably Eames MacVeagh, but the list is the official one."

Mayor Thompson has failed to file a schedule of his personal property, the reports in the assessors' office show. He has until tomorrow, however, to file before the assessors will impose a penalty of 50 per cent. The value of the mayor's personal property has been estimated at $30,000 by the assessors. The penalty is an assessment of $15,000 additional.

"I don't remember filing a schedule this year," said the mayor. "I just finished a very strenuous campaign and I think I neglected it."

DON'T WAIT TO SWAT THAT FLY! DANGER IN DELAY

Expert Estimates One Pest Can Produce 5,598,000,000,000 in Season.

The multiplication of one fly in a single season would make a belt of flies extending 880 times around the earth.

Ways to Fight the Fly

- Screen the porches and windows.
- Trap the fly before it gets in.
- Keep the back yard clean.
- Destroy the breeding places.

Mayor Thompson's proclamation of June 7-12 inclusive as "fly prevention week" does not imply that you should allow the fly to propagate in the interval between now and the period specifically assigned by the mayor for fighting the fly. The mayor gave advance notice in order to allow for the necessary preparation for lecture courses in the public schools and other organization work.

In the meantime all good residents of Chicago will swat and trap the fly and destroy his breeding places today with the same degree of energy that they will use in fly prevention week and thereafter. It is planned by the Clean Chicago federation to make the coming campaign so effective that it will be found desirable to make it an annual event for the purpose of cutting down the summer disease and death rates.

Earlier the Better.

The earlier the work is started the more effective it will be. Dr. Howard, the entomologist at Washington, has estimated that the multiplication of flies from one wintered over female between April 15 and Sept. 10 would result in 5,598,720,000,000 adult flies, of which one-half are females.

Laid end to end, he computes that these flies would reach 880 times around the world.

How Egg Develops.

Starting on April 15 with a wintered over female, which on that day lays 120 eggs, and following it through six months of fly season to Sept. 10, Dr. Howard arrives at the following table:

April 15, the wintered-over female fly lays 120 eggs.
May 1, 120 adults issue, of which 60 are females.
May 10, 60 females lay 120 eggs each.
May 28, 7,200 adults issue, of which 3,600 are females.
June 8, 3,600 females lay 120 eggs each.

RILEY THANKS AUTHORS FOR DISTINCTION GIVEN HIM.

Hoosier Poet, in Letter to Midland Society, Calls "We Westerners Mainstay of Old Ideals."

Nearly a score of the "mainstays of our country's old ideals"—at least that is what James Whitcomb Riley of Indiana calls them—gathered at the Hotel La Salle yesterday noon for the May luncheon of the Society of Midland Authors. After the luncheon the following letter from Mr. Riley was read:

"You do me great honor in choosing me to head the Society of Midland Authors, an honor I dearly appreciate in view of the fact that we 'westerners,' more than all others, must now compose the mainstay of our country's old ideals—the simple and lovable virtues which have been our blessed American heritage. And so, in expressing appreciation to you, I want to emphasize the high, yet lowly, mission that is ours."

Among those present at the luncheon were: H. C. Chatfield-Taylor, president; Douglas Malloch, secretary; Harriet Monroe, Edwin Balmer, William McHarg, Wallace Rice, John M. Stahl, Agnes Lee Freer, Clara E. Laughlin, and Bert Leston Taylor of THE TRIBUNE.

RAINS INCREASE MOSQUITO PERIL FOR THE SUMMER

Crusaders Against Pest Appalled at Chances for Breeding.

Experienced mosquito fighters are appalled at the prospect of a mosquito plague this summer in districts which are not taking precautions. Owing to the continued rains every possible breeding place of the mosquito has been so thoroughly soaked that the number of spots needing attention has been multiplied.

As soon as the sun shines again, watch for the places that fail to dry up promptly. Then get quick action on them with the oil sprayer and repeat the dose of oil every ten days or oftener if the film is broken by showers or wind.

Rank grass sometimes hides pools of water that make ideal harbors for wrigglers. Cut all such grass as closely as possible and apply oil. If oil does not form a good film owing to the vegetation, use larvacide composed of nicotine solution to kill the wrigglers.

Special Precaution in Parks.

Special precautions are being taken in the parks to prevent the mosquitoes from developing in the pools and lagoons. Opinions differ as to the value of fish in destroying the larvæ of mosquitoes, but the difficulty of using oil in park lagoons owing to the resultant spoiling of clothing of boatmen has made it necessary to take a chance with the fish. Oiling will be used in the south parks wherever it is found practicable.

"The fight against the mosquito in Chicago is a most praiseworthy one from the standpoint of health and comfort," commented Supt. J. F. Foster of the south park board. "We shall be pleased to give practical aid in it throughout the park system."

Rains Break Oil Films.

The continued rains have made the problem of fighting the mosquito unusually difficult for the reason that as soon as a film of oil has been laid it has been destroyed by a fresh downpour of rain or by a high wind, which is almost as bad as rain in its effects on oil film. One of the indispensable requisites of an oil film is that it must remain unbroken if it is to be of value in preventing mosquitoes

MUSIC FESTIVAL COMES TO CLOSE

MISS HEMPEL PLEASES.

BY RONALD WEBSTER.

The north shore music festival came to an end yesterday with two concerts at the Patten gymnasium. Its conclusion was the cause of much rejoicing. Carl Kinsey, who has steered so many ventures into oratorio away from the rocks of financial deficit, announced that he will not have to dip into the guarantee fund.

The afternoon session was devoted to children. Fifteen hundred of them from the schools of Evanston and the north shore sang numerous patriotic songs, one of which entitled "Hats Off," by Miss Nellie Poorman, has been suggested as a proper opening number for the symphony concerts next fall.

Music for Children.

Most successful of the children's performances, however, was Percy Fletcher's musical setting to "The Walrus and the Carpenter." This cantata was given for the first time at the Evanston festival in 1912. It is charming music, not gleaned from hymn books or in the least suggestive of Sunday school.

The children of the chorus were interested in it; so interested, in fact, that the difficulties became nothing.

Possibly this was the reason for Miss Sophie Braslau's choice of songs—with the exception of her first offering, which concerned itself with the feelings of one of Donizetti's scarlet ladies.

Miss Braslau is an admirable singer, with a true contralto voice, not especially warm or brilliant, but altogether agreeable.

Children Sing.

The children also sang the choruses from Mendelssohn's music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and concluded with "The Star Spangled Banner."

Miss Frieda Hempel, the coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan, was the chief excitant of the evening performance. She sang, of course, a florid and thoroughly effective aria from the Italian operatic repertory, "Ernani, Involami," from Verdi's "Ernani," to which she added with wonderful enunciation a little slumber song by Mozart. It was her performance of Strauss' "Blue Danube" waltz, sung in Italian, by the way, which brought the audience to her feet.

Miss Hempel and John Alden Carpenter's charming "Perambulator Suite" were the sensations of the first half of the concert.

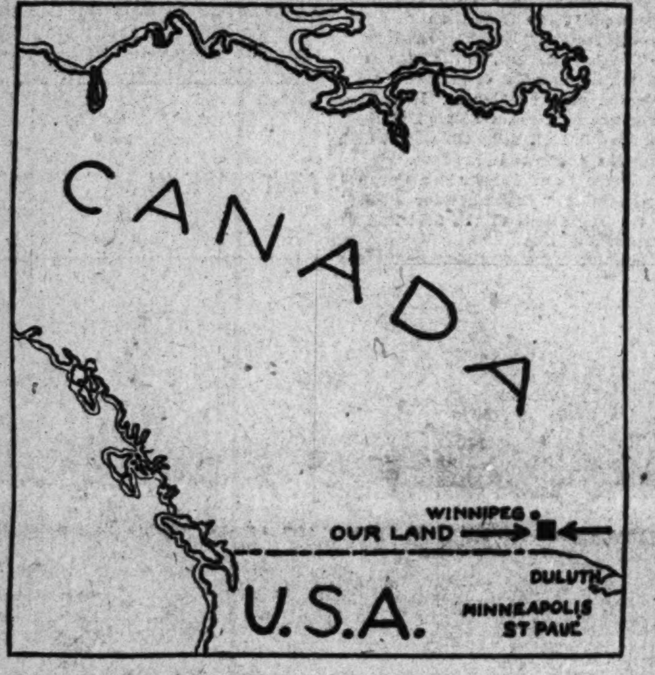
WAR HAS CREATED THIS INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY

A Wonderful Location



This property is on the main line of railroad between Chicago and Winnipeg. You can board one of the finest trains in the world in Chicago and get off right at our land.

You will find schools, telephones, rural free delivery of mail and other conveniences. One hour distant is the greatest grain market in the world—the rapidly growing city of Winnipeg—which is only 68 miles north of the United States line.

The advantages of the location are indicated by the following table of freight rates on wheat from Winnipeg and from the grain districts farther west.

Place.	Freight 100 lbs.	Per bushel.	Difference.
Edmonton, Alberta	25 cents	15 cents	9 cents per bushel, or
WINNIPEG, Manitoba	10 cents	6 cents	$1.80 per acre per yr.
Lethbridge, Alberta	23 cents	13 4-5 cents	7 4-5 cents per bushel
Battleford, Saskatche'n.	24 cents	14 2-5 cents	8 2-5 cents per bushel

There is a similar pro-rata difference in all other freight rates in favor of the Manitoba resident.

Big Market Near By

The enormous advantage to the farmer of the proximity of Winnipeg is shown by these facts concerning the possibilities of that city as a market for foodstuffs.

The present population of Winnipeg is estimated at 256,000. Even reducing this figure to a round 200,000, the annual food requirements are startling. It would take 2,107,305 bushels of wheat to supply flour, etc., a milk supply of 10.615,530 quarts, 9,553,986 pounds of butter for table and cooking purposes, five million dozen eggs, 2,453,740 pounds of cheese. Winnipeg is a great meat-eating city and consumes annually forty-two and a half million pounds, representing approximately 37,437 beeves, 60,000 hogs and 40,000 sheep. The supply of vegetables required is unlimited; Winnipeg uses a million bushels of potatoes annually, and peas, beans, carrots, turnips, cabbages and table greens in like ratio.

There is scarcely an item in the long list of essential food requirements which cannot be produced by the Manitoba farmer, and of a quality superior to any of the importations which at present balance the huge difference between the demand and the total supply available in the province.

Taxes

There is a feeling of hesitancy about investing in Canada on the part of some Americans who fear that Canada will be taxed for the war in Europe.

In the first place Great Britain does not possess the power to tax Canada. She has never attempted to tax any colony since the little event known as "The Boston Tea Party" in 1776.

The only tax on land in Canada is for roads, bridges, schools, etc. Under the Mnicipal Assessment Act all buildings, improvements, equipment, live stock, etc., are EXEMPT from taxation in rural districts. This brings farm property down to a straight "single tax" basis, the land only being assessable and only on the same valuation as adjoining unimproved lands of the same class. In other respects the burden of taxation is, as far as possible, removed from the shoulders of the farmer.

Americans who are property owners can vote at all elections but the National election.

An Example of a Business Farmer

Harris L. Emmert came to Winnipeg from Sibley, Iowa, one of the richest farming districts in the United States, where he had farmed all his life. He at once recognized the soil of the Red River Valley as being far superior to the famed corn soil of Iowa. The H. L. Emmert Land Company is now farming 21,000 acres of land near Winnipeg, concerning which General Manager H. E. Stanley made this statement:

> "Although we hire all our work done even to the supervising, our books show an annual profit of 20 per cent on the investment. Many manufacturers think they are lucky to make half of that. I predict that within ten years every acre of land within thirty miles from Winnipeg will be worth $200.00 an acre, when its real agricultural possibilities are fully realized."

THIS IS YOUR GREAT OPPORTUNITY IF YOU HAVE THE MONEY TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF IT. WRITE OR WIRE ME AND BE "SHOWN."

Canada is in a peculiar position. Its farmers never have been as prosperous—never have been able to get such prices for their crops—never have experienced such an unusual demand. The Canadian capitalist who has been holding large tracts of uncultivated lands, however, is today confronted with conditions not so favorable. He is land poor—a condition created by cessation of immigration and by an unusual demand for home capital in established commercial lines.

It is in behalf of such a man that I am offering ten 1,000 acre tracts of the finest wheat and mixed farming land in Manitoba at $30 an acre to individuals or syndicates.

This man is one of the leading public men of the Dominion. Years ago he acquired these 10,000 acres of A1 land within 30 miles of the city of Winnipeg—between Winnipeg and the American boundary, as shown by the map on this page.

He intended to hold this land until it would sell for $100 an acre, or one million dollars in all. (It is worth $100 an acre now on an income basis, and the adjoining property cannot be bought for less.) The tract is completely surrounded by improved farms of the type illustrated above. He is now forced to offer this splendid land at a bargain price for quick sale.

This land is close to markets. One can leave the two million dollar hotel in Winnipeg (240,000 population) in the morning—travel all over this 10,000 acre property by auto during the day, and be back at the hotel for dinner.

It touches the railway running from Winnipeg to St. Paul and Minneapolis, insuring extraordinary low freight rates and good service. The stations near the property are bordered by giant grain elevators.

The land itself is the typical black earth prairie of the Northwest that grows the most wheat and the best wheat in the world—and almost anything else you choose to plant in it. It is only 700 feet above the sea level and is a wooded, well watered country. The soil is of alluvial deposit, enriched by the decay of vegetable matter and leaf mould—far richer than the soil of the prairies West of Winnipeg, and far less subject to erratic climatic changes than the high plateau to the West.

PROFIT ON INVESTMENT OF $25,000....................................$112,000

It would be foolish and futile for me to make misstatements in this advertisement, for I am appealing to the shrewdest and most successful of the readers of The Tribune. I am appealing to those who have amassed money, and it is certain that no one is going to buy one of these 1,000 Acre Tracts without making a thorough personal investigation of every claim I make, consulting impartial experts and checking up in detailed and businesslike way the whole proposition. Therefore you need not take these figures with the customary grain of salt. They understate the case rather than overstate it.

These are cold, indisputable facts. They cannot be controverted. They will bear expert investigation. This land must be sold at once. We do not want to be bothered selling it in small tracts, and if we did sell it that way the price would be much more than $30 per acre. The land is a bargain at $100 an acre now—based upon its earning power and its proximity to the city of Winnipeg. It is not necessary that we sell in thousand acre tracts to individuals in every case. We will be glad to deal with clubs or syndicates of 3, 4 or 5 men who can buy as a unit and divide the land after it is paid for. I can secure competent management for you.

As there is only a limited amount of this land, inquiries will be handled in the order of their receipt. Since I have no salesman I will call personally on those interested, take them to visit the property and pay all expenses of the trip if the deal is not made. I invite the co-operation of established real estate dealers and land men. Write or wire

I Also Have a Few Choice 320 to 640 Acre Farms at Very Attractive Prices.

The Statistical Estimate Is Safe Because:—

1st—Wheat will average better than 90c per bu. instead of 80c as estimated and you should get at least 40% seed wheat which will bring a much higher price. Many Canadians averaged 30 bu. to the acre this year and got $1.50 per bu. for it.

2nd—After the first year you will raise and feed stock which will greatly increase the profits estimated.

3rd—You will produce other crops more profitable than wheat.

4th—On investigation you will find all good, well managed farms near by making 25% to 50% more than shown in above figures.

5th—This rich black land is within one hour's drive (over good automobile roads) from the city of Winnipeg, with 240,000 population, the Chicago of Canada, offering the highest market prices and with plentiful and cheap labor for farm work.

6th—Remember you are the judge and jury in this matter and if all these statements do not prove true on investigation, then we will pay all the expenses of your trip.

In short, the figures given simply show what any good business man can make this rich Manitoba soil yield him. Intelligent, diversified farming will increase the profits greatly. The land is so close to the big city of Winnipeg that dairying—always highly remunerative—may be engaged in.

Security Uninjured by War

You have heard the saying: "The best security on earth is the EARTH itself." The truth of this statement has been emphasized by the present war, which has sent security values down and farm values up.

The Winnipeg district of Manitoba, Canada, is the surest grain, vegetable, and hay country on earth, and the quality of its grain is conceded everywhere to be the best.

Alfalfa, Clover, Wheat, Oats, Barley, Potatoes, etc., are sure every year crops of highest quality, and the Manitoba farmers who are paying attention to cattle raising, poultry and dairy products are all getting rich.

Not a Cold Country

Cattle live out of doors the winter through near Winnipeg. Many farmers in that country carry 200 to 500 head of cattle through the winter. They do not, of course, have stable room or shelter for such a number. Their shelter is trees and straw stacks out in the field, and they thrive on it.

Cattle turned out in the central states through the entire winter would perish, due to the damp cold, while the dry cold of Canada does not hurt them, but develops a strong, healthy stock. This same condition accounts for lack of any insects or pests in Canada, injurious to plant life.

Wheat and other grain crops are being produced 2,000 miles northwest of Winnipeg; also in all latitudes of Europe north of Winnipeg.

The crop record of Manitoba, to be had from the Department of Agriculture at Winnipeg, shows a ten year average in wheat, oats, barley, clover and potatoes of 50 to 100% greater yield per acre than Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, or any of the best central farming states.

The following yields per acre from any of the well attended farms near Winnipeg are common:

25 to 35	bushels of wheat.	3 to 4	tons of clover.
75 to 110	bushels of oats.	300 to 700	bushels of potatoes.
40 to 70	bushels of barley.	300 to 1,000	bushels of turnips.
4 to 5	tons of Alfafa.	18 to 22	tons of corn fodder for ensilage.

Where Can You Beat It?

Keep in mind that land values depend upon location, especially with reference to proximity to a large city. Then consider this rich, black, perfect land, all within 30 miles of a city of 240,000 population, which, at its present growth, will have a million population before many years.

Then ask yourself where you can find a better investment than 1,000 acres of this productive soil at $30 per acre, payable $10,000 at time of purchase, $5,000 the second year (after harvest); $5,000 the third year (after harvest); $5,000 the fourth year (after harvest), and $5,000 the fifth year (after harvest).

You cannot find a better investment—more secure or more profitable.

If you have not $25,000 in ready money, join with your friends to finance the project and select a reliable farmer to manage the farm. If you are not in touch with one we are prepared to assist you in securing competent management. It may be worth noting that members of the syndicate who like fishing and hunting will find the farm a splendid place to spend their vacations.

This is even a safe investment for estates, as the natural increase in the value of the land, without farming it, will be more than 10% a year net for the next ten years, and the taxes will not exceed 10c per acre per year, or $1.00 for ten years. Land tax is very low in Canada and no tax on improvements.

Prompt action is necessary. We have cut the price below the market and are running this full page advertisement in The Chicago Tribune in order to turn this property into money at once. If you want in on the bargain write or wire at once.

VOLUNTEERS MAY BE CALLED OUT IN MEXICAN CASE

VILLA SUFFERS A BIG LOSS.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 29.—[Special.]—President Wilson has completed his ultimatum to the warring factions of Mexico—that unless they compose their differences and establish an orderly government, the United States will be compelled to undertake the task of pacifying the country.

If the United States intervenes, it is estimated it will take from one to two years to clean up Mexico and necessitate the sending of an army of 500,000 men there. Army officers believe the regular army, including the border forces, will be sent there first.

The border forces would be replaced by the national guard and a volunteer army raised. It would take about six months to raise and train the volunteers, which probably would replace the national guard at the border, releasing the militia for service in Mexico.

U. S. Stand Public Tuesday.

The president will submit his statement, which is about 1,500 words in length, to his cabinet on Tuesday. He intends to send it immediately thereafter to the leaders of each of the factions in Mexico and to make it public as an official statement of the policy the administration henceforth will pursue.

The ultimatum contains the implication that if order be not speedily restored in Mexico the United States will take whatever measures are necessary to quell the disturbances and rescue the Mexican people from their sufferings. As a last resort the United States will intervene with its army and navy to protect whatever relief measures are undertaken and to establish an orderly government.

The president and his advisers hope that extreme measures will not be necessary; that the factions, threatened with intervention by the United States, will come to terms among themselves and establish a provisional government which can be recognized.

Will Review Watchful Waiting.

In his statement to the Mexican leaders and the American people the president will review his policy of watchful waiting which was founded on the hope that the Mexicans would be able to work out their own salvation without outside interference. The strongest exposition of that policy was this utterance by the president in his Indianapolis speech:

"Have not European nations taken as long as they wanted and spilt as much blood as they pleased in settling their affairs and shall we deny that to Mexico because it is weak?"

With anarchy spreading, however, and the starvation of millions of people impending, the president has decided that the considerations involved in this expression of his policy of watchful waiting must yield place to humanitarian necessities. He now conceives it to be a higher duty to succor the millions oppressed by the factions fighting in the name of liberty.

The administration is giving every possible aid to the Red Cross, which is managing the work of Mexican relief. The organization has taken over the government warehouses at Galveston Laredo, and El Paso, for storage of the provisions which will be collected as a result of the president's appeal for funds and food for the starving Mexicans.

As soon as these shipments arrive at the Mexican border the question of protecting them from seizure by Mexican troops and bandits will arise. Secretary of State Bryan said today that the government will take whatever steps are necessary to insure delivery of the food supplies to the people who need them.

He declined to say what measures these would be, but it is known that the war department is preparing to furnish armed escorts for the shipments over the railroad from Vera Cruz to Mexico City and elsewhere.

How to Invade Mexico.

Members of the general staff of the army believe that it will take from one to two years of hard, consistent work on the part of the United States to clean up Mexico, in the event that President Wilson decides this country should attempt the work.

"If we had any military policy or an army of even respectable size," said one of the officers today, "the work would not be difficult. At it is, it will take at least six months to get it well started and an equal period to finish it, if it can be finished in that time."

This officer pointed out, however, that if the president merely attempts to get food into Mexico City the task will be much easier. Vera Cruz could be seized as a year ago, and an army sent with the food train to the capital. Under favorable conditions the trip should be made in less than a week. Under the most unfavorable it should not take more than a month.

Mexico No Easy Prey.

The general staff has no illusions about Mexico being easy to conquer at the present time because of the alleged lack of munitions in the various armies there.

"They have just as much ammunition as they ever had," said another officer today, "and if we go in and have to fight, they'll be able to put up a pretty stiff resistance for some time. Eventually, of course, the United States could cut off all their ammunition supplies, as well as other supplies.

"But there would be several big battles first, battles in which the Mexicans would prove themselves mighty good fighters, according to my way of thinking.

"No matter what course the president decides upon, if he attempts to send an army into Mexico he cannot leave the border unprotected. There are barely enough men there now to handle the situation as it should be handled.

Would Call Out Volunteers.

"I believe the first step should be to call for the services of those eligible under the Hay volunteer army law. This would permit the national guard to replace the army on the border, when the time arrives to send the latter over the border.

"Then the volunteers, without previous service, could be drilled and organized to relieve the militia when it becomes necessary to send it to the support of the regulars.

"It would take at least six months to get a volunteer army in shape to perform work such as will be needed in Mexico if we go in. But in six months' time the United States should be ready to meet the problems.

Strategy Necessary in Invasion.

"Undoubtedly the first strategic move is to seize all railroads and railroad centers after the Mexican forces are dispersed, and then work out from these centers with small columns.

"The Mexicans naturally would take to the hills, where they would put up a pretty clever game of warfare for some time. Gradually, however, they could be rounded up and disarmed.

"The situation there never can be brought to normal until the country is absolutely disarmed. At the present time every person big enough to tote a gun is doing so. This must be stopped altogether. The obtaining of arms and ammunition in the future must be prevented."

Need 500,000 Men for Invasion.

Gen. Leonard Wood, when he was chief of staff, estimated that it would take at least 500,000 men to clean up Mexico. Many officers hold the same view now. They believe the time demanded for the work, however, will depend upon the number of men allowed to begin the work. If given only a handful the army cannot expect quick results.

One of the greatest difficulties the army would face undoubtedly is the prevalence of disease. The hospital and medical corps, in the case of intervention, will occupy a more prominent place in the activities than any other branch of the service after the actual fighting is over. They will be equally prominent during the campaign itself, for upon their efforts the success of the work will depend entirely.

They must, in the first place, safeguard the American soldiers from the Mexican diseases. In the second place, they must look after the wounded in the regular course of their work.

Engineers Would Face Big Task.

Next in importance probably will be the engineer corps. The railroads are in a demoralized state. Hundreds of miles of track will have to be reconstructed entirely. Bridges will have to be built. Mexico offers many natural engineering problems, but those which will be created by the Mexican forces when they unite will be equally difficult to solve, it is believed here.

Staff officers hold the view that the minute the United States goes in all of the factions which are now at each other's throats will cease their internecine warfare and unite against the Americans. Whether this actually happens or not, the army will proceed on the theory that it is to happen.

Villa Losses Near 5,000.

El Paso, Tex., May 29.—The Villa army in assaulting and failing to take the Obregon positions below Leon last week lost more than 5,000 men, according to reliable private advices received here today.

Persons arriving from the south stated that 1,000 wounded arrived yesterday at Chihuahua City, while similar numbers have been transported from the battle front to other cities along the central railroad. More than 1,000 dead, it was estimated, had been left before the Carranza trenches, and these bodies, together with those of horses, have caused a condition threatening an epidemic should the two armies remain for long in their present entrenchments.

Brings Back Diploma and Ring.

HARRY J. RIESS

When Alice Irene Lowrey comes back to Oak Park from Beloit college next month she will bring not only a diploma but a ring. To certain suburban beaux the ring will tell its own story.

The man from whom the ring came is Harry J. Riess of Jefferson, Wis. Being a junior, Riess will have to stay at college another year. That will give him a chance to catch once more on the college nine and to serve again as captain of the eleven.

Miss Lowrey was leader of Beloit women in scholarship; college representative in Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic society, star Greek play cast, leading lady senior play, prima donna, Girls' Glee club and Vesper choir, leading member Shakspeare society and English club, and one of the two women among the six commencement speakers.

DANIELS AT NOTRE DAME UNVEILS MAINE MONUMENT.

Shaft Erected to Former Student of University Who Lost Life When Battleship Was Sunk.

South Bend, Ind., May 29.—Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels today unveiled a monument erected at Notre Dame university to the memory of the sailors who lost their lives in the wreck of the battleship Maine. Alumni of Brownson hall, of which John Henry Shillington, one of the Maine dead, was a graduate, erected the shaft. The tablets were cast from metal recovered from the wreck.

In his address the secretary paid high tribute to the part Indiana has played in the development of the United States navy.

Secretary Daniels was the guest of honor at a banquet given tonight by the South Bend Press club.

PASTOR EXTOLS BRAVE DEATH OF HERBERT STONE

GAVE LIFE BELT TO WOMAN.

The Rev. John Timothy Stone yesterday paid a tribute to the gallantry of Herbert S. Stone, who lost his life when the Lusitania was torpedoed. At the beginning of his remarks at the memorial services in the Fourth Presbyterian church, Dr. Stone read a dispatch which stated that the late Mr. Stone had lost his life after giving his life preserver to a woman passenger.

The theme of Dr. Stone's sermon in memory of the late Mr. Stone was built on this dispatch—the fact that Mr. Stone gave his life to save another.

Among Those Attending the Service

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Melville E. Stone, Melville E. Stone Jr., and Miss Elizabeth Stone, a sister, and Mrs. Herbert S. Stone and her mother, Mrs. William G. McCormick, these, among others, attending the services:

Mrs. William J. Calhoun.
Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick Sr.
Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick.
Mrs. Emmons Blaine.
Eames MacVeagh.
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blair.
Mr. and Mrs. John Borden.
Mr. and Mrs. Medill McCormick.
Mr. and Mrs. James Waller.
Mrs. Ella Flagg Young.
Colin C. H. Fyffe.
Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick.
Victor F. Lawson.
Wallace Rice.
H. H. Kohlsaat.
Edgar T. Cotter.
Paul Cowles.
E. J. Griffiths.

Opened with Song.

Numerous other friends of the late Mr. Stone when he was a publisher in Chicago attended the services.

The services opened with the song, "For Those at Sea," in which the friends of the decedent joined with the choir. Dr. Frank Gunsaulus, an intimate friend of the family, pronounced the invocation recognizing the "divine mind and the devout heart in the hour of bereavement and human mystery."

The choir gave the anthem, "Souls of the Righteous," after which Dr. Stone read William Cullen Bryant's Thanatopsis. The service was a simple religious recital of the incidents of the death of Mr. Stone and references to the brave manner in which he lost his life.

Reading from Scripture.

The scriptural reading was the fifteenth chapter of Corinthians, emphasizing the thought in the beginning of the chapter: "For greater love has no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends."

Dr. Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, officiated at the wedding of Mr. Stone and Miss McCormick in 1904 at the Brown Memorial Presbyterian church in Baltimore. Mrs. McCormick, mother of the widow, also was married in the Baltimore church.

Eric Delamarter, organist at the church, played Chopin's and Beethoven's funeral marches. The service ended with the song by the congregation, "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me."

MAYOR AND CHIEF HEALEY TELL CAPTAINS "DO DUTY."

No Politicians Can Have Any Influence with Force, Commanders of Districts Are Again Assured.

Twice yesterday police captains were given authority to direct police activity in their districts without fear of interference, without regard to any attempt on the part of politicians or other outsiders to influence their work. The double assurance came from the mayor and the chief of police.

Chief Healey after a captains' meeting led them to the office of Mayor Thompson.

"There is no politics in the police department," Mayor Thompson said, and pointed at Chief Healey: "There is the boss of the department. You receive orders from him only."

The chief also told the men at the captains' meeting that they need not fear politics, and that while on the whole conditions are satisfactory there are certain police districts not entirely up to the standard maintained by the majority of the districts.

DOCTOR HURLED OFF TRAIN AFTER GANG'S INSULT RUSE.

Iowa Physician Attacked on Flier When He Refuses Settlement for Alleged Affront to Woman.

Olathe, Kas., May 29.—When Dr. F. D Boody of Eldora, Ia., refused last night to pay a sum of money to settle an alleged insult to a woman on the San Francisco-Santa Fé special, her three male companions threw the doctor out of the window of the speeding train, according to a story he told officials here.

His story is believed, for there is a three inch gash on his head, a cut across his nose, and his eyes are cut and bruised, while his fingers are cut and mashed as though they had been trampled on.

Dr. Boody had $500 in drafts and a bank book showing $5,000 on deposit in his pocket. He was on his way home from the exposition when he made the acquaintance of the quartet, he alleges, who tried to intimidate him.

Editors Appeal to Save the Life of Leo M. Frank

Leading Newspaper and Magazine Men Protest Hanging.

HIS GUILT DOUBTED.

More than sixty prominent newspaper and magazine editors have joined in an appeal to John M. Slaton, governor of Georgia, to commute the death sentence imposed on Leo M. Frank.

The editors base their plea on the fact that, while appeals in Frank's behalf to the Supreme court of Georgia and the Supreme court of the United States have failed, the question of the defendant's guilt or innocence has been passed upon only by the trial court.

Here Is the Appeal.

The editorial appeal follows:

"The Hon. John M. Slaton, Governor of Georgia, and the Board of Prison Commissioners:

"Gentlemen: We, the undersigned, respectfully appeal to you to commute the sentence of Leo M. Frank of Atlanta, Ga., who is condemned to die on June 22, 1915.

"Millions of people in America are firmly convinced of Leo M. Frank's innocence, and many more millions are convinced that his guilt has not been established beyond doubt.

Disinterested people who have familiarized themselves with the evidence in the Frank case and the exceptional circumstances attending the case and the nature of the testimony on which he was convicted, have expressed their belief that he is innocent.

"Neither the Supreme court of Georgia nor any member of the Supreme court of the United States has ever expressed any belief in Frank's guilt. The guilt or innocence of Leo M. Frank has never been made a question before any court except the original court which tried him. In that court the presiding judge, the Hon. L. S. Roan, declared that he had thought about the Frank case more than any other that he had ever tried; that he was not certain of Leo M. Frank's guilt, and that with all the thought he had put on the case he was not fully convinced that Leo M. Frank was innocent or guilty.

Guilt Not Considered.

"The Supreme court of Georgia and the Supreme court of the United States did not pass upon any question involving the guilt of Leo M. Frank. They merely passed upon technical questions concerning judicial procedure.

"In view of all these circumstances, and in view of the fact that the Supreme court of the United States was not unanimous in its decision, we feel that Leo M. Frank is entitled to the benefit of the doubt existing in the minds of millions of Americans, and we earnestly appeal to you to commute his sentence in order that a man believed by millions of people to be innocent may not be put to death and deprived of the opportunity of proving his innocence.

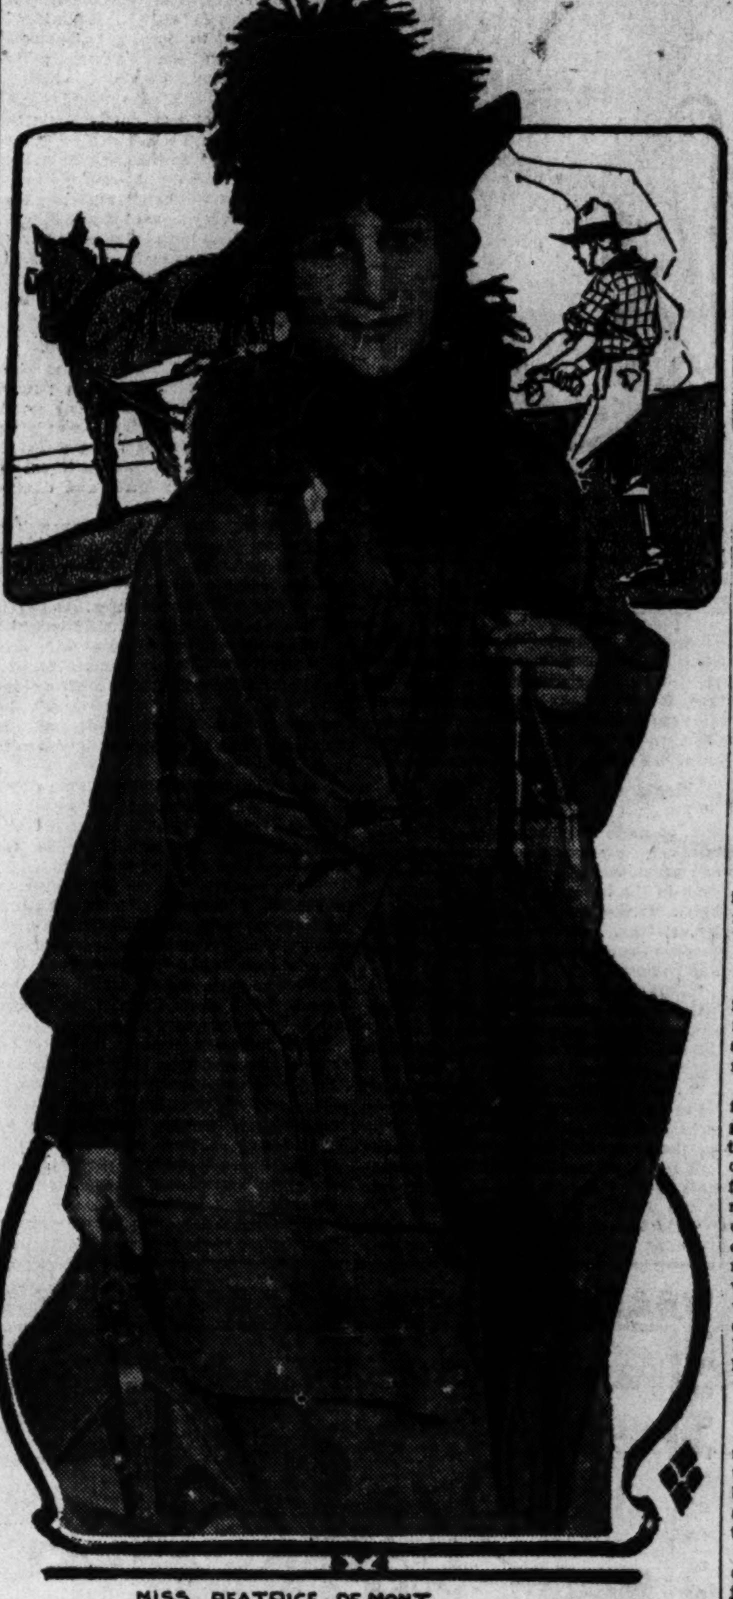
Goes to Try Dakota Farm Life, and—Well, Wives Are Needed.



MISS BEATRICE DE MONT

NORTH DAKOTA'S population is growing at the expense of that of Chicago and contiguous territory. Mrs. Sophie Lamb of Maywood has struck a happy combination between a back-to-the-farm and go-west-and-get-a-husband movement which is creating quite a stir among city office girls. For weeks girls have been going at the rate of six and eight a day to take up their abode in Pierce, McHenry, and Cavalier counties, North Dakota. They have been promised good jobs and eventually, so it is said, husbands. Railroad fare is free.

"School teachers are asking to go," said Mrs. Lamb. "They want schools, but will do housework for a while to get away from the city.

"A girl who had worked in an office for twelve years selected a job as housekeeper at $3 a week, when she could have had a place paying $20 a month. Widows are eager for the country and the grass. They write me that they are doing well."

Miss Beatrice De Mont of 214 North Main street is among the crowds of girls leaving for the simple life of North Dakota.

"I am so tired and I want a change," said Miss De Mont. "Then, there is plenty of work up there, and I want work the year around. I do not care how lonesome it is, and I am sure I shall not miss the bright lights here. A candle will be brilliant enough for me for a while."

Mrs. Lamb is rather reticent about the emigration she is conducting to North Dakota. Her idea followed her plan of settling four families on 320 acres of free land for a year, she said. These families, with a combined capital of $1,000, were sent out for experimental farming. They built their own shack and worked to learn how to till the soil. When they began leaving there were so many calls for girls by farmers' wives that Mrs. Lamb took the matter up with ladies' aid societies and Sunday schools in an endeavor to fill the places with city girls. Three more weary office girls will leave for North Dakota on Monday.

CASH REGISTER OPPOSES REVIEW OF "TRUST" ACTION.

Answer to Government's Petition Contends Patterson Conviction Was Not Warranted.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—The defense in the National Cash Register case today filed in the Supreme court its answer to the application of the department of justice for a review of the proceedings, with a view to upsetting the Appeals court's reversal of the district tribunal's conviction of President John H. Patterson and twenty-six of his associates on charges of violating the Sherman law.

The answer, long and technical, asked, in brief, that the government's plea for a writ of certiorari be refused on the ground that the case was not subject to review, and that what the prosecution represented as violations of the Sherman law really were the National Cash Register's rightful acts in defense of its patents.

It is further contended that at the original trial "the government's evidence furnished no substantial proof of existence of a conspiracy within three years," the period specified by law to warrant a prosecution, and finally, that "the defendants were erroneously prevented from offering very material evidence."

YACHT WITH CHICAGOANS STILL IS UNHEARD FROM.

Craft Belonging to C. W. Pittinger, Carrying Five Persons, Missing on East Coast for Two Days.

New York, May 29.—Missing for two days, the auxiliary yacht Pitt, with five persons aboard, was still unheard from today. Leaving Fire island on Thursday to go to Erie basin for repairs, the boat had not reached there nor has any word been received of its whereabouts. G. W. Pittinger of Milwaukee and Chicago, who had just bought the yacht; his wife and J. W. Tracy of Bayshore, L. I., were aboard with a crew of two men.

BOYS BLAME BEER DRINKING FOR CRIME OF BURGLARY.

"I Drank Fifteen Bottles," Says One of Two Youths—Court Orders an Investigation.

"I drank fifteen bottles of beer in a saloon. The boys bought 'em for me," was the excuse offered by Robert Rosenow, 18 years old, 1900 Ruble street, yesterday when arraigned before Judge Dolan in the Boys' court on a charge of burglary. William King, 2025 Canalport avenue, arraigned on a similar charge, also asserted he had been drinking.

Policemen testified the defendants entered the delicatessen of Otto Freund at 2003 South Halsted street and were arrested as they attempted to leave by a window.

Malcolm B. Starrett, assistant state's attorney, questioned the boys.

"I suppose you wanted to be good fellows," he said. "Now you are liable for a penitentiary offense. The complaint of liquor being sold to this boy of 18 years should be investigated."

Judge Dolan continued the case until June 2 and ordered that H. K. Gross of the Citizens' league be asked to investigate the liquor selling charges.

RETIRED CAPITALIST HELD ON "MOONSHINE" CHARGE.

Relative of Porter Huyler, Candy Manufacturer, Accused of Operating No. Carolina Whisky Still.

Asheville, N. C., May 29.—J. Alex. Porter, a retired capitalist and father-in-law of Porter Huyler, the New York candy manufacturer, was arrested here late yesterday by internal revenue officers charged with operating a "blockade" distillery. The officers allege that the still was operated on the property of Porter at Biltmore, N. C., near here, with his knowledge and consent. Porter denies knowledge of the moonshining operations.

FRENCH LEADER ENTHUSIASTIC OVER CHICAGO

Baron d'Estournelles de Constant Praises City in Book.

TWICE A VISITOR HERE.

In a book entitled "America and Her Problems," about to be issued by the publishing house of Macmillan, Baron D'Estournelles de Constant, the French statesman and writer, devotes a considerable space to his observations of Chicago life and institutions. He visited this city two years ago. It was his second view of Chicago.

"In 1902," he writes, "I gave an account of the astonishment created in my mind by my first visit to Chicago, but nevertheless I have still a great deal to say about this immense city, where, this time, I found myself in familiar surroundings and among tried friends, with the result that my information was much better and more extensive."

Surrounded by Newspaper Men.

The writer than touches on some of the industrial achievements of Chicago, not forgetting the stockyards, the Pullman and Harvester plants, etc., and proceeds, regarding his second visit:

"I was again met at the depot by my faithful friend, Cyrus McCormick, whose guest I was in 1902. We were delighted to see each other again, and we were inquiring warmly about our families and friends when we were surrounded by a ring of reporters and photographers. I could neither see nor hear them on account of the fog and noise. I had to open my eyes to their widest and strain my voice severely so as to supply them all with their 'copy' and pictures, or even caricatures. Finally we drove off to the Blackstone hotel, to which my friends had come on purpose to have me with them, their own house being closed.

Admiration for City.

"Chicago has not greatly changed. I am more and more possessed with admiration of this mighty city which, after being flooded in 1855, raised the level of its soil eight feet, and after being reduced to ashes in 1871 was entirely rebuilt.

"The light, however, is very unfavorable. It is noon, but the lake is invisible, just as it was at Milwaukee, though it makes its presence felt, especially by the answering howls from the whistles of the steamers, which we could easily imagine to be on the point of running into us.

"We make our way between two impetuous streams of traffic—automobiles, wagons, and motorcycles—rushing and flowing and hooting and howling amidst the motor busses and tramways and under the elevated railroad. The combined effect is too much for me. Some of the crossings suggest visions of hell, the impression being strengthened by the flashes and strident squeaks from the trolley cars. And yet there are human beings who, instead of being mere visitors like myself, live here!

Activity in the Loop.

"This is one of the finest parts of the city, where all the best and largest stores are. In all these ground floor premises, twice or even ten times buried like cellars under the bulk of twenty stories or more, and under the elevated railroad viaducts that occupy the middle of the roadway, business men and workers of both sexes live, customers come to make their purchases, cashiers calculate, stenographers and typewriters transcribe hurriedly dictated letters, and men and women think, plan, and remember. I pity them.

"How can any human beings endure the sudden shocks of sound and the aggressive noisiness of all these vehicles fretting and fuming and flashing, stopping and starting again, and coming and going in every direction and without a moment's interval, while only a hundred yards away the railroad runs in a cutting along the Michigan boulevard and the trains fill the air with smoke and steam and the clanging of bells, even more maddening than the steamboat sirens? . . . .

Guest at Luncheon.

"My room at the hotel was quite a haven of rest from all the noise, but nevertheless I had to leave it soon to attend a big luncheon that was waiting for me; and what a luncheon!

"The American luncheon, which is both quiet and sumptuous, is a national institution. Most of the great modern enterprises in the United States are decided upon or prepared for at one of these luncheons, or at a dinner of the same kind. Twenty or thirty of the leading citizens come together to meet the newcomer, question him, and pass judgment on him. Every one eats and drinks without paying much attention to the menu, magnificent though it often is, or to the luxurious and refined character of the table setting, flowers, and attendance, all this being taken as in the ordinary course. . . .

"After luncheon people take their coffee, smoke at the table, and talk to their neighbors. In this way the ice is broken. Then come the speeches, and whoever is not in harmony with the spirit of the occasion, or is not destined to agree with the rest, shows his own incompatibility, consciously or unconsciously. He drops out of his own accord without being asked to go.

"The password is given; the city and nation are made acquainted with the views of the guests, and if these views are favorable the most exclusive houses are thrown open to the visitor, whereby his task is materially lightened.

"Such was my impression of the luncheon given me by the Union League club in 1902, and also of the present one, with this difference: That instead of coming for the first time I returned. Some of my most distinguished friends were waiting for me. Some had traveled a long way to meet me, notably William Jennings Bryan, whom I had missed in Texas and at Lincoln and who had been good enough to write me nearly two months before that he intended to come to Chicago on purpose to see me.

"Cyrus McCormick, our host, was the first speaker. He spoke feelingly of my first visit, and then Mr. Bryan delivered one of his wittiest and most eloquent speeches.

"My reply was quite a hymn of gratitude. Skeptics may make fun of the use of such a phrase, but I wanted to say something that was only too true. Every business man in Europe in 1902 laughed at the idea of international justice and arbitration, and politicians and the press, of course, did likewise. Chicago was the first place in which I found a nucleus of broad minded and positive men who realized that it is the mission of the two republics, France and the United States, to enlighten the world and lead it in the new path. . . .

"In the evening a great banquet was held in the gold room of the Congress hotel. It was another of those cordial and splendid gatherings at which the speeches and conversation stimulate one's enthusiasm and revive the flow of activities.

Day of Rest Even Here.

"The following day being Sunday, a day of rest even in Chicago, I took the opportunity of bringing my correspondence and notes up to date. The latter were merely hasty jottings instead of the rapid drawings or water colors I was so fond of making when I was young, but which I am afraid will never be accomplished now, except in my dreams. . . .

"Thus passes the morning, too quickly to my mind, in comparative solitude, and so also passes the day. I go out alone, on foot. A calm has come over the city, and the sky has cleared. I walk beside the lake, cross bridges and canals, and reach the park; in short, I wander idly about, enjoying the return of peace and light.

"I walk along streets, some narrow and some wide, void of the midday throng. I see the names of La Salle and other French pioneers respectfully and lovingly commemorated. Yesterday—I had nearly forgotten this touching incident—a bridge was opened in front of me to let a steamer through. It was the Pere Marquette, and I gazed on it, full of veneration for the memory of the man whose name our ingratitude in France has forgotten.

"I went to call on Mrs. Potter Palmer (who proved to be away) to revive my recollection of the reception she gave me ten years ago at her house—a museum, or rather a temple she has dedicated to the glory of Millet, Corot, and the whole French school, especially Claude Monet.

In Orchestra Hall.

"I came back tired but with my mental tension relaxed, ready for the ceremony or service or festival—the name is of little consequence—at which I was to speak in the evening. I need not say that the people of Chicago have a concert and lecture hall worthy of them—the Orchestral hall, an immense building with comfortable seating accommodation for an audience of 3,000 or 4,000.

"I spent some time listening to the organ and the voices of the choir and of the entire audience, blended in a chant that was both secular and religious. It was an appeal for inspiration and for universal harmony; it rose above the cares of the world and suggested preparation for an insight into higher things.

"I was still in rapt attention when my turn came to speak.

"My address was largely inspired by the attitude of my hearers themselves. I was conscious of mutual confidence, and felt that in conveying my own thoughts I was expressing theirs. It seemed to me, not for the first time, that my audience felt exactly the same as all the other audiences I have addressed, and from whom I have derived instruction, in my own country and in all other countries. . . .

Memorable Happy Evening.

"It was a memorable and a happy evening. What a fortunate community, to be still young enough to want such refreshing gatherings, where all can close up their ranks against the chances and changes of life, just as sheep on mountain pastures cling together to meet the storm!

"As to these weekly meetings, which are organized by the Chicago Sunday Evening club, their object is to uphold what is called in America the Christian spirit, which is entirely different from the clerical spirit, and the spirit of comradeship among the business men, workmen, clerks, and the rest of Chicago's working population which springs from so many different foreign origins, and in which any man without companionship is lost.

"These meetings supply a need that always has been and always will be felt; they are one of the conditions of civilization; they take the place, in many cases, of instruction, or add to it.

"In such surroundings I should have liked to listen to a classical concert. The enthusiasm shown by the American audience would have enabled me to estimate the progress made towards a higher educational standard.

"The Americans do not have music in their blood as, for instance, the Russians do, but they have a taste for it, they respect it, and they realize its social value. European skeptics make fun of the instinctive enthusiasm of Americans, who not only buy up ancient and modern works of art all over the world, but make collections of the artists themselves, not to mention celebrities of all kinds.

"There is not a single famous actor, actress, tenor, baritone, soprano, professor, literary man, painter, architect, sculptor, writer, poet, savant, engineer, orator, doctor, surgeon, aviator, or runner who has not been asked to make himself or herself known to the American public.

"Some people see nothing but 'snobisme,' or slavish imitation, in all this. In any case, it is a very intelligent form of 'snobisme,' and I would rather call it competition of a high and useful kind.

"I was invited by the French residents in Chicago to attend the annual banquet of their Friendly society at the Hotel La Salle. It was held just after my lecture, but, though I was very tired, I did not fail to go. It unfortunately reminded me that Frenchmen, despite their great individual merit, often made themselves quite as conspicuous by their quarrels as by the good they are capable of accomplishing.

"Next morning I paid a visit to the Alliance Française. It pleased me so much that I followed it up, in the afternoon, by another lecture, in French this time, for the benefit of Chicago's French speaking ladies, whose minds, imaginations, tastes, and even eyes are turned towards France as to a magnetic pole.

Meets the American Barber.

"I must refrain, however, from description, so as to leave myself space to refer to a very interesting experience which I had previously had in the palatial barber shop in the basement of the Blackstone hotel. It was magnificent in white marble, gilding, and electric light, and had modern art decoration of the most refined description.

"This kind of shop is, in reality, a palace where silent operators, with white overalls like a surgeon's, take possession of the customers deposited at thir door by the elevator.

"I have always shaved myself, and I have been inclined to consider the man who puts himself under another's razor as not amounting to much; but I do not cut my hair, and I used my deficiency in this respect as a means of getting into touch with the American Figaro.

"The barber in the United States has widened the scope of his business to a remarkable extent, and he performs the same services all over the country, whatever may be his nationality or his color, the only difference being in his outfit.

"In some places he has quite a parlor, and in others he operates almost in public. I attracted attention at San Antonio, in Texas, by the persistence with which I stared for at least half an hour at the wide open fronts of two or three barber shops.

Complicated Chair Devices.

"The patients take up Roman or oriental attitudes and lie perfectly inert, like so many corpses, in the hands of a bathing attendant; but, first of all, they have to hoist themselves on to long chairs with all sorts of mechanical devices, much more complicated than those of a dentist's chair. They lie stretched out with their eyes shut, looking like dead men, and the barber reigns supreme over them.

"The shaving is only a beginning. Every muscle of the head gets its share of massage, and then electricity is brought into play. Forehead, cheeks, nose, mouth, and chin all respond to the frenzied appeals of a roller, manipulated by the operator very much as a gardener waters his flowers with a jet. Then the head has to be rubbed and dried and bandaged, and next the hands and nails are manicured by very smart looking girls.

"All this is done in full view of passersby and is very amusing for strangers. I should probably be at San Antonio now if the looks the operators gave me had not made me ashamed of my curiosity.

Chicago Manicurists Ladies.

"Every barber in Chicago is a gentleman and every manicurist is a young lady. The one at the Blackstone hotel was quite remarkable. While I was lying almost at full length and being operated upon, I kept one eye open so as to watch her. She was fair, refined, and distinguished in appearance.

"She looked like a typical typewriter girl who ends by making a rich marriage. She was quite absorbed in her duties. She sat beside a chair on which a young man of about 30 was reclining. Between her two white palms she held a hand he had abandoned to her ministrations. She opened and closed it, manipulated it, and might almost be said to have made a plaything of it, but, as a matter of fact, she was not doing it for amusement, and was working on the hand just as if she were modeling in wax.

"And what was the young man doing or saying while this angelic being leaned over him with his hand in hers? He was calmly holding his newspaper in the other hand and reading steadily.

"Here is something we shall never see in France, I thought. In America it is perfectly natural, and it explains a great many things. Sensuality is reduced to its minimum in the United States. It is put on one side, and at first no one has time to think about it; later on, its danger in a new country is realized.

"The joint education of the sexes has thus become possible. Girls can do anything, and they finally exteriorize themselves and satisfy part of their natural instincts by devoting themselves to various forms of work, social activity, or physical exercise, and by degrees the calls of nature become less frequent and less imperative.

"I do not know whether this can be described as happiness or as virtue, but it is a fact, and this fact plays a very important part in the life of the United States.

University of Chicago.

"Much to my regret, the necessity of condensing prevents me from describing the luncheon given by Dr. Judson, president of the university, at which I met the pick of the professors, or the conversations that followed it and lasted until the time came for my address.

"The University of Chicago, endowed by Mr. Rockefeller with truly royal liberality, is undergoing a process of continual and unlimited extension. It is located a long way from the city and has the advantage of pure air and of verdure, which has been preserved as far as possible and scientifically added to.

"Every one of the university buildings has been provided by private generosity. 'Money given away here' might be the motto of every American city. . . .

"The students are by no means drawn exclusively from Chicago, but also from distant places in the north and south of the United States, from Texas and Canada. The university is one of those points of fusion that meet the general need for intercourse and common action which I have observed everywhere.

"This is not one of those aristocratic universities, like Harvard or Princeton, where son follows father, so to speak. It is a democratic university, not dependent on the state. It is a place for mutual rather than traditional education.

"There are a great many poor girl students, who manage to pay their fees by earning their living. It is preëminently a field for the joint education of the sexes."

Visits University of Illinois.

The writer devotes a part of the chapter to a visit to Urbana and the University of Illinois. In the course of his narrative of that visit he says:

"I wound up my day by a university dinner, to which the leading professors of the state and its environs had been invited. It was much more like a communion of ideas than a banquet. The toasts were settled beforehand, each being allotted to a speaker and printed on the menu.

"Before the speeches began, I could not refrain from expressing my surprise at seeing that, as was the case at the luncheon, nothing but ice water was drunk. This remark, which I had frequently made elsewhere, greatly amused the guests, and I was told that I was in a 'dry territory,' which meant that all distilled and fermented drinks are forbidden at Urbana.

"'Forbidden?' I asked. 'How? By consent or by law?'

"'By law.'

"This required explanation. It was that the sale or offer of wine, beer, or spirits is illegal in Urbana and Champaign, and not a drop of them is to be had. The restriction is absolute, and whoever is convicted of an infringement is severely punished.

"'How did you manage,' I inquired, 'to pass this restriction into law and make it operative?'

"'Like many other laws, this one was the outcome of a public demand. One always gets what one really wants; the difficulty is to want it. Do you suppose it was easy to prevent people from spitting in the streets and cars and befouling the city? Do you imagine that a mere municipal regulation would be sufficient to uproot bad habits once acquired? Certainly not. The persons principally interested had to set to work. And who are they?

"They are the women, the first to suffer, from lack of education and laxity of conduct, and particularly from the drink habit. Drunkenness on the part of husband, father, brother, or son reduces the women to mere slaves or accomplices.

"Here they declined to put up with such degradation of themselves, their homes, and their country, and they protested. They had first to contend with the public authorities' force of inertia.

"In the United States, as in other countries, drink is a great source of revenue for governments and for a great many individuals. Politicians cannot venture to offend both the authorities and the voters. . . .

Victory for Women.

"Here again righteous wrath and energy have succeeded in upsetting the established order of things. The mothers took united action—there are mothers' associations in the United States—and gradually assembled an army of women around them.

"The soldiers of this army lost no time in futile complaints. They stirred up the children and the young, who are always ready to support bold initiative. The army took the field, gave no quarter, won over the church, the intellectuals, and the great bulk of public opinion, and eventually became so powerful as to be able to defy the public authorities, the politicians and their supporters, and to compel the legislature at Springfield to take a referendum on the question. It led to the victory the result of which I have just recorded.

"This victory is only a prelude. As soon as women realize that violence in all its forms, including those due to the intoxication of drink and of war, is the real danger to themselves and to civilization they will abandon their attitude of reserve and humanity will be indebted to them for yet another benefit.

"Is it conceivable that mothers should have so long neglected to take an active interest in the cause of peace?

"Can it be that they have no use for their courage except to endure the calamities which it lies with them to prevent?

"Joan of Arc gave her life to drive the invader out of France, and American women will not confine themselves to the war on liquor. Their civic influence will increase in proportion to their consciousness of their own strength."

WILL DECORATE GRAVES OF BLUE AND GRAY.

Graves of nearly 6,500 union soldiers will be decorated with flowers and flags today by the Grand Army of the Republic, aided by other patriotic organizations.

Two hundred more graves were added to the list in the last twelve months. More than ninety cemeteries will be visited.

The last resting place of the confederate dead in Chicago and Cook county will not be passed by. The graves of 5,575 southern soldiers who died while prisoners here and were buried in Oakwoods cemetery, will be cared for by the living remnant of both "blue" and "gray."

UNITED PRESBYTERIANS URGE STRICTER SABBATH.

Condemn Sunday Automobile Riding—No Healing of Breach with Southern Branch.

Loveland, Colo., May 29.—Automobiling on Sundays was condemned and an all around stricter Sabbath was urged in resolutions unanimously adopted at the general conference of the United Presbyterian churches here today.

The breach between this faction and the southern Presbyterian church, caused by the civil war, probably will not be healed this year. A motion by the Cleveland Presbyterians to table such a union has been received. The question of higher salaries for ministers also went over for another year.

Reforms unanimously approved by the assembly today were: National prohibition, national motion picture commission censorship, prohibition of polygamy, adoption of nonsectarian religion curriculum in the public schools, forbidding sectarian appropriations for education, and condemning the opening of the San Francisco fair on Sundays.

Dr. W. B. Anderson in an address at last night's massmeeting declared that the European nations have been thrown into the crucible of affliction in atonement for their sins and wickedness and that it is up to the church to prepare the new mold in which their morals shall be cast.

A gross increase in membership of 5,624, including thirteen congregations, was reported.

STEAMER MACKINAW SAFE AFTER NIGHT OF TERROR.

Wireless from Vessel, Afire in 70 Mile Gale, Says Craft Thought to Have Foundered Survived Peril.

San Francisco, Cal., May 29.—The Robert Dollar steamship Mackinaw is safe off Montara after a night of terror from fire aboard, according to a wireless received by the owner from Capt. W. G. Krebs today. Part of the crew of forty men took to the boats and were picked up by a pilot boat.

Krebs stated that four steamers passed the Mackinaw during the night without heeding its wireless calls for help or seeing the smoke and flames. The fire, which was in the engine room, was extinguished this afternoon. A steamer is on the way to tow the disabled boat to port.

This message was the first word from the Mackinaw since its wireless cracked out "S. O. S. Afire in seventy mile blow off Point Reyes," last night. When the steamers Coronado and Estabrook rushed to the rescue the Mackinaw was nowhere in sight, and after cruising around for an hour, hope was abandoned. It was supposed that the Mackinaw had gone down.

Goodyear Passes Goodyear

$500,000 Better

Yet Users Pay $5,000,000 Less

Note these amazing facts:

Goodyear tires, as built this year, will cost us $500,000 more than if built like 1914 Goodyears.

That's because of improvements.

Yet this year's output will cost our users some five million dollars less than if sold at 1914 prices.

That's because of a big price reduction, made February 1st. It was our third in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

Why Better Tires?

You ask why we add that half-million dollars in face of such reductions.

We have always added every betterment our experts could discover. And we spend on research $100,000 yearly just to seek improvements out.

Goodyears may pass Goodyears, but we make sure that no rival ever can.

What Extras Cost

Goodyear Fortified Tires embody many extras. Five of them are features found in no other tire that's built. Others are found in but few.

Based on current output, those extras this year will cost us $1,635,000.

That is, if we omitted our exclusive features, which all others do omit—

And other protections which most makers omit—

We could probably add to our profits this year more than 1½ million dollars.

But What of You?

But Goodyear users would pay. Those extras save our users many times the cost to us.

In those extras lies the reason why Goodyear outsells any other tire. And in that mammoth output lies the reason for the value that we give.

Think of these things when other tires are offered.

Each Goodyear extra means a saving to you. Any dealer, if you ask him, can supply you Goodyear tires.

This Model 43 Oldsmobile

The new 43 is extraordinarily distinctive. The body shows great originality. The lines are strikingly low, very much in vogue. Ample concessions have been made to the demand for comfort. Body sides are high, seats deep, cushions soft. As for leg room—there is more than enough.

Everywhere is comfort; everywhere style, smartness. Everything about the car compels admiration—solid cast aluminum running boards and toe board, long and buoyant springs, clear, live hickory wheels in natural finish, interior woodwork charmingly attractive.

The engine is of the Oldsmobile valve-in-head type, responsive, economical, accessible—known to deliver ten to fifteen per cent more power than either the L- or T-head type of equal displacement. All valves, enclosed with an effective silencer, produce the most nearly noiseless of all valve-in-head motors.

The car is stripped of superfluous tire-consuming pounds of weight. It is lean, lithe and swift like a carefully conditioned race horse. Most owners get considerably over the guaranteed mileage on casings. And the car shows a gasoline average of 17 to 22 miles per gallon.

Price $1095 f.o.b. factory.

Features that add to your comfort
Long wheelbase—120 inches.

SEES ROUMANIA IN WAR AGAINST TWO EMPERORS

Ex-Attache Points Out Situation of the Balkan Kingdom.

BY EX-ATTACHE.

[Copyright: 1915: By the Brentwood Co.]

All eyes are now turned towards Roumania, whose entry into the war of nations which has been raging for the last nine months is now probably only a matter of days. While no actual alliance exists between the governments of Bucharest and of Rome, their entente is close, all the more intimate, indeed, since it is not cemented by any one of those written and sealed agreements which are apparently only made to be broken, and that are, in the historic words of the chancellor of the German empire, mere "scraps of paper."

The nature of the entente may be gathered from the fact that, when some time ago there were movements of Austro-Hungarian troops in Transylvania which seemed of an ominous character to Roumania, King Victor Emmanuel instructed the Duke of Avarna, his ambassador at Vienna, to ask for explanations of the imperial government.

The relations between Italy and Roumania, always friendly, were cemented in the latter portion of September during the presence on the banks of the Tiber of a special commission from Bucharest, and it was then that arrangements were concluded for united action in the event of either country being drawn into the war.

Descendants of Romans.

The common action of Italy and Roumania in the present war is only natural. To begin with, there is a community of race, and a similarity of language, since the Roumanians are the descendants of those Roman legionaries who founded a prosperous Italian colony on the banks of the lower reaches of the Danube in the days of imperial Rome.

Then, too, both kingdoms lie on the flanks of the Austrian empire. Both have racial frontiers running through Austro-Hungarian territory, immediately beyond their political frontiers. Both have "irredenta" regions, over which they would undoubtedly claim authority were the Hapsburg monarchy in its present form to fall to pieces as the result of the present war.

If the severe treatment of the Italians in the Italian speaking provinces of Austria has been an everlasting source of profound exasperation to the subjects of King Victor Emmanuel, the Roumanians have equally strong grounds for bitterness against the dual empire in connection with the oppression of their millions of fellow countrymen in the Hungarian province of Transylvania by the Magyar authorities.

Denounced as Treacherous.

Furthermore, both Italy and Roumania have been the objects of abuse since the beginning of the war on the part of politicians and newspapers of every description in the dual empire and have been denounced by its people as faithless and treacherous allies. It cannot be denied that Italy for thirty years formed one of the triple alliance, in which it was associated with Germany and Austria, while in the same way Roumania was bound to Austria and to Germany by means of a military convention of an exceedingly elaborate character, the terms of which have never been made wholly public.

Ground for Refusing Assistance.

In each instance, however, these agreements were devised for purposes of defense and not of aggression, and when Italy refused to join Germany and Austria in August last on the ground that it was a war not of defense but of offense on their part, which they had inaugurated without taking the trouble to warn the government at Rome, thereby violating the provisions and spirit of the triple alliance, the Roumanians declined for similar reasons to live up to the terms of their military convention with Austria-Hungary and with Germany and to proceed to their assistance.

It may be added that the triple alliance was as unpopular in Italy as the military convention concluded by the late King Charles with the two kaisers was distasteful to the people of Roumania, and that if the governments at Rome and at Bucharest had attempted to yield to the demands for support from Vienna and from Berlin revolutions assuredly would have ensued in both kingdoms.

Outlook in Balkans.

It seems just as impossible for Roumania to remain aloof any longer from the fray as it has been for Italy. The future holds promise of an enormously increased Serbia and of additions to the territories of Bulgaria and of Greece, since both of these kingdoms apparently will be forced by the aggrandizement of Serbia to fall into line with the triple entente in the immediate future. In fact, territorial acquisitions by Bulgaria and Greece are indispensable to the final settlement of the entire Balkan situation.

Under the circumstances neither Roumania nor Italy can afford to remain restricted to its present national area by refraining from taking a share in the conflict.

Their political and economic interests demand that if Serbia, and also Bulgaria and Greece, receive accessions of territory, they, too, should have their frontiers enlarged so as to maintain the necessary balance of power.

It would be fatal to Italy if it were to permit Serbia to secure possession of all that portion of Austria-Hungary that borders on the Adriatic in addition to Herzegovina and Bosnia and thus to become in course of time a still greater menace than the dual empire; while it would be equally disastrous to Roumania if it were to permit the aggrandizement of the other kingdoms in the southeast of Europe without receiving a corresponding increase of territory in order to save itself from being overwhelmed by its Slavic neighbors.

Cause of Delay.

Much the same reasons that have delayed Italy for so many months from joining in the conflict have been responsible for the hesitation displayed until now by the Bucharest government in th matter.

At the outbreak of the war Roumania, like Italy, found itself absolutely precluded from drawing the sword by the lamentable lack of war material of every kind and especially by the absence of any acequate supplies of ammunition.

The utmost difficulty was experienced by both nations in remedying these deficiencies, as practically all the ammunition factories of the world were working day and night to supply the pressing needs of the belligerents.

Had it not been for the assistance of Great Britain and of France neither Italy nor Roumania would be able even now to have recourse to arms.

Last Consignment Reaches Italy.

It was only at Easter time that the final consignment of field guns reached Italy from France, while Roumania has been even still more dependent upon the help and good will of the powers of the triple entente both as regards securing war material from France and England and in the matter of the purchase of cartridges nd shells in the United States.

In the case of Roumania matters have been still further complicated by the difficulties of conveyance of its war supplies to their destination from abroad, since access to its seaports from the Mediterranean is shut off by Turkey's closing the Dardanelles to shipping of every kind, while Saloniki, the only available port or the purpose, is in the hands of the Greeks, who have never been favorably inclined towards the Roumanians and have put all sorts of difficulties in their way.

Effect of Action.

To Austria and to Germany the participation of Roumania in the fray constitutes a formidable danger. It is not alone that it can put into the field a highly trained, perfectly equipped army of some 600,000 men, all filled with a sense of intense bitterness against the Hungarian oppressors of their countrymen in Transylvania, but that it closes in to a great extent the ring of hostile powers by which the dual empire and Germany are now surrounded.

Roumania's 600 miles or more of western frontier, hitherto open to the two kaisers, as that of a neutral state, will become closed, and in this way Austria and Germany will be shut off from all communication with their Turkish ally and with the outer world via Bulgaria nd Greece.

Indeed, since all that portion of Switzerland which is not bordered by Germany and by Austria is closed by France and by Italy, it follows that from henceforth the two empires will be cut off from all communication with the outer world, save through Holland and the Scandinavian kingdoms. Neither will they be ny longer able to draw their supplies of foodstuffs and petroleum from Roumania, which is one of the richest countries in Europe in the matter of grain and oil.

Indeed, the adhesion of Roumania to the cause of the allies cannot fail to prove even a still graver blow to the cause of the two kaisers than the declaration of war last week by Italy.

Muskegon, Mich., May 29.—[Special.]—Twice thrown into Lake Michigan, but later regaining their eighteen foot launch, disabled in the gale which swept the lake last night, William Johnson and J. H. They were taking the launch from this port to White Lake for the Fruitvale Transportation company. The two men had fought out the gale all night.

Following the publication of President Wilson's appeal for money and foodstuffs for the starving people of Mexico, arrangements were made hurriedly yesterday by Chicago Red Cross officials for receiving contributions for a Chicago relief fund.

Gov. Dunne, who is the president of the Illinois state board of the Red Cross, could not be reached, but prominent business men, considering it a certainty that the governor will issue an appeal to the people of Illinois within the next few days, prevailed upon Orson Smith, president of the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company bank, who is the treasurer of the state board, to open up his books for subscriptions at once.

Many people have expressed their satisfaction that something was at last to be done for the many thousands of starving people in Mexico.

The Slap That Saves

Sometimes you have to slap a business man on the wrist to make him prosperous. When the Chicago Smoke Abatement Commission made a ruling that no heating boilers could be installed in buildings of six apartments or over unless they were of the smokeless type, that was a slap on the wrist for the owners of apartment buildings. But it was a friendly slap—a slap of prosperity. Why? Listen:

Whenever you install a boiler like the Kewanee Smokeless Firebox Boiler, and you know that it will burn soft coal smokelessly, you know doggone well that your saving amounts to the difference between the price of hard coal and the price of soft coal. And believe us, that's some difference. So that when the Smoke Commission slapped you on the wrist it slapped you into a saving of 25 to 40 per cent. It wasn't such a nasty slap, after all, was it?

The majority of the best buildings in Chicago are installing Kewanee Smokeless Firebox Boilers and they are not only observing the Smoke Law but they are getting the best steel boiler that the boiler world produces. The gain in two ways is so great that we hope for your sake that a lot more of you will be slapped on the wrist just for the saving it will afford you.

Write to The Old Man Behind the Boiler and make him get busy and prove what he says about saving.

How Studebaker cars are built—chassis

—and EVERY detail is in EASY reach

From the timing-gears up at the head of the motor back to the differential, every last detail of this Studebaker Chassis is placed where you can reach it most EASILY. For the simple reason that ACCESSIBILITY was one of the chief objects of the Studebaker engineers when they designed it.

You lift the hood and there isn't a valve, an adjustment or even a wire in the whole motor that you can't get at in a second's time. Not a thing hidden away or awkwardly placed. The carburetor sits high. The never-failing Electric Starter can be gotten at in a jiffy. Same, too, with the Generator on the other side of the motor.

Then, you come to the clutch and you find it placed where it's not a minute's work to reach it for inspection or cleaning or removing. The transmission is set on the rear axle—easily reached if need arises. And the FULL-floating rear axle itself is so simple in design and so accessible that you can have the axle shaft and the differential gears removed in less than five minutes.

Thus, all the way thro' the Chassis, detail by detail, you'll find this same accessibility. It's merely a matter of GOOD design—of knowing how and of taking the time to build the car RIGHT

The Rear Springs
In some cars the springs are used for driving and are, therefore, subjected to DOUBLE strains. Studebaker uses the springs solely to make the car easier-riding and drives thro' radius rods.

The Radius Rods
in a Studebaker car free the springs of the driving thrusts, making the car much EASIER in its riding qualities. They connect the rear axle housing with the side member of the frame as shown here.

The Torque Arm
is used in the Studebaker Chassis. Made of pressed steel—designed to absorb all the twisting strain of driving. Helps keep the driving mechanism in perfect alignment.

-because it's a
Studebaker

Wish you'd come in—to-day if you can. For we'd like to have you study this Chassis and then drive the car and KNOW what this Studebaker BALANCED Chassis means in EASY-riding and EASY-driving. And write for the Studebaker Chassis Book.

THE FRENCH SOLDIER.

It has been next to impossible to make a smart soldier out of the Frenchman. As soon as he went into service he let his beard grow. His red trousers were dirty even before he went into action. He slouched along, a wiry, sturdy marcher, capable of covering ground rapidly, and a shrewd, skillful fighter, but never a smart soldier.

Tradition, which consistently is 90 per cent error, would have the Frenchman dressing up for war within an inch of his life. The beau sabreur is French. The cavalier without a stain on his honor or a spot on his clothes is French. French war pageantry is one of plumes and colors. French war reality is one of long beards and soiled uniforms. The French soldier has been ordered to shave off his beard because it is an insanitary incumbrance, and he is murmuring.

It is a utilitarian little irony that war, which shatters and scatters the corporal being so dreadfully, should demand that the person should be immaculate for the ceremony. Smartness is a soldierly characteristic. In impossible circumstances the professional soldier will endeavor to preserve his personal tidiness and cleanliness. It is imperative hygiene. Dirt is the deadly companion of bullets, faulty sanitation more dreadful than high explosives. But the Frenchman, who, romanticism would say, would be the first to dress up for battle, is the most stubborn in resisting the rule to wash up and shave before you're shot.

Tradition, which calls the sentimental Englishman practical, the practical Irishman romantic, and the dynamic German phlegmatic, would make the careless Frenchman a dashing devotee of the military haberdasher.

AFTER THIS WAR.

After war had been declared in Europe and pacifist theorists had been compelled to retreat from their position that a general war was "humanly impossible" they have been basing their opposition to preparedness on the theory that the world will be so war weary and so exhausted when peace is made that we need fear no aggression.

This theory limps obviously when directed at the case of Japan, so an elaborate effort to reveal Japan as a nation of saintlike unselfishness has been made, though that, too, has now been somewhat rebuffed by events.

The pacifist prophet and doctrinaire is not, however, our concern. More important is the judgment of such a man as the late Admiral Mahan, who before he died expressed the opinion that Europe would be sick of war for many years after the present conflict. This surely is at least a probability, and there is no question that America will work to make it as near a certainty as is possible in this world. But whether a federation for peace, with a reliable machinery for pacific adjustment of international differences and a partial disarmament, can be brought about must depend entirely upon events which no one but a pacifist theorizer would predict at this stage—events involving a more complete breakdown of the European system and a more complete break with the past than seems now at all likely.

But if no constructive and institutional changes for the assurance of peace are accomplished, may we not rely at least upon such a moral revulsion and sheer material exhaustion that war will become impossible for a generation at least?

A suggestive comment on this theory of the exhaustive effects of war is made by Prof. R. M. Johnston of Harvard in a small but very interesting book which we should like every American, and especially every congressman, to read at this time—"Arms and the Race" (the Century company).

Holland, Prof. Johnston points out, "sustained one of the most desolating wars recorded in modern history, and a war that lasted, with scarcely an interruption, for no less than forty years (1568-1609). Towards the close of the conflict success, coupled with maritime preponderance, inclined to the Dutch arms. Hardly had it terminated when the Dutch people displayed such extraordinary energy as perhaps no European state has ever equaled. Almost immediately they captured the carrying trade of Europe and developed a commercial civilization that was the wonder and envy of all their neighbors. Three years before the truce of 1609 it was already reckoned that the Dutch had three ships to the English one, while half a century later Colbert stated that there were about twenty Dutch ships to every French one. Their cities throve as none other in Europe. Their art rivaled that of Italy and Spain and France. With Grotius they founded systematic international law. With Spinoza a little later they founded the philosophy of materialism."

Prof. Johnston's explanation is that "the energy generated by war, the confidence engendered by success, and the adaptability and resourcefulness taught by military enterprise far offset any debit that may come from the loss of a percentage of the young male population." "Successful war," he asserts, "even of such prolonged and devastating character as the Dutch war for independence, is the sure forerunner of a vigorous period of expansion"; and he adds: "For modern instances of the rule we need seek no further than our own northern states after the civil war or Germany after the war of 1870."

Historic parallels need cautious handling, but American statesmanship and the American nation, whose will controls it, will tempt disaster if in spite of the lessons of history and the warnings of present experience they assume that the European complex is now to be resolved in unending peace and an equilibrium established for the first time in the history of the world. Such a felicitous outcome is imaginable. It is not in the least probable.

FORMULATING FOREIGN POLICY.

A writer who has made valuable contribution to the cause of sane pacifism, Mr. Norman Angell, while correcting a rather familiar misinterpretation of his views in the New York Times, makes an appeal which we wish could sink deep into the minds of Americans.

"A nation whose general public has no definite ideas as to the rôle that it should play in the community of nations," writes Mr. Angell, "but allows the daily incident of its foreign intercourse to sway its policy first one way and then another, is not likely permanently to advance either its own or the general interest. However necessary it may be to have big armaments, it is just as necessary to know on behalf of what policy those armaments are to be used. Indeed, without such knowledge I am not sure that armaments may not be a source of danger rather than of safety. That the American public means well is certain. To do well, to choose the right instead of the wrong policy, it must, by some means, seize the essential truths of international life. It is not impossible for a great democracy to do that, but it won't do it without discussion of just those issues I have raised."

One of the greatest dangers in our immediate future arises out of our want of interest in our foreign relations and our consequent want of understanding of the forces which, working upon the affairs of nations, must affect us and our country with increasing gravity and intensity. Perhaps we ought not to be impatient with the irresponsible theorizing the war has brought about because it provides a beginning at least of national thought on world affairs. A suggestive work like Prof. Usher's "Pan-Americanism," or Prof. Johnston's "Arms and the Race," or Mr. Angell's books will win a wider reading than they would have ten years ago, and we may expect an increase of serious discussion of our foreign problems in our reviews and even in the daily press. Thus, in due time we may hope, we shall "seize the essential truths of international life."

Yet the difficulty of creating, and above all of maintaining, a consistent foreign policy in a real democracy such as that of the United States is very great. The most masterful internationalism in the history of the world is that of England, but England has a governing class and a political system as well as an imperial situation which have made a continuous policy, speaking broadly, not only possible but imperative. Our problems have been in the main domestic, and a people, like an individual, concerns itself with what presses. The danger of our present condition is that our problems will develop in advance of our considerate conclusions and that we shall be precipitated by doctrinaires and unbalanced idealists into costly situations from which good sense, legitimate self-interest, and cautious foresight would have saved us.

The best piece of advice given the American people of late is that of President Hadley, who gave it as his opinion that in our present circumstances we would better "saw wood and say nothing." We shall do well not to expend too much thought on "remaking Christendom" or correcting the errors of effete Europe.

CHANGE, THE MONSTER.

People in post meridian life have come, with whatever grief and however disconsolately, to acceptance of the inevitable ephemerality of pleasure and the unescapable tragedy of change. With acceptance there has come reconciliation.

Youth is rebellious and resisting, endeavoring by tricks to make the ephemeral permanent and to destroy change, a monster ogre which threatens happiness.

A boy with a penny buys an all day sucker not because it is the candy he likes best but because it is the candy that lasts longest. If he spent the penny for a chocolate cream it would be gobbled and the joy would be an unsatisfying memory almost before it had become a fact.

Dread of the moment when the ringmaster will announce the approach of gentlemanly ushers with tickets for the grand concert on the elevated stage immediately after the show—the indication that the circus has an end and that end impending—this dread goes into the tent with the boy and poisons his enjoyment.

Youth struggles against the thought, the sad knowledge, that the delights of life will not endure. The picnic, the last hard boiled egg eaten, turns homeward. Bed time comes to take a Deerfoot story out of the hand. Even if you eat the shells with the peanuts there comes a last one in the bag. Ice cream cannot be spooned so carefully that there will not soon be an empty dish.

Change, the monster, devours the tender pleasures and innocent delights, and post meridian folk, having put down the impatient and rebellious moods of youth, confess their subjugation to the law of laws that nothing shall remain as it is.

Editorial of the Day.

IF WE MUST SHOOT.

[From the Grand Rapids Herald.]

Following the action of congress authorizing the chief of ordnance to issue free to rifle clubs the Krag rifles stored in the government arsenals and 120 cartridges to be used in the same for each member of the rifle club, the president is confronted with the proposition to put the seal of approval of the administration on the training of the civilians in the use of the military arm, as recommended in his last message to congress.

The movement to issue Krag rifles for the training of citizens in rifle shooting explains what is being done with the Krag rifles in storage in the government arsenals, which has been a matter of much speculation since the outbreak of the European war. It was the efforts of speculators, influential and otherwise, who were making the life of the chief of ordnance miserable in their efforts to purchase the Krag rifles, which caused the president to have issued the order in January forbidding the sale of arms to rifle clubs. It was not thought that there was any abuse of the privilege accorded rifle clubs, but the president desired to be in a position of saying that no arms in any amount or of any description were being sold to any one.

Since this law went into effect last summer over 250 rifle clubs have been organized throughout the country. No particular section seems to be leading in this respect, although these clubs are more successful in the west, where it is easier to acquire and maintain ranges in the open. The lack of ranges in the densely populated eastern section of the country materially retards the development of rifle shooting in the east unless the government should construct ranges that can be used at 200 and 300 yards near the larger cities, after the plans of protected ranges carried out in Germany. Congress will be asked at the coming session to adopt a policy of range construction.

[Copyright: 1915: By the Brentwood company.]

LORD ORMONDE, in his capacity as commodore of the Royal Yacht squadron, acknowledged both at home and abroad as the premier yacht club of the world, has announced that the annual regatta at Cowes will not take place this summer by reason of the war. A unanimous resolution to this effect was passed the other day at the yearly meeting of the club, held at Claridge's hotel in London. Among those present were the Duke of Leeds, who is vice commodore of the squadron; Lord Redesdale, Lord Brassey, Lord Albemarle, Sir R. Williams-Bulkley, Sir Godfrey Baring, Lord Tredegar, Lord Normanton, etc.

The Cowes regatta has been a yearly affair for nearly a century and, following immediately after Goodwood and taking place during the first week of August, marks the windup of the London season, and in times of peace is the signal for the dispersal of the great world to foreign thermal resorts and to Scotch and Irish country seats.

Extending over a week, it has always enjoyed the warm approval of the reigning house. Queen Victoria used to make a point of always being at her Isle of Wight residence, at Osborne, during the regatta week and to entertain extensively there. King Edward, both prior and subsequent to his accession to the throne, made his headquarters afloat on board his steam yacht off Cowes, his example in this respect being followed by King George.

In spite of the vigorous protests of American Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople, Enver Pasha has dispatched some three or four score British and French civilians from Constantinople to Gallipoli, in the danger zone, in order that they might be exposed to the same perils as Turkish noncombatants at Gallipoli from the gun fire of the allied fleets and land forces.

Two American newspaper men very gallantly insisted on sharing the lot of the party, partly for the purpose of getting nearer to the scene of hostilities, partly, too, for keeping track of the fate of these British and French civilians, who have been subjected to this extraordinary measure on the part of the Turkish authorities.

Sir Edward Grey has notified the sublime porte, through Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople, that the British will hold Enver Pasha, also the grand vizier, Prince Said Halim, and the other members of the Turkish cabinet, responsible for the life of every British and French subject who has thus been conveyed to Gallipoli. No matter whether they are killed by the Turks themselves or by the fire of the allies, Enver and his colleagues will, on the fall of Constantinople, be held to personal account, and in the event of any loss of life will be punished as murderers.

To the long and ever growing list of British peers who have lost their heirs in the present war must be added the name of King George's principal private secretary, Maj. Gen. Lord Stamfordham, whose only son, Capt. the Hon. John Bigge of the King's Royal Rifle corps, has just been killed in the fighting around Festubert, in France.

His death is one which touches King George, and indeed all the royal family very nearly. For the young officer was born at Windsor castle while his father was serving as assistant private secretary to Queen Victoria, spending his whole childhood at court, and when old enough was appointed page of honor to Queen Victoria, subsequently serving Edward VII. in the same capacity. As he was unmarried and an only son, the peerage of Lord Stamfordham will become extinct with his death.

Lord Stamfordham's career has been something in the nature of a romance. He was the younger son of a country parson, the Rev. J. S. Bigge, rector of Stamfordham, in Northumberland. He became at the military academy at Woolwich the most intimate friend and favorite chum of the late prince imperial of France. Graduating at the same time and receiving, like him, a commission in the royal artillery, he subsequently accompanied him to South Africa.

He was employed on some other duty on the day when the prince rode out with Lieut. Carey and a small escort to reconnoiter the enemy, and there is no one who is not firmly convinced that had Lord Stamfordham been in Carey's place the French prince would never have been left to face the Zulus alone, deserted by his companions in so cowardly a fashion.

Young Lieut. Arthur Bigge, as he was then, was chosen by Gen. Lord Chelmsford on account of his intimacy with the prince to escort the poor lad's mangled remains back to England. Subsequently, when Empress Eugenie at the conclusion of the Zulu war made her memorable pilgrimage to South Africa to visit the scene of her son's death, it was young Lieut. Bigge who was chosen to act as her escort. She became very fond of him and warmly recommended him to Queen Victoria as her son's dearest friend.

As the queen always thought that she and her people had something to atone for in connection with this young prince, she did not hesitate to assure young Bigge's career by attaching him to her household as groom-in-waiting.

Before he had been two years at court young Bigge was made assistant private secretary, and it was his duty to help the late Gen. Sir Henry Ponsonby.

When, six years before Queen Victoria's death, Gen. Sir Henry Ponsonby was compelled by ill health to retire from the office of private secretary, Arthur Bigge, who had meanwhile been created a knight commander of the Order of the Bath, was appointed to succeed him as principal private secretary.

When she died Edward VII. retained his own private secretary, Lord Knollys, in that office, and Sir Arthur Bigge became the private secretary of the heir apparent, the present king, on whose accession he was raised to the peerage as Lord Stamfordham.

He is married to a Miss Constance Neville, who is a granddaughter of a former dean of Windsor, and as such associated from her early childhood with the Windsor castle set.

FEEDING BABIES.

THERE are those who hold that the methods of preparing milk for the artificially fed baby have been too complicated. On the one hand they have been too complicated for the best interest of the baby. On the other hand, they have seemed so difficult that many mothers have given their babies condensed milk and baby foods. They had no hope of being able to make the more complex mixtures.

A simpler method is being advocated by some of the best men in the country—a method so simple that no one need hesitate to undertake it. This method is not intended for mothers who can nurse their babies. If a mother can nurse her baby she had better do so. It is better for baby. It is less trouble for the mother.

The reason why most women who discontinue breast feeding their young babies give them the bottle is that they think it will be less trouble. On the contrary, bottle feeding is a trouble maker. It is trouble to prepare the milk, to keep it properly, to get the bottle ready, to heat the milk.

It is more trouble to do this than it is to put the baby to the breast, especially since mothers are now following the plan of nursing their babies every four hours, and only once or not at all during the night.

When we take into account the sickness rate among bottle fed as compared with breast fed babies, the argument is very much in favor of the theory that breast feeding is less troublesome than bottle feeding. In fact, bottle feeding is so very troublesome that most poor people give it up and go to condensed milk and infant food.

For instance, a good system and one that is widely used consists of a series of nine strengths. No. 1 in the list consists of two ounces of 7 per cent milk, one ounce of milk sugar, one ounce of lime water, and seventeen ounces of boiled water. No. 9 consists of ten ounces of 7 per cent milk, three-quarters of an ounce of milk sugar, one ounce of limewater, and nine ounces of boiled water.

Between these two extremes there are seven mixtures as the series progresses from one to nine. The quantity of milk increases one ounce a step and the quantity of water drops correspondingly.

Seven per cent milk is milk containing 7 per cent fat. It can be bought as 7 per cent milk or it can be roughly guessed at by taking the top pint of a quart of ordinary milk or the upper 22 ounces of Jersey milk.

Weighing, measuring for these mixtures, and changing them as the baby gains in age, appears formidable. Possibly it is not so complicated, but at least it appears so. To get away from this is one of the reasons for the simpler system proposed. However, it is not the only reason. Its advocates claim that the simpler mixtures are more easily digested and nourish better.

THE SIMPLER SYSTEM—The basis of the system is that in children under a year of age one and a half ounces of good, clean, fresh cow's milk will furnish all of the food necessary for growth, heat, and energy for a pound of baby for twenty-four hours. Then the first step is to weigh the baby. The bay's weight in pounds multiplied by one and a half gives the number of ounces of milk needed by the baby in twenty-four hours.

As the result of very careful determinations by very scientific men, one of whom is Rubner, the man who is responsible for the feeding standards in use in the German empire during this war period—it has been found that a baby needs about forty-five calories in a day for each pound of its weight. One and a half ounces of good milk with the cream on it is a little short of the required number of calories. Instead of using more milk the calories are gained by adding some sugar. The reason that more milk is not used is because one and a half ounces contains enough protein, the food needed for growth, and more than that amount of milk would furnish more protein than the child needs.

The necessary energy in younger babies may be furnished in the shape of ordinary cane sugar, milk sugar, or malt sugar. Grulee says the best of these is malt sugar, though various forms of starchy foods can be given slowly to displace it at any time after the third month.

In babies over three months old the day's food can start with one-half ounce of malt food and this, within two weeks, can be increased to one ounce. We have, then, for a baby weighing ten pounds fifteen ounces of whole milk to which has been added one ounce of malt food.

The next question is how much water should be added to it. To determine this it is necessary to know how many ounces a baby should eat in a day. How many times shall baby be fed and how much at a time? The capacity of the stomach at different ages according to Holt is as follows:

At birth, 1½ to 2 ounces.
At three months, 4½ ounces.
At six months, 6 ounces.
At one year, 9 ounces.

The next question to settle is the number of times a baby should be fed. The authorities are all in favor of long intervals between feedings. Of course, the policy of feeding a baby every time it cries or to put it to sleep is not followed now by anybody who is well informed.

The only people whom I have heard advocate it in recent years are a few women who thought they knew because of practical experience. When asked what the practical experience was they said they had had large families, some of them ten children. When asked how many of their children had died teething they answered, four, five, six, some of them nine out of ten.

The stomach must have plenty of time to digest one feeding, empty itself, and rest before a new feeding is given. A baby's stomach cannot finish the digestion of milk in two hours. Therefore when a baby nurses within two hours of another nursing the fresh milk and the partly digested milk are mixed, but what is of more consequence, the stomach is kept continuously at work. Everything in nature rests at intervals or breaks down.

The interval agreed on by those who know best is four hours. If a newly born babe is begun on this basis it is simple enough. It becomes his habit. When one has started in on another habit the problem is somewhat more difficult. The feeding hours are 6 o'clock, 10, 2, 6, and midnight. This means a four hour interval during the day and a six hour interval at night. After the baby is 6 months old the night feeding can be shifted to 10, which makes an eight hour interval at night.

The long interval between feedings gives the stomach plenty of time to complete digestion of the milk and to get a good rest before the next working time.

The long interval plan is not new. It has been tried out for years in this country. Most of us have heard of the success of Australian and New Zealand mothers with their babies. Only one out of every twenty-four of their babies die. They use the four hour plan.

With five as the number of feedings and the amount of each feeding for each age known, it is very easy to calculate the amount of food required for the twenty-four hours. In practice Dr. Grulee holds it advisable to give a little more food at each period than is indicated by the size of the stomach in the table by Dr. Holt. He gives to a baby 3 months old five ounces; 6 months old, seven ounces; 9 months old, nine ounces. Children between these ages take a quantity between these measures.

Using these figures as a basis, it is easy to figure the amount of food required. For instance, a baby 6 months old will take five times seven, equals 35 ounces of food in the twenty-four hours. If the baby weighs fourteen pounds his daily food supply would consist of twenty-one ounces of milk and one ounce of malt food. In order to bring this up to the quantity required, 35 ounces, it will be necessary to add 14 ounces of water.

A baby 9 months old, weighing fourteen pounds, would take forty-five ounces of food, consisting of one ounce of malt food, twenty-one ounces of milk, and twenty-four ounces of water.

In the first place, this plan is simpler and easier from the standpoint of the mother. In the second—and this does not appear on the surface—it does away with the very elaborate calculations as to percentages of fat, protein, sugar in cow's milk and human milk, upon which the older formulas were based. The foundation of the newer plan is simpler, as well as its superstructure.

Not even age and weight are inflexible guides as to how much a baby can or should eat. If a baby fed on this plan does not gain in weight, has no bowel trouble, and goes at his fists as if he was hungry, this mixture should contain a little more milk and a little less water. If he gets too fat, or has colic, or spits up his food, or gets an eczema, he should have a little less milk and a little more water in his mixture.

After the baby passes 9 months of age the problem of feeding becomes much simpler to the careful mother. To the careless one the hazards are greater than when the babies were younger.

What is meant is this: An older baby has very much better digestion than a younger one, but the advantage is often more than offset by permitting the child to eat without regard to the digestibility of the foods eaten.

After the ninth month a thick starch gruel, consisting of one-half ounce of barley flour, oatmeal, or flour ball to a pint of water may be added to the diluted milk. After the tenth month a strained vegetable soup may be added.

A vegetable soup recommended by Grulee consists of a handful of spinach, a large beet, and two carrots in a quart of water, boiled two hours, strained and diluted to a quart. About this time meat juice may be added. Orange juice may be begun in babies as young as 3 months of age.

The proportion of milk to the weight of the baby should be allowed gradually to decrease. The rule is to give one and a half ounces for each pound of weight. In the latter part of the time the child is at the bottle it is a good idea to decrease this proportion. For instance, when the child is 9 months old, to make it one and a third ounces in place of one and a half. Later one and a quarter ounces is enough. It is never advisable to give a young child more than a quart of milk a day.

The opinion is general that the second summer is the time of greatest hazard to the baby. It is a period of great hazard but it need not be so. In the case of about half the babies, those born in the spring and summer, the first summer is not a teething period. The second summer is a teething period for all babies.

The food during the first summer is entirely in the hands of the parents. That of the second summer is sometimes contributed to by outsiders; the child himself may slip something unawares; the parents are disposed to be less careful the second summer than they were the first.

During the second year milk should continue to be the chief element of diet. The first additions are usually fruit juices, crackers, and cereals. At the fifteenth month spinach, beets, carrots, and potatoes may be given. Meat juice, thinner gravies, and butter are given to advantage. At about 18 months chicken, meat, and fish, finely chopped and well cooked, may be added. The habit of giving the child a bone to suck as a method of starting the use of meat is a good one.

Feeding a baby under 3 months of age does not concern many readers of this column. In the first place the great majority of mothers breast feed their babies for three months. The milk generally holds out that long even in the mothers who have a poor milk supply. In the second place the feeding of a baby under 3 months of age is a matter of such skill and varies so much in the individual case that most people are anxious to leave it to skilled baby feeders.

There is some difference of opinion as to whether a baby should have any food in the first twenty-four hours of its life. I think the majority are of the opinion that it should not. Plain water, unsweetened, is better than sugar water.

During the remainder of the first week Dr. Grulee offers the baby three ounces of a mixture half milk and half water. To a 7 days old baby weighing eight pounds he gives eighteen ounces of milk and water, half and half, in six feedings. A 14 day old baby weighing eight pounds gets the same mixture with the addition of one-quarter ounce of malt food. A 2 months old baby weighing ten pounds gets milk, twelve ounces; water, ten and one-half ounces; malt food, three-quarters of an ounce, in five feedings of four and one-half ounces each.

WILL NOT PAVE ALLEY THIS YEAR.

Chicago, May 24.—[To the Friend of the People.]—When will the alley between Sixty-sixth place and East Marquette road, from the Illinois Central tracks to Stony Island avenue, be paved?

A SUBSCRIBER.

We have an assessment roll filed in the County court for paving with concrete the alley in the block between Marquette road, Sixty-sixth place, Stony Island and Blackstone avenues. We are not certain that the alley will be paved this year, as the proceedings have been delayed by objections filed by some of the property owners. A proceeding has been started for paving the alley in the block between Marquette road, Sixty-sixth place, Blackstone avenue, and Rossano street, and will hold the public hearing on the same as soon as the estimate of cost is prepared. This alley will not be paved until next year at the earliest.

PAVING CAMBRIDGE AVENUE.

Chicago, May 23.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Kindly inform me when Cambridge avenue north of Belden avenue will be paved.

FRANK KARL,
2841 Cambridge avenue.

The board of local improvements has ordered Cambridge avenue, from Belden avenue to the western terminus of Cambridge avenue, paved with asphalt. This matter was up for public hearing on April 28, 1915. The street will not be paved this year.

WIDOW ENTITLED TO ALL PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Chicago, May 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A Chicago resident dies intestate, leaving a widow, a mother, and brothers, but no children. Who inherits his estate, which consists of real estate and personal property?

J. R. K.

The widow is entitled to all of the personal property, one-half of the real estate as her own, a life interest in one-third, and a widow's allowance of enough to support her for one year. The remaining half of the real estate descends to the mother and brothers, subject to the dower interest of the widow. The mother takes two-thirds of the remaining half, or two-sixths, and the brothers divide the remaining one-sixth equally between them.

DISPOSING OF ESTATE WITHOUT WILL.

Chicago, May 26.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Where a man dies without a will (in Illinois) what is the widow's and children's share of the estate? Does it go to the husband's relatives?

DAILY READER.

The widow is entitled to a one-third interest in real estate for her lifetime and one-third of the personal property in her own right forever. Besides this, she is further entitled to a homestead interest of $1,000 and a widow's award sufficient to support her and minor children for one year.

WE ARE TO BE BOYCOTTED.

Chicago, May 29.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I beg to take exception to Mr. Brady's remarks regarding the attitude of the British army toward the Canadians. His version is very different from what I read in my London papers, which two weeks ago were singing with praise of our glorious Canadian troops, whose brave dead were to be honored with a memorial service in St. Paul's cathedral. I speak with authority, having three nephews in the army—four, alas, until a few weeks ago, when one was "killed in action." I shall make rigid inquiries from them.

I also protest strongly against the article by Henry J. Reilly regarding the apathy of the English. What does a stranger wandering around the streets know of the inner life of a reserved and quiet people? I could tell him of brave sisters of my own working hard to avoid thinking of the awful perils of their men for fear of loss of reason. I could tell him of things done in the night by young men I know, doing special constable work, while he doubtless is dreaming of some fault to find with a nation to whom you, Mr. Editor, in their time of stress have been far from kind. "Be to my virtues very kind and to my faults a little blind" has not been the case with you.

We English people out here have been very apathetic, although often inwardly boiling at inaccuracies in your paper, but after the war with the Huns is over and for whom you have so much consideration I trust every English man and woman will boycott your paper from their homes. I inclose my card and beg to remain

A DISGUSTED ENGLISHWOMAN.

A HOLLANDER ON OUR NEUTRALITY.

Chicago, May 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—As a subject of a European neutral country, I beg to submit that all concerned in the awful sea disaster were at fault—meaning Germany, England, and America. I think that the United States of America, as a neutral nation, should have prevented in some way her citizens from taking passage on a belligerent vessel which had manifestly 5,000 cases munitions and contraband of war on board. Then again were those Americans who secured passage on the Lusitania neutral?

Weren't there other waterways open to them? American line, Holland-America, Scandinavian-American, or Italian lines? I, traveling as I do, much between Europe and America, wouldn't have given the Lusitania a minute's thought, although knowing that according to international law, I had a right to do so (take passage on it)—when it comes to risking my life on a vessel of a nation at war, I gladly overlook my technical rights upon the high seas and choose a neutral passenger steamer, because I am a subject of a neutral country.

All I have seen so far of this American neutrality during my five months' stay in this country, from New York to San Francisco, is newspaper talk. Today, you cannot tell one fair minded person in Holland or Denmark that the United States is neutral. Right is right, and wrong is wrong. Don't pretend to be neutral, if you are not. With this spirit prevailing and with the adoption of an absolute embargo on munitions of war to all belligerents, I feel that your efforts, to go hand in hand with neutral European nations, would be accomplished sooner, and that your American neutrality would be more dignified.

BILLS WHICH SHOULD PASS.

Chicago, May 29.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Noting your article, "Death of Old Perils School for Abortion," I am writing to ask if you would not be willing to say something in behalf of a bill now pending in the legislature. It is a bill providing for the punishment of those who contribute to the delinquency of minors. Such a bill was passed some years ago, but last year the Supreme court held that its wording was such that only those persons who had the legal custody of a child could be held responsible for contributing to the child's delinquency; this decision has made it useless to prosecute any man or woman who has actually caused the delinquency of a girl or boy, and has brought about the greatest failure of justice toward children that one can conceive of.

It probably would be almost unbelievable to you if you could have the actual figures pertaining to the number of girls under 16 years of age who have recently or are soon to become mothers. I cannot state what the cause has been, but I feel very certain that the knowledge on the part of offenders that there is no law under which they can be prosecuted has been largely the cause of this condition.

I am sure that Mr. Robert Hogan, who is the attorney for the Juvenile court in the prosecution of cases such as I refer to, would gladly give you facts from his experience and that would enable the public to make a stronger demand upon the legislature before whom the bill will come.

Enclosed are copies of the bills, Nos. 296 and 317, referred to, which are now on third reading in the house of representatives.

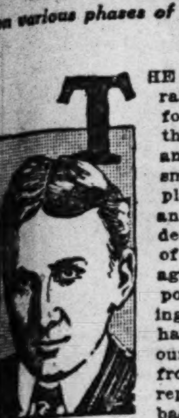
The Childishness of Man

Mr. Herrick is at present touring in southern Europe. He will write on various phases of the war as it affects the countries he visits.

By Robert Herrick.



THE English battle cruiser Invincible limped into Gibraltar yesterday for repairs just as we were leaving for Naples. She had been in the fight off the Falklands, then in the Dardanelles, where to all appearances she had had some hard knocks. One of her smoke stacks had been shot away and was replaced by a stub, a temporary affair, and there was an ominous tangle of equipment about her forward decks. As she swung cautiously into the water gate of the naval harbor, we had a good look at the damaged cruiser. The mighty Invincible seemed like some poor little gray toy that a careless boy had been playing roughly with. Alongside the mole of this inner harbor rested an old Cunarder that was being used, so our captain said, to transport some expert machinists from England. They were on their way to Malta to repair the famous Queen Elizabeth, which has also been badly damaged in the first attempt to pierce the Dardanelles. Otherwise Gibraltar was quiet, almost deserted, for the warships that usually hover about its gray rock are either on scout duty in the straits, holding up all passing boats, or at the Dardanelles, and the customary fleet of merchant steamers tarrying on their way in and out of the ancient pillars of Hercules is reduced to a few melancholy tramps held up for examination of their cargoes.

We were held up, too, for a night, because we had some cotton aboard for Italian firms. When we left America the English government had not decided that cotton was suspect, and the captain had congratulated himself that this time he had nothing in his hold that would interest the British authorities—the previous trip he had spent a week at Gibraltar because of some consignment to Switzerland and had been forced to unload his ship to get at the objectionable Swiss merchandise. But it seems that England has discovered the fact of the use of cotton in the manufacture of ammunition, and it is suspected that the ultimate destination of our cargo is not Italian factories. Anyway, they must refer the matter to London, which might take a day or a week, according to the mood of the London authorities. So we prepared to cross the Algeciras and have a peep at Spain, when unexpectedly the naval officers returned to the ship this morning and announced that they had already heard from London and that we were to be allowed to proceed, much to our satisfaction. I cannot say, of course, what went on in London, whether the authorities there changed their mind again about the contraband nature of cotton or whether they decided that the Italians really needed the staple, or simply that it might be a delicate matter to question the validity of the consignment now that Italy is so near to becoming an ally! Personally I was never so glad to get away from the shadow of the great gray rock with its ugly little spatters of barracks and houses. There is little to see in Gibraltar, and nowadays of course one can see nothing at all within the town, and the green Spanish hills, the misty African mountains, beautiful as they are, hardly compensate for a week spent gazing at the rock of England's Mediterranean power.

THE battered battleship and the three German vessels we saw "interned" at Punta del Garda in the Azores are the only immediate evidence of the war thus far. The trading ships rusting at their anchors—there are said to be a lot more of them at Lisbon as all over the world, in fact, which are being held at the expense of their enforced hosts—made one realize how little men have got beyond the state of childhood in the conduct of their affairs, how easily the silly prejudices and taboos of one set of boys against another set on the next block can be roused in grown men and in nations. War, in fact, brings out the boy in most men, the good side as well as the childish side of boy nature. War creates the atmosphere of the unexpected, the unknown, that every boy loves; it evokes the romantic in men.

Since we left port the stewards have sedulously darkened all the windows every night, not that there is anything hostile left on the open Atlantic to discover us; it is merely part of the war game, and both stewards and passengers would feel cheated if any of its rules were neglected. And so when we approached the Spanish coast the vigilance was redoubled in the hope of outwitting some submarine bolder than Columbus who might have ventured around France and through the Bay of Biscay to meet us. A month ago, it was rumored, one had been seen off Cape Finisterre—why not at the Azores, then? The cheerful buzz of the ship's wireless is no longer heard, for the admiralty regulations forbid the sending or receiving of messages except in case of grave necessity. Of course the ship's operator "listens in" every night to hear what he can of the world's doings, and his report leaks out among the ship's company the next day. Every ship listens all the time—naturally—who wouldn't? And that is another boyish trick.

Even in times of general peace all the forms exacted of vessels arriving in any foreign port have seemed to me childish, survivals of an old tribal state of society when anybody outside of the home clan must be suspected of evil intentions. A steamer drops anchor in some port after a long voyage—perhaps from the new world to the old—she cannot even drop her anchor except between the prescribed hours that are announced by the firing of a gun! First there comes from land a launch carrying the health officer of the port, who must discover any instances of contagious disease among the strangers that might be dangerous to the community. This official exchanges a few words with the ship's doctor, perhaps cigars are passed, and that form is over. The health taboo, the one sensible taboo of them all, is thus easily and quickly satisfied. Then comes the customs officers. This is ordinarily a much more serious affair, as usually property is more seriously considered than health. The customs officer takes a serious interest in what the stranger proposes to bring within the gates of his tribe, even in the small things that the passengers carry personally with them, and he uses various well known inquisitorial methods to discover and assess all property that the ship expects to land. For, as it obviously has all come from outside the limits of the tribe, it must be hostile material, the possession of some stranger tribe, and therefore liable to all sorts of fines and penalties, in some cases to confiscation.

Customs regulations, I think, illustrate most completely the survival in peace of that childish tribal spirit among mature men which war arouses. Apart from any economic absurdity in the tariff idea and aside from the dire political corruption that a tariff inevitably entails, also from the industrial weakening of the country that relies upon this form of taboo, the habit of collecting customs works another insidious harm in that it cultivates this tribal instinct in men, the desire to shut themselves off from other equally righteous peoples and to set up barriers that will be to the disadvantage of all their neighbors. Anything that encourages such a provincial way of taking life, that accentuates differences of opportunity and privilege—in brief that tends to increase the tribal instinct of men—is an indirect hindrance to progress, to civilization. This customs idea is a treasured relic of barbarism fostered in our modern world by the self-interest of a few individuals that make money out of its restrictions upon free exchanges among the peoples of the world. These days there is talk of increasing certain duties, for example, those on German coal tar dyes, in order that in the event of another world war we may be wholly independent of Germany, which has a virtual monopoly in this product. Reasoning on the assumption of another world war before this one is ended seems peculiarly barbarous.

NATURALLY war increases the consciousness of this primitive tribal instinct a thousand fold and gives it a sort of religious sanction that becomes irresistible to the ordinary men. We forget that other men may be made in God's image as well as ourselves and probably are as much attached to the image as we are. It becomes a patriotic duty not only to kill the foreigner but also to steal his property and to see that he is deprived of free intercourse with all his neighbors, even those who think better of him than we do—to worry him, in short, in every conceivable way just as we worry him all we dare in peace times by arbitrary restrictions on his trading privileges. And the result are those forlorn ships rotting out their usefulness in many of the harbors of the world, "interned," to use the learned euphemism of the profession; also in that dreary collection of so-called "neutral" merchant ships held up at Gib until some puzzle headed official in London makes up his mind that their cargoes are harmless. Hence also the poor battered battle cruisers and superdreadnaughts limping into dry dock for expensive repairs after a few well directed shells from the enemy's batteries.

No, whatever might have been said or sung in praise of warfare in the early days of man's career where he got into close personal conflict with his tribal enemies and did all the harm he could do to the person and the property of the antipathetic tribesman, war under modern conditions emphasizes its utter unreason and more especially its childishness in spite of 42 centimeter guns and superdreadnaughts. About the only unchildish element in modern warfare are those women and children who must mourn their dead and get along somehow the best they can without the aid of their men, who have been killed in the great tribal debauch.

Well, we have still three peaceful days before reaching Naples in which to enjoy this enchanted Mediterranean sea. As we pass between the snowy crests of the Sierra Nevada shining behind the mists and the purple African mountains I think of the true childhood of men that once was around these shores—of the many piratical expeditions they made against each other from the time that Ulysses set sail until Napoleon cast lustful eyes on the Pyramids. But such war was not the sordid scientific butchery of these days, rather the tumultuous headiness of spirited boys bent on adventure and the worlds beyond.

Listen to these prophetic words from Anatole France in his "Revolt of the Angels": "War and romanticism are both dreadful pests! What pity it is to see men cultivate a childish love for cannon and drums! They do not realize that war, which strengthened the hearts and created cities for ignorant and barbarous men, brings even to the conqueror these days nothing but ruin and misery. War is no better than a horrible and stupid crime now that all people are bound together by arts, science, and trade. Insane Europeans who are thinking of cutting one another's throats when the same civilization surrounds them and unites them!"

Since those words were written these "insane Europeans" have cut one another's throats by the million.

Japan's Ambition

TO know one's enemy and to know one's self is a strategical maxim that should always be acted upon. For the apparent enmity between the east and the west has its roots in the arrogant conviction of western nations that Asiatics are inferior and are to be made easy victims of western aggression. I admit that the higher civilization must always invade and overcome the lower; but I contend that the west received its civilization from the east, and by this means was able to turn the tide of oriental aggression westward. The western people made better use of the civilization handed on to them and they have triumphed, defeating the orient with its own weapons. But this superiority of the occident to the orient is only about four centuries old. When the orient makes proper use of its civilization it will again come to its own. In this great work Japan must take her place.

She is at present cleaning house in preparation. Japan at present has no enemy in the west. Her nearest possible enemies are those oriental nations who retard the march of modern progress. For this reason the greatest danger lies at Japan's door in China. Japan must keep her defenses up to a standard that will enable her to become arbiter in Chinese affairs so as to prevent western aggression in that country.

Japan of the present day is not of spontaneous growth. There is a deep underlying cause for the modern progress of the empire, and to understand new Japan it is necessary to know the causes that made such a wonderful development possible in so few years. The causes may be traced back to the feudal system which was the natural outcome of topographical conditions. The country was divided into many secluded areas, separated by mountain ridges. In these protected strongholds the barons established their authority. They were unified under the rule of the emperor, obtaining from him their appointment as governors of provinces. This system was formally abolished during the reign of Emperor Tenji, who promulgated an imperial decree for the inauguration of a system of local government and located the central power in the court at Kyoto.

A CAREFUL observer will not fail to see that the Japanese national character is the result of a powerful influence which has been active for centuries. It is this which has molded the social life of the people and affected their art and literature. It has formed the education of the mass of the people and developed traits that have come to be possessed by the whole nation.

The fact that the Japanese of the lower classes show superior qualities is a matter difficult of interpretation to the average foreigner. On the other hand, the upper classes, notwithstanding the fact that they were imbued with the most exalted ideals of nobility, exhibited in their character plebeian traits. This is apparently a paradox which has no precedent in the history of any of the European countries.

To understand the reasons for this condition of affairs it must be remembered that in the history of Japan there was a period when the whole country was at strife, when the central government had lost control, and in all parts of the empire there were incessant wars between the powerful feudal lords. This may be called the dark age of the Japanese history, and it lasted for 100 years, beginning with the latter part of the reign of the Ashikaga Shoguns. This was the period of the survival of the fittest.

Ancient feudal families were obliterated by bold chieftains who managed to muster a number of adherents together and to become barons, or daimyos. The changes which took place in the aristocratic families at this time were violent and rapid. The feudal lords had in their service large numbers of vassals who were obliged to earn their living by other means when deprived of their hereditary pensions. They became ronins. Some of them through sheer necessity had recourse to those means of livelihood which they had formerly held in contempt, such as farming and commerce. Others were even obliged to earn their bread as common laborers.

IF traced back far enough, among the lower classes may be found representatives who are descendants of the Genji and Taira families of the imperial line. So, today, the blood of nobles flows in the veins of farmers or laborers as a result of the violent changes that took place during the strife of civil war.

Gradually the national character was formed. The spirit of chivalry, the sense of honor, the readiness to help the weak and suppress the strong and arrogant, came to be embodied in the spirit of Bushido. The samurai, or Japanese gentleman, expressed compassion for others and a deep reverence for loyalty and bravery, otherwise he was not considered worthy of the name.

Acts of bravery, pity for the unfortunate, and resistance against the strong were to be found in such stories as "monogatari-gudan," or war stories, tales of revenge, as well as in novels. Plays and dramas were founded on these works of fiction. The joruri and gidayu stories that were sung while acted were also full of such themes.

In this manner the people were enabled to receive education, and the spirit of chivalry and honor was kept alive. When a story was related concerning the acts of a villain, the spirit of revenge was in the hearts of the listeners. In sermons delivered by Buddhist priests, if the familiar themes were not interwoven the words failed to appeal to the audience.

WHENEVER a nation of inferior civilization comes in contact with the far advanced occidental civilization the former is destined to perish, according to history. Look at the history of the Spanish and the Portuguese! With the aid of the Jesuit propaganda and the sword they swayed the whole world for centuries. With Europe as a center, they penetrated every country then known, South America, Africa, Australia, and the countries of the far east. It was invariably the case that the weak nations succumbed, as frost and snow melt before sunshine.

What was the result in the case of our own country? When the nation first came into contact with occidental civilization, what force came into activity? The Japanese nation rose as one man to assimilate the advanced civilization of the west rather than resist it. What the Japanese nation has been able to assimilate during the last fifty years from various countries is almost too wonderful to relate.

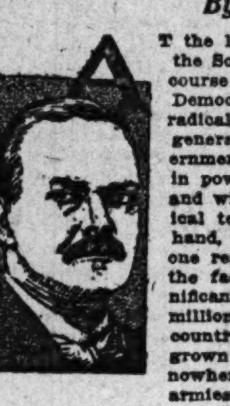
Religion itself was absorbed into the Japanese national character. The teachings of Buddha and Confucius, when once they were planted in Japanese soil, were assimilated. Confucianism was no longer Chinese, but Japanese, and the Buddhist religion of India also became changed. With regard to Christianity, there is no doubt but that it will gradually expand, yet it is destined to be assimilated into the Japanese national character.

The so-called civilization of New Japan is but of recent origin, hardly more than half a century, and if we deduct the period of confusion of the Meiji era, it is about forty years. What Japan has been able to achieve during this short space of forty years is almost beyond the range of imagination. She has accomplished what took other countries four centuries.

The Japanese ideal is to raise the civilization of the far east, with its 60 per cent of the world's population. The mission of Japan consists in safeguarding the peace of the far east by causing its civilization to progress.

German Social Democracy

By Edward Goldbeck.



AT the last primary election for the German parliament the Social Democratic party got four million votes. Of course not all of these voters are full fledged Social Democrats. Many of them probably voted for the most radical party only to express their dissatisfaction with general conditions, or even a special measure of the government, just as many Americans vote against the party in power because business is not what it ought to be and without indorsing through their vote all the political tenets of the party in opposition. On the other hand, there are surely lots of Social Democrats who for one reason or the other were not able to vote, and so the fact remains unaltered in all its tremendous significance. Imagine the meaning of the fact that four million men vote against monarchy in a monarchical country, against capitalism in a country which has grown rich in the last forty years at a pace paralleled nowhere besides in the United States, against standing armies in the country which is considered the prototype of militarism, against private property in a country in which ninety-nine out of a hundred men have no other aim but to make money.

There is hardly one principle dear to the aristocracy and the higher and lower middle class which the Social Democrats are not emphatically denying and denouncing. How is it possible that these millions of people never even tried to make a revolution? One should think that a "coup d'état" would not be difficult for millions of men trained in arms and organized all over the country! There is the army, certainly, but would the soldiers shoot at their proletarian brothers? They would, without any doubt, if the revolt were local only and could be suppressed in a few days, but their discipline would not resist a real revolution. Just the fact that the German army is a national army, that it emanates from the masses and returns into their ranks year after year, makes it difficult to use for police purposes. A workman who becomes a soldier for two years does not forget that he was a workman before and is going to be a workman after his time of service. His real interests are the interest of his class, and from his tenderest youth he has been trained in what the German Social Democrats call "Klassenbewusstsein," literally translated, "consciousness of class." So the army probably would and could not crush a revolution. At least the fear of the army is not the most momentous consideration. There are other ones, such as national temperament, historical developments, economical factors, scientific currents, and the influence of powerful personalities.

The German has the temperament of the zone in which he is living. The climate is neither exceedingly cold nor unbearably warm. There are no rapid changes, the seasons follow each other in a slow and, as it were, logical, procession. The country does not know volcanic outbursts, earthquakes, luxuriancy and rapidity of growth. Look at the great German poets and you will find very few who puzzle and overwhelm you like Pushkin or Byron. Goethe, who said of himself that at all the different seasons of his life he was just able to create what was adequate to the seasons, is thoroughly German in this development, which is not overrushed and overheated. There is, as long as you do not stir up the furor Teutonicus, a certain soberness in the German character which is a protection as well as a limitation. This soberness defends the peasant and the workman to a certain degree from demagogic rhetoric.

HISTORICAL development has not favored revolutionary tendencies either. The political awakening of the lower classes dates from the revolution of 1848, which was a revolt of the middle class and in which the workmen only acted the part of a chorus. Up to then the business of governing was entirely in the hands of the ruler. In Prussia not even the aristocracy participated in it. The king did everything and the nation obeyed, until Napoleon I. smashed the political idyll. But after centuries of dumb obeying it is not easy to rebel. The Hohenzollerns have been fathers of their country; most of them were severe, some of them unwise; but they all considered themselves responsible for their nation and the subjects felt like children. Even today the emperor is often called the father, the empress the mother, of their country. These feelings are not entirely obliterated. I have known a peasant who, when you mentioned the Emperor William I., always lifted his cap and said, "God bless our old father emperor!"

The economical development of Germany has been tremendous since 1870. The situation of the workman has improved very much, the emigration is negligible now. The workman owns little, but, little as it is, it is precious to him and he prefers to own a few things of which he is proud to the system which is heralded by the communistic theory, according to which you will have everything desirable in common with others, but nothing exclusively private. Anyhow, there is no reason for bitter resentment or heartrending complaint now. Werner Sombart has investigated the conditions of life of the American and the German workman and come to the conclusion that they do not widely differ.

Science has done something to keep the German workman on the path of reform. The German workman is a strenuous reader. It is pathetic to see how a man, after a day of hard work, sits down and reads not only the pamphlets of his party but Lessing, Heine, and our other classics. Do not try to cut out difficult words and scientific terms when you speak to an assembly of German workmen! They resent it, refuse to be treated like children, and claim that they can understand the technical expressions just as well as any other student of social economy.

There is one word which you will hear and read very often in these discussions and that is "evolution." This word, which reminds us of Goethe, Lamarck, and Darwin, has exerted a tremendous influence on the German Social Democrats. Most of them believe that the "natural" economical development will realize all their demands without revolutionary means, and this doctrine flatters their scientific cravings and is very welcome to a certain phlegm in the German character and to its antagonism to all kinds of disorder. Capital, they say, has the tendency of concentrating in very few hands and at a certain point of evolution it will be an easy and smooth operation to "expropriate the expropriators."

In the meantime the state or the communities are constantly and consistently enlarging the domain of public property and business. This development may be slow, but it is irresistible. And while it is going on our organization is gaining strength all the time. By the way, the Social Democrats themselves acknowledge that an organization like that would have been impossible without the teachings which "militarism" gave. The workmen learned to obey their leaders, as they had obeyed their officers. The army taught them that a single individual is nothing and that organization is power. But the mere existence of this wonderful organization is keeping them from the leap in the dark. If things should go wrong, if this "machine" should be smashed, everything would have to be built up from the bottom again. What sufferings, what sacrifices! The stake is too high. To put it epigrammatically: the Social Democrats are so powerful that they cannot exert their power.

They could if they had a Bonaparte! But the party abhors hero worship and the consequence is that it has no real leader. There are always more or less clever orators, but the orators are very seldom men of action, a psychological fact which is little heeded by democracies. Let us look at three people who have molded German social democracy.

THE first of them was Ferdinand Lassalle. He has created the party, he has instilled in the workmen the idea that it was necessary to get the political rights first, and from this Archimedic point to reorganize the bourgeois world. But Bismarck, who knew Lassalle well, was right when he said that Lassalle was a monarchical nature. He was in doubt whether the reigning house should be named Hohenzollern or Lassalle; but he was born an aristocrat and a man of monarchical and nationalistic tendencies. He had a keen understanding for international policy, and no leader after him has grasped the simple truth that the political and economical conditions of a country are dependent on its "milieu" to the same degree as a private man's business is dependent on his surroundings. Lassalle used to say: "Without the highest power, nothing can be done." He has praised war in his drama, "Franz von Sickingen," in glowing dithryambs. The fact that the German Social Democrats approved unanimously of the present war in parliament was, combined with many other motives, an aftermath of Lassalle's political action.

Karl Marx, Lassalle's teacher and friend, taught the workmen that the economical conditions dominate everything else, that a given society in a given country and at a given moment is nothing but the result and residium of the economical forces. This doctrine, of course, did not favor revolutionary purposes because a revolution would be political in its immediate aims. It might throw down the government, abolish the nobility, destroy the scanty prerogatives of the ruling classes, equalize men, women, and opportunities; in fact, do everything that has been done in the United States, only to become aware that all this is nothing but a preparation, a leveling of the soil, and that the house has to be built now. Pygmies can do that, but giants are necessary for the economical reconstruction which would fit the communist ideal. The leading man could not help seeing this, and so Marx's ideas increased the antagonism against revolution. The internationalism which Marx preached was a retarding factor, too. General ideas evaporate and you cannot be definite and precise enough if you want to unite workman for action. Marx was a thinker, Mazzini a conspirator, Bebel a propagandist, Jaurès a rhetorician; but there never was a general, and Germany is the only country which would have given him an organized army.

Bismarck is the man who has done most for the German workman and for the Social Democratic party. He created the insurance laws for every sort of emergency, which the famous Italian financier, Luzzatti, has characterized with the words: "It is the work of a Cyclops." When he thought that he had satisfied all the legitimate demands of the workmen he waged war against the party itself and by harsh laws and persecution he welded it together while he wanted to crush it. What else could he have done? Laissez aller was not in his nature and he did not believe in William's policy of haranguing dissatisfied subjects. The truth is that this party has come to stay. It came with capitalism and will not go before capitalism goes, which means, to put it mildly, not within measurable time. The only aim of the statesman's wisdom can be to hold the contending elements in what the chemist calls unstable equilibrium.

PEACE

BY DOUGLAS MALLOCH

Take down the battered bugle
And let it speak again—
Let the drum's mad beat
In the sunlit street
Keep time for the marching men.

Unfurl the tattered banner
To wave as once of yore
O'er the sleeping head
Of the soldier dead
Who shall look on its folds no more.

Take down the battered bugle
And sound the old time note—
Let us listen still
To the message shrill
That comes from its ancient throat.

But the red and rusted rifle,
The sword with the battle scar,
Shall leap not again
To the breasts of men—
Let them hang where they are, where they are!

Social Life in Germany.

Following are excerpts from Mr. Hueffer's new book, "When Blood Is Their Argument," published by the George H. Doran company, New York.

By Ford Maddox Hueffer.

SOCIAL life in Germany is singularly stereotyped and singularly wanting in incident. You will see the same people from year's end to year's end; they will be relatively few in number, and your interests, whilst they will be limited to the lives and careers of those people, will be rather abnormally occupied by those careers alone. If, that is to say, you know a rich manufacturer who "gets on," an officer who is singularly rapidly promoted, a state station master who rapidly rises to the position of controller of a whole railway center, and a professor who is promoted from a chair at the university of A. where only forty students attend his classes, to the University of Berlin, where he may have six or seven hundred, your outlook upon life will be larger than if your interests were entirely confined to watching the careers of only one of these people. And if your social circle is limited to sixteen families of your own standing whom you will entertain once in the year, being in turn yourself entertained once a year by each of the sixteen families, your outlook upon life will be a narrow one and your idea of the possibilities of social enjoyment will be proportionately limited.

I do not wish in the least to condemn social life in Germany. Each nation, no doubt, has the social system which it deserves or prefers, and there the matter ends. English social life is upon the whole easy going, free, and indefinite, but it happens to be curiously undemocratic in patches. German society, upon the other hand, is a thing of very rigid castes, but its democratic nature is quite startling in various directions.

I have seen in the same restaurant in Germany, all at similar tables, a reigning prince, two or three officers of a "noble" regiment, a small butcher, a small bootmaker, twenty or thirty young men who might have been clerks, twenty or thirty young men, who might have been students, and another twenty or thirty who might have been shop assistants; and the presence of the prince and the nobles created no sensation of any kind; it was a Sunday night and the orchestra was playing popular melodies, and everybody was happy.

I fancy that the real secret of these contradictory phenomena is that, in spite of the reforms of Stein and Hardenberg, the caste system in Germany is so rigid that the feeling of something like defilement in coming into contact with the lower classes that at least rudimentarily exists in other countries is in Germany simply unthinkable. A prince or a gentleman by descent could no more imagine any of the qualities of a tradesman "rubbing off" on to him if he chose to talk to the tradesman intimately, freely, and upon frequent occasions, than an angel could think of becoming mortal by paying comforting visits to a human being.

There the castes are, rigid and with unpassable barriers. There are the Thron-Fähig, or families capable of contracting marriages with royalty; the Adel, or nobles, who are not fit to contract marriages with the Thron-Fähig; the officials who tend more and more to breed in; the professorial classes who do the same; there are the "noble" regiments, whose officers are exclusively drawn from the Adel; and there are the peasant proprietors whose numbers hardly increase or diminish.

In the burgher class—the Mittelstand—there is a great flux of social advancement. So that the wife of a sausage manufacturer will inscribe her title "Frau Schweinmetzgerin Schmidt" quite as proudly in a hotel register as any Frau Obertribunal-prokuratorin in the world. She will have the sedate and assured consciousness that a pork butcheress is the wife of a man of a definite state in life, doing his duty, and having before God and in the eyes of the world an equal right to existence, with, say, the wife of a master in lunacy; and the wife of a master in lunacy will have much the same assurance with regard to a princess of a reigning house.

This is fairly true in a large sense, but I am not saying that snobbishness is nonexistent in Germany. It takes, however, a peculiar form—that of conferring conversational titles upon the people with whom you come in contact, either in order to please yourself with the thought that you are in the society of the distinguished or in order to receive some favor. Thus, if you wish to be quickly waited on in a restaurant you will call every waiter Herr Oberkellner, or "head waiter," and if you are anxious to have your luggage carried quickly from one platform to another you will raise your hat to a railway porter and call him Stations-unter-Vorsteher, or "substation inspector."

Bran Bread

1 pint Pillsbury's Health Bran, ½ pint Pillsbury's Best Flour, 1 level teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder sifted with the flour. Mix well and add 1½ cups sweet milk and 2 tablespoons molasses, [illegible] dark. Bake for 1 hour. Spread thin so loaf will be about two inches thick when baked.

Pillsbury's Health Bran

gives a delicious nut-like flavor to bread—makes it more digestible—and produces a laxative action without the slightest violence or griping.

Your doctor will recommend it most highly. Ask him.

IT'S ROUGH But IT WORKS

TAME FINISH IN MAY WHEAT

Last Trading Day of Month Devoid of Fireworks; Prices Lower.

CROP NEWS IMPROVES.

May wheat suffered a further setback yesterday and expired with prices 1½@2c lower for the day, the closing being on a range of $1.39½@1.39. Prices finished at 28c lower level than the high point on the crop last February. Trade was not large and there was scattered selling led by Armour, Perry-Price, and Wagner. Late in the day Logan-Bryan ran the price up sharply, but the market again eased off.

The deferred months were affected by the weakness in the May, by the lack of outside demand, slow cash inquiry, and the lower cables. Liverpool spot wheat was ½@1d lower. The English market was affected by the weak cables from this side and by prospects for liberal world's shipments. July closed 1c off; September closed 1⅛c down.

Big Exports Reported.

Official exports for the month of April were 29,000 bu, compared to 7,000,000,000 bu for the same month a year ago and for the ten months total clearances were 297,000,000 bu, wheat and flour. For the day seaboard reported clearances of 609,000 bu. It is expected the June clearances will continue heavy, as there is still a good deal of old wheat to go out. Reports were current of some buying of new wheat from the southwest, but the amount was reported light. The seaboard said the demand for new wheat was still slow.

Weather map still showed rains over good share of the forecast district, but there were more favorable indications for clearing conditions. In the main the crop outlook is regarded as favorable.

Better Outlook in Kansas.

Le Count, the crop expert for Barrell & Co., wired from Kinsley, Kas., that the outlook was the best in that section he had ever known with the exception of the phenomenal prospects last year. Snow was out with a report saying the general condition of the wheat crop was good, which should be taken into consideration when the Hessian fly damage is being considered.

Receipts were 305 cars, with 219 cars inspected yesterday. Primary receipts were 694,000 and western receipts for the week were 4,253,000 bu, compared to 3,159,000 bu a year ago. Argentine reports were favorable.

May Corn Trade Slow.

There was no special feature to the May trade in corn, the option expiring at 74⅝c, or ½c lower for the day. Other months were ⅛@¼c off. The market for cash corn was weak and prices were unchanged to ½c lower. Sales for shipment were 95,000 bu, including 50,000 bu for export. Offerings from the country continue light. Reports do not indicate any great amount of damage as a result of the rains and the outside buying demand is limited.

Cables were unchanged to ½d lower, reflecting the favorable advices from Argentina, where the weather conditions have shown much improvement. Ocean freights were reported cheaper and the expectation for larger Plate shipments appears to be warranted. Receipts were 41 cars, with 89 cars inspected yesterday. Primary receipts were 409,000 bu. Clearances for the day were small at 44,000 bu.

May Liquidation in Oats.

May oats were 1¼c lower. There was scattered liquidation and the deferred months also were heavy, closing a shade up for the September to ¼@⅜c lower for the July. The cash demand was fair and there were sales of 115,000 bu, part of which was to exporters. Receipts here were 72 cars, with 127 cars inspected yesterday. Primary receipts were 430,000 bu and clearances were 413,000 bu. Primary receipts for the week were 2,583,000 bu, against 3,466,000 bu a year ago.

Hog Products Are Firm.

Provisions were a little higher throughout the list. Offerings were light and there was a fair amount of buying, stimulated by the better demand for cash meats and lard. Receipts were 12,000 hogs, with 39,000 for Monday and 140,000 for the coming week. Prices at the yards were steady to a trifle higher. Receipts for the week were 497,000, against 400,600 a year ago. Liverpool prices were 1 shilling higher for backs and 6d up for Cumberland sides.

Rye Dull but Firm.

Rye was dull, but firm, at $1.18 bid for No. 2. Receipts, 15 cars.

Barley was firm, with malting 75@80c; feed, 75c; and screenings, 68@74c. Receipts, 27 cars.

Timothy seed held steady, closing at $7.10 bid and $7.25 sellers for September and $5.00@6.75 for cash. Cloverseed was quiet at $8.00@12.50 for country lots.

Duluth flax closed 1@2½c lower, with cash on track $1.92; May, $1.91; July, $1.93; September, $1.96; and October, $1.95½. Receipts, 4 cars. Minneapolis was 2c lower at $1.87@1.90 for cash on track. Receipts, 1 car. Winnipeg closed 1⅜c lower, with cash on track and May $1.72½; July, $1.73½; and October, $1.77. Receipts, 2 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE.

Patoka, Ill., wired Bennett: "Prospects fair for wheat; that is, we have a large acreage of wheat and probably two-thirds of it we think will be of excellent quality. Late sown wheat seems to have suffered more on account of fly. This is very unusual, the opposite usually being true. We are having rains now almost continuously. This, we think, will obliterate the chinch bug pest as regards wheat. They were very numerous in our wheat a few weeks ago. However, fly will do more damage than bugs, by far. Our wheat on an average will show almost one-half acreage is slightly to say badly damaged by fly. Notwithstanding all this, we hope to have more wheat to ship out than for years. Cutting will probably begin about during week of June 7."

All May options expired without any particular excitement. May was $1.39@1.39½ after selling as low as $1.37, and then up to $1.40⅝ and back to the closing figures. May corn was ½c off and May oats 1¼c lower. Trade was fair in May wheat, but there was only a moderate trade of an evening up kind in coarse grains. In general the market was regarded as well as evened up in all pits. At times in wheat a little selling or buying caused sharp swings, but on the whole the trade was without special incident. Only a moderate amount of wheat was delivered in car lots, sellers preferring to deliver it out of store wherever possible.

Le Count wired Barrell from Kinsley, Kas.: "From McPherson to Hutchinson lots of poor fields, also lots of splendid wheat. This district will harvest fairly good crop with favorable weather. From Hutchinson west crop is very spotted as result of early hot weather, but will raise fair crop. This territory is the best, with the exception of last year, that I have ever seen. Conditions improving everywhere. Weather cool. Looks like clearing up. Ideal wheat weather."

The shipping demand was moderate for wheat both here and at the seaboard. Buyers generally appear to be waiting for the readjustment of prices the coming month before taking on much grain. Cash prices were nominally about steady yesterday. June wheat sold at $1.34 bid. The May closed at $1.39@1.39½. Minneapolis May wheat was 7⅝c lower for the day, and the northwest markets generally were heavy.

B. W. Snow after investigating wheat conditions reports that conditions are especially bad in regard to Hessian fly in Missouri, practically the whole of that state being affected; southern Indiana, southern Illinois, west central Kansas, and northern counties of Oklahoma affected badly. In general he reports the winter wheat in vigorous condition, while the damage has been mainly of a local character.

J. T. McLaughlin & Co. say of wheat: "The most important period of the crop year is near at hand. The securing of the crop in good condition is the most important question now, and when that is done we can go ahead with disposing of it. With the heavy rains in the west and southwest, climatic conditions should receive a great deal of attention, and we look for a weather market for the time being."

A letter to C. Strasser from H. C. Vollmer of Lostant, Ill., said the outlook for oats and wheat was good and that as the ground for corn had been well prepared before the rains there was no damage of consequence and that the fields were not unusually weedy. Cool weather was reported better for corn, while it is so wet.

John Inglis wired Logan-Bryan from Columbia, Tenn.: "Kentucky and Tennessee will not exceed half a crop. Occasional good fields, but they are overshadowed by a large acreage that is poor. Much is absolutely worthless. Some fly but other causes more serious. Barley ready to cut. Oats coloring. All small grain poor."

W. L. Gregson says of provisions: "We look for a good hog movement in June and some price pruning in their value and possibly some moderate decline in the July and September futures, but on the whole for a summer's campaign we should be inclined to favor the holders' position."

Buenos Aires cabled that near wheat month was under pressure, but that July was firmly supported. The demand for wheat is said to be unprecedented. Export bids generally are maintained. Corn was weak owing to clear and cool weather and easier freights.

H. S. Antrim of Cairo, Ill., writes that conditions in the south are excellent, crops doing well. His reports from southern Illinois and southeast Missouri also favorable with no indications of damage from too much rain.

Cash corn here was unchanged to ½c lower and oats were ½@1c down. Shipping sales were 95,000 bu corn and 115,000 bu oats, including 50,000 bu corn and 90,000 bu oats for export. Country sales of all grains continue light.

Estimated receipts for Monday: Wheat, 219 cars; corn, 89 cars; oats, 127 cars; rye, 15 cars; barley, 27 cars; hogs, 39,000 head. Hogs for all next week, 140,000 head.

The rate of interest for the month of June, 1915, under the provisions of the board of trade rule, will be 5 per cent as fixed by the finance committee.

Final May deliveries yesterday were 375,000 bu wheat, 100,000 bu corn, 150,000 bu oats, 1,250 brls pork, and 250 tcs lard.

A membership on the board of trade was posted for transfer by Ebenezer Warner.

Minneapolis stocks of wheat increased 15,000 bu for one day.

Northern States Power.

E. P. K.—The Northern States Power company is a Byllesby holding corporation whose subsidiaries operate in many cities and towns, principally in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and the Dakotas. Most of that territory has been exceedingly prosperous in the last year and the business of the company has prospered. For the year ended March 31 last, gross earnings increased $622,207, or 15.7 per cent over the preceding year, while there was an increase of $150,05[illegible], or 7.8 per cent in operating expenses and taxes, with net earnings of $2,515,549, a gain of $472,150, or 23.1 per cent. Fixed charges for the year increased $184,628, or 14.9 per cent, and preferred dividends were larger by $6,806, leaving a surplus of $511,742, as against $231,026 for the preceding year, a gain of 121.5 per cent. The earnings were equal to 8.58 per cent on the common stock, compared with 3.86 per cent the year before. Electric customers increased from 37,179 at the end of 1912 to 56,945 at the close of 1914, while total customers for all classes of service were 69,240 Dec. 31, 1914, compared with 48,366 Dec. 1, 1912. The holding company has outstanding $8,386,700 of preferred stock, on which 7 per cent dividends are paid, and $5,975,000 common, also $5,000,000 collateral lien notes.

Atchison and Northern Pacific.

W. A. W., Nebraska City, Neb.—The Atchison railway earned nearly 7½ per cent on its common stock in the year 1913-14 and its earnings since then have improved. For the nine months to March 31 earnings are at the rate of 9 or 10 per cent on common stock. Northern Pacific just about earned its 7 per cent dividend in the six months from June 30 to Jan. 1 last, but the report for the nine months to March 31 makes a better showing and indications are that the year's surplus will be as good as that for last year, when earnings equaled 7.93 per cent on stock.

People's Life.

M. P.—The People's Life company showed a big gain in business in 1914, partly because it reinsured the policies of the American Life, which retired. There were about $1,500,000 of these policies. The company gained $2,587,958 of insurance during the year and its total in force reached $6,004,330. The assets increased from $245,532 to $328,451, but the net surplus remained almost stationary, increasing from $1,136 to $1,722.

Mississippi Valley Gas.

W. A. N.—The Mississippi Valley Gas and Electric company has $5,000,000 of bonds outstanding. They are secured by the deposit of $4,500,000 preferred and $2,500,000 common stock of the Louisville Gas and Electric company of Delaware. The latter company paid only 1 per cent instead of 1½ as its last quarterly dividend on preferred stock. These bonds need more security.

Profit Sharing and Gum.

M. R., Lincoln, Ill.—Stock of both the United Profit Sharing corporation and the Sterling Gum company is speculative. The former is supposed to be earning large profits, but it has made public little definite information and has declared no dividends except the issue of four shares at par last January to the holder of each share of old stock. Sterling Gum incorporated in April, 1914. Its report for the period ended Dec. 31 last showed sales aggregating $744,000 and a deficit of $125,000.

STEEL CITY OPENS SERVICE BY BOAT TO NEW ORLEANS.

Trip from La Salle Begun by Vessel Loaded with Dry Goods, Drugs, and Groceries.

The good ship Steel City, loaded to the gunwales with such romantic commodities as dry goods, soap, pianos, drugs, and groceries, slipped its moorings at La Salle, Ill., last night and began the long journey to New Orleans. The Steel City is the first of a line of steamers that will carry freight from Chicago to the Crescent City.

The goods on the present trip were shipped by rail from Chicago to La Salle, but in the future a fleet of nine barges will be employed in the first stage of the journey out of Chicago. The Steel City is expected to dock in New Orleans on Friday and to return in time to start south on its second trip on June 19. The capacity of the ship is 1,000 tons.

Stops will be made at St. Louis, Memphis, Baton Rouge, and other river towns.

SUES CITY FOR $500,000 DAMAGE TO BUILDING.

Unity Alleged to Have Sunk Following Construction of Tunnel Permitted by the Municipality.

The city of Chicago is made the defendant in two suits for $500,000 damages filed in the Circuit court yesterday by the owners of the Unity building at 127 North Dearborn street.

The declaration asserts the construction of a tunnel in an adjoining alley by the Illinois Tunnel company caused the foundation of the building to sink. This necessitated additional supports for building and depreciated the value of the leasehold estate.

The city is declared to be responsible, because it issued the permits for the construction of the tunnel.

One suit for $250,000 was brought by the Unity Safe Deposit company and the other for the same amount was started by Edward A. Nixon.

A California View.

F. P. Schreiber, cashier of Union Trust company, has received from the American National Bank of San Francisco the following:

"No matter how hard business strives to disregard the effect of the war, its influence is farther reaching than most of us care to admit. The appalling magnitude of the conflict suffices to intimidate the strongest, regardless of otherwise excellent underlying conditions.

"With fine crop indications, good markets, credit balances piling up abroad, and an extremely easy money situation in financial centers, it would seem that the country, as a whole, should be as prosperous as at any time in its history. And this might be the case if it were possible to overcome the purely mental hazards conjured up by business men, capitalists, and bankers whenever approached by any one seeking funds for capital investment."

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, May 29.—Money and discount rates were quiet today. The news from the front was considered more encouraging, and the stock market had a cheerful tone. Home and foreign bonds were firm, and Kaffirs were good features on Cape buying. Oil shares were steady. American securities were dull. Prices declined fractionally during the short session, but the closing was steady. Bar silver, 23 5-16d per ounce. Money, 1¼@1½ per cent. Discount rates—Short bills, 2⅝@2¾ per cent; three months, 2 13-16@2⅞ per cent.

PARIS, May 29.—Trading was quiet on the bourse today. Rentes, 72 francs 50 centimes. Exchange on London 26 francs 4½ centimes.

Early Heaviness Gives Way to Improvement and Firm Close.

TRADE GROWS BETTER.

Total sales of stocks, 136,000 shares.

Total sales of bonds (par value), $998,000.

New York, May 29.—In the face of a double holiday and strong intimation that Germany's reply to Washington's note in the matter of the Lusitania might be made public before the resumption of business on Tuesday, today's brief session of the stock exchange was altogether a superficial affair.

The tone at the outset was irregular, gradually verging toward heaviness on rumors that Germany had issued another marine warning. More careful perusal of this notice served to allay apprehension and in some quarters was regarded as a desire on Berlin's part to show greater conciliation. Leading stocks made full recovery in the final dealings, the market closing with a firm tone.

Low Priced Rails Contrary.

Shares of the low priced railways, mainly the Rock Island and Missouri Pacific, moved contrarily. Rock Island was again under moderate pressure, but Missouri Pacific displayed greater steadiness on announcement that more notes had been deposited under the plan to extend payment for another year.

Routine news bore on the general trade situation, the leading dry goods interests professing to see further improvement. Advices touching upon the steel industry told of great activity at leading centers of manufacture.

The Canadian Pacific railway submitted its report of earnings for April, showing a loss in net of $657,000 and a total decrease since last July of $7,674,000. Canadian Pacific was firm in London, but inclined to further heaviness here. The Erie railroad's returns for April also showed the effect of increased operating expenses, with a decrease of $380,000 in net.

Large Expansion of Loans.

The bank statement disclosed another large expansion of loans, but the actual cash gain amounted to considerably over $6,000,000, with an increase of slightly more than $5 000,000 in reserves.

Bonds were irregular on moderate trading. U. S. coupon 4s advanced a point on call during the week.

Hog receipts of 11,000 head met with a brisk demand at firm prices, averaging at $7.73, against $7.71 Friday. The trade was active and values were fully maintained up to closing rounds, when slight concessions had to be made to clear inferior mixed hogs. The market closed in a healthy condition, with prime butchers and lightweights quoted up to $7.85 and the bulk of all grades at $7.65@7.80. Pigs were steady for the day and in good demand at the prices.

Final values made hogs 10@15c higher than a week ago, while pigs finished unchanged to 25c higher for the week. Receipts for six days aggregated about the same as last week, or around 142,000 head. The average price for the week was also unchanged, or $7.65, and compared with an average of $8.20 for the corresponding week last year. The live stock market will be open as usual on Monday, Decoration day, but all packing plants will be closed for the day and there will be no slaughtering.

Hog purchases for the day: Armour & Co., 3,000; Swift & Co., 1,000; Sulzberger & Sons, 500; Morris & Co., 900; Anglo-American, 1,500; Hammond, 1,400; Boyd-Lunham, 200; Roberts & Oake, 1,000; Western Packing Co., 1,100; Miller & Hart, 300; Independent Packing Co., 800; Brennan Packing Co., 100; butchers, 200; shippers, 1,200; total, 13,200.

CATTLE.

An uneven market was experienced by the cattle trade at Chicago this week and prices underwent irregular revisions. Yearling steers and heifers, which had been selling as fast as they were shown, met with a disappointing demand and finished the week at a decline of 25@40c for the bulk. Aged steers, on the other hand, met with more favor than in preceding weeks, and closed 10@15c higher than a week ago. The heavy steers were included in this advance and sold to better advantage than for some time. Cows and heifers, excepting the yearling heifers, closed at an advance of 15@25c for the week, grass and dairy cows participating in the upturn. Bulls closed unchanged to 10@15c higher than a week ago, while veal calves were 25c lower. All slaughtering operations in packing houses will be suspended on Monday, Decoration day, but live stock will be received and sold as on any any other market day.

Cattle receipts at six western markets for the week 106,200, against 107,300 the preceding week, 101,400 a year ago, and 112,300 two years ago. Total for 1915 to date, 2,434,000, against 2,366,000 the same period in 1914.

SHEEP.

Aged sheep at Chicago this week sold $1.00 to $1.75 lower than last week and closed at the full decline. Yearling offerings showed a loss of 75c to $1.00 for the week, while shorn lambs sold sharply higher at the beginning of the week and closed practically unchanged after a decided reaction. Only one string of wooled lambs was received, and it established a new record for this market by selling at $11.85, 20c higher than the previous record. The demand could not have provided for any more at that figure, which probably will stand for some time to come as the zenith of lamb values on the open market. Spring lambs closed at a decline of $1.00 for the week. Requirements of the consumptive demand for dressed mutton has been greatly curtailed by the high prices that have prevailed during the last few weeks, and only moderate marketings of sheep and lambs are now required to meet the needs of the trade. There will be slaughtring of muttons at Chicago Monday, Decoration day, but animals received will be sold and provided for as on any normal market day.

MILWAUKEE MAN SUES UNION BANK ALLEGING FRAUD

Landis Forbids Disposal of $8,000 Securities Pending Decision in Dispute.

A bill for an injunction was filed in the United States District court yesterday against the Union Bank of Chicago, Charles E. Schlytern, president; Gustave E. Claussen, a former director and consulting engineer; Eugene Purtelle, a promoter; W. A. Miller, a broker, and Attorney E. Leslie Cole.

The bill was filed by Attorney David D. Stansbury in behalf of Dr. Frederick C. Gillen of Milwaukee. Dr. Gillen seeks to restrain the bank, its officers, and the individuals named from disposing of $8,000 worth of stocks and notes belonging to the complainant and now in control of the bank through fraudulent means, it is alleged.

Judge Landis, on motion of Attorney Stansbury, granted a temporary restraining order pending a hearing of the dispute. The property in question consists of collateral stock valued at $4,200 and notes valued at $3,800.

Finances of Interurban Line.

The dispute grows out of an effort to finance the construction of an interurban line between Richmond, Ind., and Hamilton., O., in July, 1914. The company was formed in Indiana under the name of the Richmond-Hamilton Traction company with a capital of $10,000.

The road was to be twenty-two miles long and contract for its construction was given to Engineer Claussen, who started work on the line.

In February, 1915, the same individuals, according to the bill, incorporated the same company in Ohio, with the same capital. Dr. Gillen alleges that on Feb. 25 he was induced by Attorney Cole and Promoter Purtelle to make advances of money in furtherance of the railroad promotion enterprise, and that three notes for various amounts which he had given previously were discounted at the Union bank and canceled.

Trouble Over Deed.

It is alleged further that Purtelle executed a quit claim deed to real estate in Park Ridge and delivered it to Dr. Gillen for the purpose of raising a loan. Subsequently Dr. Gillen found that another deed to the property had been given by Cole to Bernard L. Drake, a clerk in his law office. He also avers it was impossible to get a loan on the property.

Under duress, it is alleged, Dr. Gillen delivered 3,000 shares of stock in the Tonopah-Victor Mining company and thirty shares in the Nugent sanitarium of Milwaukee. It is then alleged that Claussen and Purtelle made false representations as to the railroad enterprise, diverting the money raised to their own use. Some of the stock, it is charged, was hypothecated with W. A. Miller for $750.

When credit failed them, according to the bill, Purtelle and Claussen resorted to a "check kiting" scheme between the Union bank and the First National bank of Tipton, Ind. When the "kiting" scheme collapsed, it is charged, the promoters found themselves indebted to the Union bank to the amount of $903. It was at this point in the alleged conspiracy, the bill avers, that President Schlytern took a hand by withdrawing the bank's support of the railroad enterprise unless the shortage was made good.

AGREE ON PLAN FOR SHORE WORK

Members of Council Body Settle on Ordinance Approving Contract.

I. C. MAY OBJECT.

Negotiations for a settlement of the controversies that have held up the south shore improvement were again revived by a subcommittee of the council harbors committee yesterday.

The subcommittee agreed on the substance of an ordinance approving the contract between the south park commissioners and the Illinois Central railroad and asking the secretary of war to issue the necessary permit.

The ordinance is so drafted that it must be accepted by the Illinois Central and the park board before it becomes effective. Robert Redfield, attorney for the board, assured the aldermen of the approval of the commissioners.

Railroad May Be Hostile.

The attitude of the railroad may be hostile. The subcommittee incorporated a clause requiring the Illinois Central to submit to city supervision with respect to improvements on newly made land. According to the lawyers such a provision would compel the railroad to treat with the city concerning its new terminal.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Skinner suggested that this requirement be made even more stringent.

Thinks I. C. Will Balk.

"I am in favor of that," said Chairman H. E. Littler, "but the chances are the Illinois Central would absolutely refuse to accept such a proposition. That would mean either the termination of the whole scheme or an indefinite delay. I believe the city's rights are protected as the ordinance stands."

The ordinance will be redrafted in accordance with the action of the subcommittee. It will then be submitted to President Charles H. Markham of the Illinois Central. Mr. Redfield urged the subcommittee to act without further delay.

We believe that no Tire Manufacturer can afford to make statements in print about his product, which statements cannot be borne out by the performance of his Tires, in actual use.

We believe that the Tire has never been made which will not "Rim-Cut" if run "flat" for any considerable distance, and that many Makers, including ourselves, have always produced Tires that would not otherwise "Rim-Cut."

We believe that many more Tires "Break-at-the-Bead" than Cut at the Rim.

WE believe that the Rubber Riveting System of attaching the Tread to the Carcass (by means of a loosely-woven fabric, which permits the raw Rubber to percolate through its meshes and then Vulcanize to Carcass and Tread) prevents, to a large extent, Tread-Separation.

We have long used this in "Goodrich" Tires, as a commonplace part of our Precision policy, but without laying any particular stress upon it.

We believe that the "Double-Cure" process, common with a great many Tire Manufacturers under different names, adds unnecessary expense to Tire Cost, which expense the Methods of the Goodrich Factory eliminate through its Precision "Single-Cure."

We believe that the cutting out of needless expenses like this (which our Precision Methods save) constitutes one of the strongest reasons why the largest Rubber Factory in the World (Ours) produces the greatest Mileage—per Dollar of Cost—in its Tires.

GOODRICH FAIR-LISTED TIRES

—and Another Solid Train Load Coming

WHEN our last train load of King Eights arrived, on April 15th, we thought we were fixed for a large part of the season. But no! In scarcely more than a few days cars are gone. "Startling," you say? Yes and more than that.

This car smashes all precedents. So far we have sold the equal of three train loads. Our last order—a $101,250.00 shipment—was the world's largest single order ever placed for eight cylinder cars—the first train load of eights to come to Chicago and the first train load of motor cars of any make to arrive here this year—and yet buyers snapped them up almost before they reached our warehouse.

So We've Ordered 25 Car Loads More

Frankly, we were forced to do it, and, by a kind stroke of fortune, we were just able to get the cars. They will arrive June 3d. There are scores of buyers here waiting for these cars. With this big train load coming, we can now promise immediate deliveries, but no one can tell how quickly this stock, too, will be sold out.

So, if you want this wonderful popular price eight, the wisest thing to do is to put your order in at once. By the way, it takes an organization of unusual strength to finance deals of this size. If you value permanency of the service behind your car, just keep this in mind. You can be sure of our always being here to take care of you.

America's original Cantilever Spring Car—carries you in comfort without shock absorbers. Holds any road no matter how rough.

The most accessible Eight. Camshaft and valve guides exposed at a moment's notice. Equipped with Ward Leonard electric starting and lighting system and engine driven tire pump. Equipment is complete to the last detail.

See moving picture exhibit at our showroom on Michigan Avenue—wonderful scenes in King factory—departure of the train load shipment to us—arrival in Chicago—unloading of cars—customers buying—remarkable King Eight story from building of car to Chicago owner.

Get your order in at once, and be sure of getting your car when you want it. We cannot promise deliveries after this second big train load is gone. Sales in the King factory for the first three months are many times the volume in the same period of last year. And they are climbing every day. Order today and avoid disappointment.

CORNELL TEAM TAKES HONORS IN TRACK MEET

Table of Points.

Cornell	45½	Columbia	10
Harvard	26	Maine	9
Yale	25	Penn. State	6
Pennsylvania	21	Johns Hopkins	1½
Princeton	21	Mass. Tech	1
Dartmouth	14	Bowdoin	1
Michigan	14

BY T. D. RICHTER.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 29.—[Special.]—Cornell won the fortieth annual intercollegiate track and field championships on Franklin field this afternoon with the total of 45½ points, but the Ithacans' victory was completely overshadowed by the wonderful running of Ted Meredith of the University of Pennsylvania, who gave the greatest exhibition of gameness and racing in the history of American athletics.

The Penn flyer won both the quarter and half mile runs, an unprecedented feat in intercollegiate running. In each case Meredith beat runners of exceptional ability, equaled the intercollegiate record of 48 seconds in the quarter and was only a second behind the record in the half mile with 1:54 2-5.

Both Dashes to Smith.

Ranking close to the work of Meredith in spectacularity was the wonderful sprinting of Smith of Michigan university. He won both the 100 yard dash and 220 yard dash. In both events he beat fast fields and finished each in even time, 10 seconds and 22 seconds. Smith was the only other double winner.

While Smith was running the 220 yard dash, the last event on the program, the ranking of the other teams was decided. Teschner of Harvard beat out Treadway of Yale for second place and Harvard took second with 26 points, Yale getting 25.

Two intercollegiate records went by the boards. In the high jump Oler of Yale furnished the surprise of the meet by beating Richards of Cornell, the Olympic champion with a record leap of 6 feet 4½ inches. Bailey of Maine furnished the other record in the hammer throw with a toss of 165 feet ¾ inch.

Two Dashes to Smith.

Smith, the Michigan sprinter, scored his first victory in the 100 yard dash. Running in beautiful form in the final heat, Smith took first place in the fast time of 10 seconds. He took the lead at the crack of the gun and, opening up a two yard lead at the fifty yard mark, had no trouble holding it to the tape. In his semi-final heat in this event Smith was content to qualify in second place to Teschner, the Harvard star, whom he beat in the final.

Smith followed the same method he had employed in the short dash, in his effort at the furlong event. He was content to run second to Patterson of Penn in his heat, which was covered in 22 2-5 seconds. In the final he beat all the other starters away from the mark and though Teschner of Harvard clung to his flank he gradually widened the gap to three yards at the finish.

Although Cornell won the meet, by a remarkable coincidence the Ithacans only won one event, Potter taking first place in the two mile run. The Ithacans' great distance stars and Richards, the jumper, who were counted as sure first place men, failed to come through.

Meredith Star in Quarter.

Meredith's spectacular work began in the quarter mile event. In this he had at least five rivals with records of better than fifty seconds. He took the lead in the first fifty yards and never was headed. Wilcox of Harvard challenged him in the stretch, but could not hold the pace and Meredith won in 48 seconds.

Less than an hour later he faced another remarkable field in the half mile. The Quaker led for a quarter of a mile, when two Cornell men, Speiden and Beckwith, jumped ahead. Meredith never faltered, but rushed into the stretch, passing the pair on the outside and winning by only two yards.

Meredith was chosen captain of next year's Pennsylvania team at the election tonight.

The weather conditions were entirely favorable to record performanecs. For a half hour previous to the start of the first event a light rain fell, which served to pack the track and clear the air. The rain stopped when the races began, and all day the sky was overcast. There was not a breath of air stirring either to favor or handicap the athletes. Only about 7,000 saw the meet, owing to the threatening weather.

Summary of Events.

One mile run—Won by I. D. Mackenzie, Princeton; L. V. Windgate, Cornell, second; H. L. Carroll, Michigan, third; S. K. Atha, Princeton, fourth; H. E. Irish, Cornell, fifth. Time, 4:22 4-5.

Pole vault—L. Carter, Yale; M. L. Greeley Jr., Harvard; F. K. Foss, Cornell, tied for first place at 12 feet; J. A. Baker, Princeton, fourth, 11 feet 6 inches; H. E. Wilson, Michigan, fifth, 11 feet.

Hammer throw—Won by H. P. Bailey, Maine, distance 165 feet ¾ inch; his throw yesterday, which is a new intercollegiate association record; J. C. McCutcheon, Cornell, second, distance 160 feet 2 inches; D. P. Murphy, Pennsylvania, third, distance 153 feet 6 inches; P. Loughridge, Yale, fourth, distance 152 feet 1 inch; G. W. Leadbetter, Bowdoin, fifth, distance 147 feet 9 inches.

Well Steve my 1st. attack come after Id went to bed Wed. night so what ever I ett must of been Wed. and it couldent of been what I ett for breakfast or lunch or it would of showed up quicker so I been trying to figure what I could of ett Wed. evening that done it to me. 1st. I had supper up to the hotel and I wasent verry hungary and dident eat none of the soup at all but just the fish and a few red dishs and unions and salery end then roast it chicken and mash potatos and gravey and 2 matos and pie and N. Y. ice cream and the hotel where we stop at there has a bout the best food in the leage so I dont think they could of been poyson in what I ett there and after supper a friend of mine that I knew come and called for me and we went over to harleys and played shovel bord a wile and then walked down chestnuts st. and histed a few and then he ast me did I like crab meat and I hadent never tasted it so he says it was better then lobsters or C food so he took me over to a place where you can get a big plate of it for a dime and honnest Steve it was the best stuff I ever tasted of it and it was so good it dont seem possable it could of been poyson but it must of been or where would I of got poysoned. we had some beer a long with it but if beer was poyson Gussy would of been a widow beffore she was marred. So we had 3 dishes of crab meat a peace and then we come back to the hotel and it wasent only a little after 9 so we went back to harleys and had a drink and while we was there 1 of the boys come in with a bag of fride cakes but I dident only eat 2 of them and they couldent of been the poyson or why wouldent the others of got poysoned and they ett more of them then I did. so finely we went back to the hotel again and I went to bed and I couldent of been lane down more then a ½ hr. when I was tooken with cramps.

Well Steve I thot it was all off with me and I couldent even get out of bed to go to the phone and call up a Dr. so I just made up my mine I was going to die there all a lone with out no body a round me and I wondered what Gussy would say when she herd a bout it and what her old man would say and I bet he wouldent of even boughten a new black sute but kept on wareing the 1 hes got and Gussy says it was black when he got it but the out side skins all wore off and finely I felt better enough so as I could get up and I went to the phone and called up the clerk and ast him where was they a good Dr. and he says they was 1 right there in the hotel so I ast him to come up and he come up and ast me what had I been eating and I told him and he says your not poysoned your floundered and I says was that dangerus and he says it was and I ast him what should I do for it and he says use a little judgement and walked on out so I waited and tot may be he would come back with some medisine but he dident never show up again but when I come to leave the hotel he had a bill in on me for $2.00 bucks and hows that for a 2nd. story game Steve because I thot of corse if he was the hotel Dr. he was included in on the hotel bill or I wouldent of never called on him and besides all he done was walk in my room and out again and if a man gets $2.00 dollars for walking from 1 room in a hotel to an other I wonder what they pay the chamber mades per day.

so the next A. M. I felt better when I got up but got sick again right after breakfast and I been sick after evry meal sence and so I dont know what is the finnish going to be. I just got threw my breakfast a little wile a go and the cramps come back on me again and I told Bresnahan and he says it was probily because I had a lot of base hits botteled up in my cistern that was trying to get out and I says its no time to start jokeing with a man when there ½ dead and he shut up.

Well Steve I dont know how its going to end but I cant stand it much longer and how do I know it aint some slow poyson that was put in that crab meat by some body to kill some body they was sore at and of corse it couldent of been ment for me because they aint no body in philly sore at me accept may be them pitchers and how this Alexander gets by with his stuff it would take 1 of these college school teachers to fine out. Well Steve I will write to you after we get home provide it Im not dead and in a hospitle.

OHIO TAKES STATE MEET; DUNN STAR OF CONTESTS.

Columbus, O., May 29.—Ohio State university won the Ohio Intercollegiate Big Six track meet here today with 64 points, while Oberlin ranked second with 40, half of which were made by Dunn, the individual star of the meet. Alexander of Case reduced the Big Six half mile record of 1:58 2-5 to 1:57 3-5. The ranking of other collegiate teams is as follows: Cincinnati, 14; Ohio Wesleyan, 12; Miami, 11; Case, 11; Kenyon, 7; Wooster, 4, and Western Reserve, 1.

Ohio State won the relay in 3:29 3-5. Dunn of Oberlin took first in the 100 yard and 220 yard dashes, the 120 yard high and 220 yard low hurdles.

PICK MAROONS OR WISCONSIN TO LAND TITLE

Look Best of the Teams Named for Big Nine Meet at Urbana.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Following the announcement of the official list of entries for the fifteenth annual outdoor track and field meet of the Western Intercollegiate Conference Athletic association, to be held by the University of Illinois at Urbana on Friday and Saturday, close followers of collegiate athletics pick Chicago and Wisconsin as contenders for premier honors.

The Maroons won the indoor title, and if they live up to past performances, the outdoor honors also will go to the Midway institution. Coach Stagg has several men who are certain to win points in their events, but an interesting battle should result between the Maroons and Badgers.

Western Teams Not Listed.

The absence of Leland Stanford and the University of California makes the chances of Chicago and Wisconsin all the brighter. Several stars who are members of teams not in the organization will break in the point column, but Chicago, and Wisconsin should battle for the meet title.

The reasons for quoting Wisconsin and Chicago favorites is because of the known ability of some of the men who will represent these institutions. The Badger university will be ably represented by Mucks, the giant football player, who is sure to win the shotput and discus throw and place in the hammer throw. In addition Wisconsin has a man in Harvey, the half and miler, who should win one of those events and place in the other.

Half Mile Record May Fall.

If Campbell of Chicago and Harvey of Wisconsin meet in the half mile run before either has run the mile, a new record and a close race can be looked for. The Badger has covered the distance in 1:55 3-5, while the Maroon has footed the route one-fifth of a second faster. Practically the same conditions prevail in the mile. Harvey's best time is 4:26 and Campbell's 4:24 3-5.

Besides Mucks and Harvey, Wisconsin has a sprinter Booth, who should score points in the century and furlong. In the dual meet between Wisconsin and Illinois, Booth stepped the 100 yard dash in even time and the 220 yard dash in :22 2-5. Stiles of Wisconsin should win the running broad jump and place in the running high jump. Added to this quartet of sure point winners, Wisconsin will be represented by athletes who are apt to pick up enough credits to swell the Badger total enough to win.

Stars of Maroon Lineup.

Chicago will rely on Knight, Ward, and Baranclk in both dashes, Ward in both hurdles, Campbell and Stout in the half and mile runs, Dismond in the quarter, Gorges in the high jump, Fisher in the pole vault, and Lee in the broad jump.

Of the outside colleges, Simpson of Missouri must be considered a contender in both hurdles and in the running broad jump. Berry of Lake Forest, who threw the hammer 143 feet 6 inches in the Little Five meet last Saturday, looms up as a possible winner if he can duplicate the performance.

Bachman Best of Hoosiers.

Bachman of Notre Dame, who has put the shot 44 feet and thrown the discus 134 feet, looks like the most likely point winner for the South Bend institution. Cole of the University of Oregon has hurled the missile 136 feet 4½ inches and may win a place if he can duplicate his practice performance.

Following the usual custom, trials in the quarter and half mile will be run on June 4 and trials in some of the field events may be decided on the same day if the entry list warrants it.

Medals to Student Athletes.

Dr. R. Tait McKenzie of the University of Pennsylvania has been intrusted with making the design for the "conference medal."

At the last annual meeting of the western conference it was decided to present each year a medal to the man graduating in the senior class of each university who through four years' residence has the highest degree of achievement in his athletic as well as in his scholastic work.

As it will take some months to design the medal, the winners this year will be given certificates, which can be exchanged later for medals. The winner will be picked by the president after conference with the faculty of his institution. Presentations will be made during commencement week.

NOTRE DAME WINS TITLE IN INDIANA STATE MEET.

Lafayette, Ind., May 29.—[Special.]—Notre Dame won the state track meet today by defeating Purdue in the final event.

Myer of Depauw was the sensation of the meet. He won both the mile and half mile, beating out the Purdue favorites on the home stretch. Indiana made a poor showing, Depauw getting third place in the meet. Eight colleges competed, Wabash, Earlham, Franklin, and Hanover also being represented. There were 144 men in the contest. Considering the condition of the track, the time made in the runs was exceptionally fast. Scores:

Notre Dame	51 5-6	Indiana	13
Purdue	50 1-3	Wabash	4½
Depauw	21 1-3

CADETS DEFEAT MIDDIES, 6 TO 5

Score Seventh Victory Over Navy Team with Neyland on the Mound.

West Point, N. Y., May 29.—[Special.]—For the seventh year in succession the Army defeated the Navy at baseball today, 6 to 5. Neyland, the Army's star hurler, hung up his third straight win over the Middies.

The cadets made their runs in pairs, hitting Blodgett at opportune times hard and with great precision. The Navy's four tallies in the third came after a momentary lapse by Neyland when the Middies touched him for four singles, and Hicks, the Navy captain, poled a homer to left. After that Neyland settled.

Ten thousand persons saw the game, the crowd being largely made up of army and navy officers and government officials from Washington. Score:

RAIN, PURE RAIN, CHECKS WHALES

Play Kawfeds Twice Today to Work Off Postponements.

BY J. J. ALCOCK.

Now it's five straight for the Whales—no, it isn't, either. It's five straight for the weather man. At any rate yesterday marked the fifth consecutive day of idleness for Joe Tinker's Whales, and the May flood was to blame. Bill Phillips' champion Newarks, who came here Thursday morning for three games, left last night without having played a single inning.

Rain may play a huge joke on all three Chicago ball clubs today. Whales, Sox, and Cubs all are slated to play here, and Jim O'Leary probably would lay even money or B. L. T.'s customary 8 to 5 that there ain't a-goin' to be no games nohow. Two days of continuous downpour have played havoc with the three parks and it will take heroic work to get the grounds into shape for competition.

Two Games with Kawfeds.

Charley Williams says the Whales will combat Kansas City in a double header, starting at 1:30 o'clock. Charley coppered the statement with the everyday stipulation, "If it doesn't rain." Claude Hendrix and Mordecai Brown are leading choices for slab work against the Packers if play is possible.

In order to stage a double header against the rival attractions at the south and west sides, the Federals transferred a game postponed in Kansas City on the first trip there. Considering the fact that there are now fifteen postponements chalked up against the Weeghmans, no one can blame them for starting the play-offs as soon as possible

Whales Cling to Lead.

Fortunately the country-wide rain forced the Pittfeds to stay indoors yesterday, so the Whales clung to their lead by a narrow margin. Out on the north side the players who showed up couldn't even practice, the grounds were so waterlogged. Still the officials refused to call a halt for the day until after 1 o'clock.

Morning and afternoon games are booked with the Kawfeds for tomorrow, but the two contests will be worked off in a double header in the afternoon. We almost forgot to add, "If it doesn't rain."

CORNELL BLANKS PENN, 6-0.

Ithaca, N. Y., May 29.—Pennsylvania failed to check Bryant's winning streak and he shut out the Quakers today, 6 to 0. Cornell fielded brilliantly and touched Spielman for opportune hits. Gordon of Cornell starred at the bat, making four hits, one a triple. Score:

SOX TO BATTLE INDIANS TODAY

Jim Scott Likely to Hurl Against Cleveland if the Weather Man Relents.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Only one game will take place between the White Sox and Cleveland Indians in the present series, and that one can't be played unless the weather man relents today. The double header booked for yesterday was cancelled at noon because baseball cannot be played on water. Only one game will be staged today, because the Cubs are here for one, and the Sox dare not schedule a double header on a conflicting day, as it is against the rules of organized baseball.

If the rainy weather continues much longer the ball players will have to take another training trip to get in shape to go on with the regular championship contests. There are about five pitchers on the Sox squad right now spoiling for work and no work to be done. A contest today may save them, however, and then, if tomorrow is nice and bright, there may be plenty of work for the entire staff, as two games, one in the morning and one in the afternoon, are to be played against the ferocious Detroit Tigers.

Scott May Hurl Today.

Either Jim Scott or Reb Russell will be on the slab today against the Indians, probably the former, so that Russell may save his left handed slants to shoot at Ty Cobb and Sam Crawford. The Cleveland boys expect to put Bill Steen with his deadly spitter on the mound.

Lee Fohl, the present Cleveland leader, arrived with his Indians early Friday morning and dumped them off on the south side at the Chicago Beach hotel, where they have been marooned ever since. The only exercise they have had is in walking to and from the dining room. So far the new Cleveland manager has been a success.

Rain Foils Even Commy.

President Comiskey of the Sox was so persistent in his efforts to play a game yesterday that he went to his park soon after daybreak and was on the field in rubber boots directing a gang of men who were sweeping off the water. Soon more rain began coming down and all hope to continue the winning streak of the south siders was abandoned.

Manager Rowland made inquiries regarding the whereabouts of his escaped pitcher, Hy Jasper, who was sent to the Pacific Coast league, but who declined to go and is back in Chicago, supposedly flirting with the Feds. Jasper was seen yesterday at noon entering a downtown hotel where the Newark Feds are quartered, and to a friend he confided that he didn't intend to go to the Coast league, but hadn't made up his mind yet what he would do.

Cub Sydelights.

Cincinnati, O., May 29.—[Special.]—Home again tomorrow.

Four double plays killed off runs. The Reds executed three of them.

Threatening weather and the poor showing of the Reds kept the attendance down to 1,500.

Humphries, Lavender, and Standridge were shipped to Pittsburgh by Secretary Cook, as they will not be needed during the brief stay in Chicago.

The Cubs have won eight out of fifteen games since leaving home. They have missed only two scheduled bouts on account of rain, one in New York and one in Philadelphia, but have butted up against bad weather everywhere.

Williams' four base sacrifice in the fourth inning comes pretty near being a record. He made the circuit on a grounder which did not go half way to third base, but which two Reds tried to throw out of the lot.

Zimmerman tried to steal home in the first inning with two strikes and three balls called on Williams. Benton put the ball over and struck Cy out. Zim would have been out anyway.

Manager Bresnahan took his regulars to Chicago tonight to participate in a one game series with St. Louis on the west side. Tomorrow night the Cubs jump back to Pittsburgh for a three day stay.

Bresnahan is out $100 because the Cubs go home in first place. He threatened to give every man on the team a new hat if the Cubs won the Boston and Philadelphia series, but they fell down in Quakertown. Now that they are in the lead he is going to make good anyway, and twenty $5 hats means a century note.

Manager Herzog refused to recognize K. O. Rigler in any way. Dooin did all the talking that had to be done with the umpire. There was a prolonged kick in the fifth over which ball was in play, and while Dooin conversed explosively about it Herzog, who was at bat, turned his back on the wrangle and looked at the clouds.

BROWNS RELEASE WALLACE.

St. Louis, Mo., May 29.—Bobby Wallace, shortstop of the Browns, this afternoon was given ten days' notice of his unconditional release. Wallace is said to be considering an offer of a job as umpire in the American association.

HITS BUNCHED WITH ERRORS NET VICTORY

Humphries Stops Herzogs and Great Fielding Saves Game, 3-1.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Cincinnati, O., May 29.—[Special.]—Chicago's Cubs climbed back into the lead today by beating the Reds in the one game series, while Boston threw another scare into the Phillies. Bunched hits and one crazy throwing bee by the Reds enabled the Bresnahans to triumph, 3 to 1, in spite of the fact that they were outbatted by a small margin.

Humphries kept the enemy's hits well scattered. Only once did a Red complete the circuit, although there were several dangerous spots. Humphries was helped out by some bad base running by the Herzog tribe in the third, when a double and two clean singles made in that order failed to count anybody. A perfect throw to the plate by Knisely cut off one tally at the pan. Only in the fourth did a Red get around.

Seven Hits Off Benton.

The Bresnahans bunched three hits for one run in the opening round. A double by Saier followed by two consecutive wild heaves gave them the two runs by which they won. Benton allowed seven hits, three of which were made by Saier, who used to be something of an easy mark for southpaws before National league managers began using them nearly every day against the Cubs.

Williams made a swell running catch that saved a tie in the eighth. The same Williams was robbed of a long hit by Killifer, who made a brilliant pinch which stole at least two runs from the Cubs in the sixth. Part of the game was played in a drizzle which began in the third inning.

Cubs Jump to Front.

The Cubs got the jump at the start and Fisher risked his neck to get it. Horace poked a double to right with one out. He watched Schulte fly out, then scored from second when Zim beat out a slow roller to Von Kolnitz. In sliding under Mollwitz's relay to the plate, Fisher collided with Dorn and was knocked out for half a minute, but stuck to the game. Saier singled to right, driving Zim to third, and stole second himself. Williams struck out.

Not a Red reached first off Humphries until the third, then they lit on him for a double and two singles without scoring a man. Mollwitz led with a double. Dooin singled to right and Knisely threw out Mollwitz, who disregarded the coacher's orders to stay at third and ran into sure death at the plate. Benton singled. Leach struck out in an attempted hit and run play and Benton was doubled up at second.

Cubs Win in Fourth.

Two runs were handed the Cubs in the fourth. Saier doubled to right, Williams bunted to Von Kolnitz, who threw the ball against the stand, letting Saier score. Williams kept right on running and Groh made a wild throw to third on which Cy completed the circuit. The next three perished easily.

They tagged Humphries for one tally in the home half. Herzog singled over second, went to third on Killifer's rap to left center, and scored while Fisher was throwing out Groh. The next two fouled out. Two were gone in the Red fifth when Benton peeled off his second single. Leach drove him to third with a hit to center, but Herzog flew the side out.

A miracle play kept the Cubs from scoring in the sixth. Saier rapped out his third hit with one down. Williams whaled a long drive to left center, and Killifer went back and made a sensational running catch of it. Saier was legging it for the plate and was easily doubled up.

Roger's Single Goes for Naught

Bresnahan gave the Cubs an opening in the seventh by leading off with a walk. Knisely popped out and Humphries whiffed. Phelan stung a single to center and Fisher almost cut one into right, but Groh made a swell stop and throw.

Schulte led in the eighth with a single. Zimmerman bunted himself out trying to sacrifice, then Saier slapped a grounder to Groh for a double play. After going tame for a while, the Reds threatened an upset in the eighth. Herzog and Killifer singled with one out. Groh fouled out and Griffith slammed a liner to right center, but Williams ran over and arrested it.

BRAVES GAIN ON PHILLIES BY TROUNCING QUAKERS, 9-4

RUDOLPH HURT; MAY HAVE TO GO ON INVALID LIST

Beaneaters Face Loss of Hurler's Services; Errors Help Bostons.

Boston, Mass., May 29.—The Braves gained another game on the Phillies today, winning, 9 to 4. The game, however, may cost the team the services of Pitcher Rudolph for some time, the result of an injury sustained in running to first base in the eighth inning. Poor pitching by Philadelphia twirlers, errors by Cravath and Becker, and a double by Schmidt in the fourth, which scored three runs, were principal factors in Boston's score.

MAROON EDITOR RAPS FOES OF SUMMER BALL.

The rule opposing summer baseball for western college athletes is described as petty and ridiculous and the system of intercollegiate athletics now in effect is attacked in an editorial in the columns of yesterday's Daily Maroon, the University of Chicago student newspaper. The editor makes the point that men should be allowed to help pay their expenses through college by playing ball in the summer.

In the article university athletic contests under the present system are called "great gladiatorial spectacles," and characterized as part of a system "attended by pomp and display."

The college editor gives it as his conclusion that the difference between the college amateur and the professional is simply that the college man is "willing to work without pay."

The article is a reply to an item appearing in the Daily Princetonian, the organ of the Princeton university students, censuring the athlete who plays for money.

PITCHER DAUSS MARRIES.

St. Louis, Mo., May 29.—Pitcher George Dauss of the Tigers, who pitched against the Browns in this afternoon's game, participated in a matrimonial "bargain bill" today when he married Miss Ollie Speake of St. Louis. In the other half of the double header James A. Gilbert, wealthy foundry owner, married Miss Jessie Speake, a sister of Dauss' bride.

PICK GRIDIRON OFFICIALS FOR BIG EASTERN GAMES.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 29.—Officials for the more important football games next fall were chosen here last night at a meeting of the intercollegiate football rules committee's subcommittee on officials. Dr. James A. Babbitt of Haverford college presided and men prominent in the gridiron affairs of all the leading colleges were present.

Tufts of Brown will referee and Fultz, also of Brown, will umpire the Yale-Harvard game, while Dr. Williams, Pennsylvania, will be field judge, and Morice, Pennsylvania, head linesman. At the Princeton-Harvard contest, Langford of Trinity will referee; Williams, umpire; Pendleton, Bowdoin, act as field judge, and G. N. Barthart, linesman. For the Yale-Princeton game Tufts will referee, Marshall, umpire; Morice will be field judge and Pendleton, linesman.

In the Pennsylvania-Michigan game, Langford, Fultz, Eckersall, and Holderness will be the officials,, while in the Pennsylvania-Cornell game on Thanksgiving day, the same officials as acted last year have again been chosen.

JOHNSON WINS MARATHON.

Denver, Colo., May 29.—Ted Johnson of Salt Lake City won the Mountain marathon for the second time in 1:05:45 for the ten and two-fifths miles. Frank Hall of Colorado college was second and Clyde E. Owen of Boulder, Colo., third.

Inquisitive Fans.

Effingham, Ill.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A man is on second and after the ball is pitched goes back to first. First baseman touches him with the ball while he is on the base. Is he out? X. Y. Z.

Certainly.

La Crosse, Ind.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Catcher holds the ball. Pitcher assumes position with foot on pitchers' plate, holds his hands as if covering up the ball, and goes through the motions of wetting and rubbing the ball with his pitching hand, but does not have the ball in his possession. Is it a balk? F. E. REES.

Yes, provided there is a runner on any base.

A. Paradise, Chicago: This department does not undertake to answer queries having to do with matters of opinion only.

Fulton Thomsen, Chicago: Either way of numbering the players is right, and there is no "official" designation of the different positions by numbers. Official scorers use whatever system of numbering they prefer, and one way is as good as another. In making official reports to the leagues all positions must be designated by letters—p, c, 2b, cf, etc.

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Is the following play an error or a base hit? Batsman hits to the shortstop and the ball is fielded, but the shortstop loafs on his throw to first, the poor judgment allowing his man to arrive safely at first. Now, the batsman could be thrown out, but was not. C. H. SMITH.

Such plays usually are scored as base hits. Errors of judgment are not included in the error column, as a rule.

South Chicago, Ill.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—[a] Batter hits a ball, knocking same on home plate. Ball rebounds, hits batsman's leg, then rolls and strikes fair. Is this a fair ball? Is the batter out? [b] Is a runner out when there are runners on second and first, and the batter hits to the second baseman, who runs between the runner and second, cutting him off? Is the runner from first to second out, or must the second baseman either touch the runner or second base? [c] Man on first. Batter strikes out. Catcher misses third strike. Batter runs for first. Man on first goes for second base. Catcher throws and gets man going to second. Second baseman throws and gets man going to first. Does this not constitute a double play? H. L. COMERFORD.

[a] It is a foul ball, as it first hit a player on foul ground. [b] The runner cannot be put out in that way, but only in the ways prescribed in the rule book. [c] If the runner going from first to second was touched with the ball before reaching second, it would be a double play. The batsman was out, anyway, so the runner who was on first could not be forced out.

MACKMEN SPLIT TWIN BILL WITH BOSTON RED SOX

Pinch Hit by Harry Davis Wins Opener, 2 to 1; Carrigans Take Second, 6 to 5.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 29.—Boston broke even with the Athletics, the home club winning the first game, 2 to 1, and the visitors the second, 6 to 5. Ruth held Philadelphia to one hit in the first eight innings of the opener. In the ninth, with third and second occupied and two men out, Harry Davis batted for Davies and singled, sending in the winning runs.

Boston took a big lead in the second game by hitting Bressler hard in the second inning. Wagner's two errors in the ninth were followed by Kopf's double and Murphy's single, netting three runs. Shore closed the game by fanning Walsh.

Lajoie was unable to play, owing to an injured foot. Five of Philadelphia's regulars, Lajoie, Schang, Oldring, Strunk, and McInnis, are out of the game with injuries. Scores:

This is the day of common-sense in buying motor cars

The day of false pride and extravagance over motor cars is past. They are no longer bought on a "price tag" basis to show that the buyer "had the price." We no longer hesitate to buy a low priced car, providing it possesses the very desirable qualities of style and efficiency. We buy today on the basis of dollar-for-dollar value. We judge motor cars by the service they give in relation to the price.

The Saxon idea from the beginning was to go one step farther than ever before was achieved by motor car makers in combining economy, efficiency and style.

We sell the Saxon car with the absolute confidence that, on the average, year in and year out, under all kinds of conditions, it will carry its owner whatever number of miles he wants to go at less expense than any other automobile in the world.

Have you had your Saxon demonstration? We urge you to act now—for only by your prompt action can we assure you delivery of your car when you want it.

K. O. TO BOXING KILLS PLAN TO ELEVATE GAME HERE

SPORT SUFFERS AS STATE HANDS IT FATAL COUNT

Illinois Would Have Profited by Many Mistakes Made by Others.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

Passage of a bill legalizing boxing in the state of Illinois—had not the measure introduced at Springfield met defeat—gave every promise of producing sport of a class that would draw little criticism even from those who have taken the opposition side and fought against the game of hit and get away. There are several reasons why Illinois boxing should prove a success, but the most important of these is that commissioners in this state could profit by the mistakes made in other states where the sport is lawful and under commission rule.

One of the mistakes made in New York and in the Badger state by which Illinois could profit greatly has to do with the conduct of the sport and the activities of the promoters. One of these errors was committed only recently and stirred up things to a high pitch. That was the bout between Jimmy Clabby of Hammond, Ind., and George Chip of Newcastle Pa., in New York. These middleweights had been matched by Promoter Jimmy Johnston, who, usually pulls nothing that isn't prompted by astute judgment. But in this case Johnston allowed himself to fall for a match that never should have been made.

Case of Clabby and Chip.

Clabby and Chip fought so poorly and put so little real action into their work that Referee Billy Roche, officially appointed by the boxing commission, refused to allow the bout to go the full ten rounds. He called a halt to proceedings in the eighth round and called it no contest. That was courage on the part of Roche, whose honesty never has been questioned, but a lot of blame should not be placed on Clabby and Chip. As a matter of fact this pair never should have been permitted to enter the ring when it is considered that they had met many times before.

To keep on matching fighters who have often met is bound to result in unsatisfactory bouts, as has been proved many times in the past. When the boys meet often they get used to the style of each other and the result is each knows just about what the other is going to do in the way of attack and defense, so Promoter Johnston should have thought twice before signing them for his New York club.

New York and in Wisconsin the of boxing are satisfied. Perhaps they are not as well satisfied as if decisions were permitted, but those who like to see the glove wielding game are perfectly willing to accept no decision contests, for any one with half an appetitie for the sport knows that it is not the actual boxing that is hampered by the law on that point, but in the aftermath, which fails to determine a winner or loser.

Decisions in Disfavor.

In New York and in Wisconsin there has been not a little dissatisfaction over the decisions given by the newspaper critics, due, of course, to the failure of these referees to agree on the results of contests. It is a case of "too many cooks spoiling the broth," for were decisions permitted by the law only one man, and that one the referee, would have been able to tell the winner and loser of the bout. Particularly has this been true of contests in which a champion met a challenger, for under present conditions it is almost next to impossible for a title holder to lose his crown in a ten round bout in the Empire or Badger states.

Even if a champion has his head hammered nearly off, and even if he is knocked down any number of times, he may still be champion when he climbs out of the ring at the end of the ten rounds, for it is simply a matter of sticking the limit. It makes no difference if the challenger outpoints the champion as far as from Chicago to the Brooklyn bridge; he cannot capture the honors for which he is fighting; and naturally this condition is unsatisfactory, for the simon pure fan wants to see any boxer rewarded regardless of the number of rounds fought.

White vs. Ritchie.

There have been several cases in New York and Wisconsin rings in which the title holder has been beaten so far that the boy who did the trick certainly merited not only an official decision but the title as well. Two of these cases which will be described will be well remembered, for at least one of them was one of the greatest surprises that have taken place in the ring for a long time. This upset came in the contest between Willie Ritchie, then lightweight champion of the world, and Charley White of Chicago in the ring of the Cream City Athletic club of Milwaukee. In the first round of that contest White copped the title holder on the chin with one of his famous left hooks. It was a terrific clout and shook Ritchie from head to heels. This punch was followed by another of the same type and to the same spot, and the Californian was groggy.

Willie Remained Champion.

Then for the remaining nine rounds White hammered Ritchie about the head, landing as hard as he knew how; but he couldn't stop the game boy from the Pacific coast. One blow cut open Ritchie's nose and both his eyes were nearly closed, while his lips were badly puffed when the final gong stopped the one sided affair. A champion never had been handed such a beating in a ten round contest, but despite the supremacy shown by White, Ritchie left the ring with the title still in his possession.

BASHAM STILL WELTER STAR

PORKY FLYNN BEATS BELL.

New York, May 29.—Dan (Porky) Flynn of Boston outfought Colin Bell of Australia in a ten round bout here tonight. Each man weighed 197 pounds.

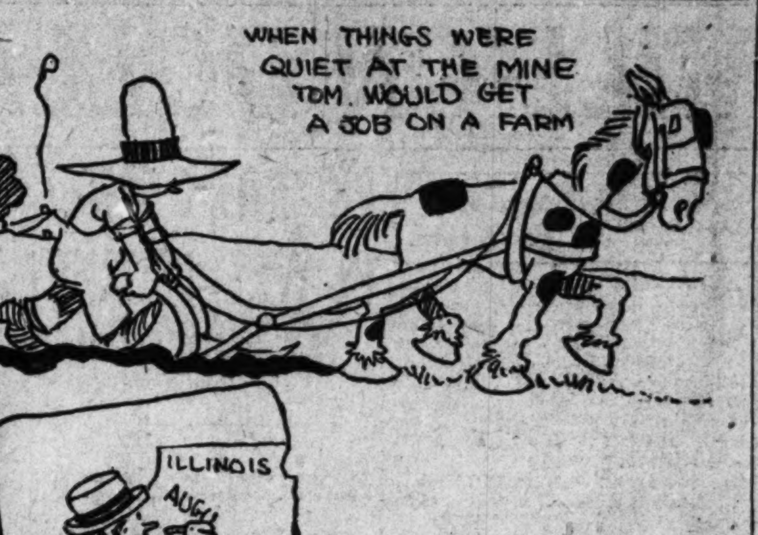
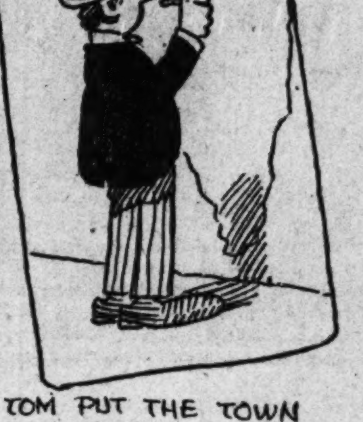
MRS. TOM JONES



WHEN THINGS WERE QUIET AT THE MINE TOM WOULD GET A JOB ON A FARM



TOM PUT THE TOWN OF AUGUSTA, ILL., ON THE MAP.....

BY HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

THOMAS EDWARD JONES, or "Cherokee Tom" Jones, if you wish to adopt the prevalent nickname, by his success in piloting Jess Willard to a victory over Jack Johnson in the recent bout at Havana for the heavyweight championship of the world, bids fair to usurp the title of "maker of champions," once unanimously accorded to the late Billy Delaney.

Jones has been successively manager and counselor to Billy Papke, once middleweight champion; Ad Wolgast, ex-lightweight champion, and now Jess Willard, heavyweight champion. Seldom has a manager ventured into three different classes with what at the start appeared to others only as mediocre material with such successful results, which proves that Thomas Edward is a good finder. Possibly when Jess Willard has reaped enough of the financial reward resultant from his title and has retired to a California ranch or perchance has remained for the inevitable defeat of those who stay in the ring limelight too long, possibly then Jones will uncover a featherweight or bantamweight title holder.

Jones, however, thinks that day is far distant, for Tom regards Willard as impregnable in his line for years to come, because of his great power to assimilate punishment. In recent comment on the bout with Johnson, Jones said: "I don't believe there is another fighter in the world today who can defeat the negro. Willard did because he could take all Johnson offered and still gave back some himself. What he took did not hurt as much as what he gave. He is a tremendous hitter.

"I am not trying to take any credit away from Johnson and there were times in that battle that I wondered how Jess stood up under the blows. They would have beaten an ordinary man. At the same time I wondered how Johnson lasted as long as he did under what Jess gave him. It was the greatest fight between big men in the history of glove fighting. It was the greatest battle I ever saw, with the possible exception of the contest in which Wolgast took the lightweight title from Battling Nelson in forty rounds."

Because of Jones' present prominence an appreciation from an old neighbor at Augusta, Ill., his home town, is especially interesting and timely. When Jones was in Chicago recently with Jess Willard and the show with which the champion is appearing he was shown the story. "That fellow used to live across the street from me at home. We went to school together. The rascal even has my age right." It may be added parenthetically that the age is a few years younger than the general estimate that has been formed. Here is what Neighbor W. O. Farlow, a stock raiser of Augusta, Ill., has to say of Neighbor Tom Jones:

"In the beautiful village of Augusta, Ill., on June 28, 1874, there came to the home of a coal miner a baby boy. He, like many other boys, had a good mother and an industrious father. The boy grew to school age and on account of his white hair we called him 'Cotton.' He acquired an average standing in his classes, but when in the fifth grade quit school to go out and fight life's battles.

"Tom worked on different farms during vacations and learned to mine coal with his father, which line of work he took up when starting for himself.

"Being of an independent nature, when work was slack, he would seek for other means of earning wages. I remember his walking sixteen miles to West Point in 1896 to work for a Mr. Kavanaugh as a farm hand.

"This energy and hustle in after years was what made him the most talked of man in his line of work in all the world. And while there are a very great number of our townsmen who would 'steal his job,' yet we must render unto Thomas Edward Jones his proper place, for it did remain for him to place our little city on the map,' and he is our best known citizen, standing as he does at the top of the heap of managers of gladiators of the world.

"Tom Jones is not the 'tightwad' that some of the papers would have us believe. He is a hail fellow well met. I recall meeting him a number of times when he would drop a double eagle in my hand and say, 'Give that to my father and tell him to get the good of it,' and he helps make good times when he comes to his 'own home town.'

"Tom's wife was Miss Mabel Everson, the belle of the countryside, and there at Huntsville, Ill., they have many friends and relations who will welcome them on their return and make them think that the whole wide world loves a fighter as well as a soldier.

"It is given to few men to be so much read about throughout the universe, and it simply reminds us that nothing succeeds like success. And with success come added responsibilities and opportunities to do good for mankind. We will hope that Tom Jones is big enough to grasp the full meaning of his successful efforts.

"Jones' father lives here and is an active coal miner, proud of his son's achievements. His very good mother died last year, but most of his brothers and sisters live close by. Their interest was at white heat during the training season at Havana, and when a message came from Tom announcing a knockout for Willard there was sure a jollification among the 'clan,' and the average citizen smiled and felt good to know that the white race had triumphed."

In connection with the 200 mile walk at Madison Gardens O'Leary will put on a five mile event for policemen, firemen, and letter carriers on June 6. Entries for the big race will close on Tuesday. O'Leary will be at the gardens every day from 11 to 5 o'clock this week.

SAYS SHANAHAN BEAT FIGHT BILL

Attitude of Speaker Caused Defeat in House, Santry Claims.

BY KNOCKOUT.

Representative Edward Santry, who made an uphill fight for the passage of a bill to legalize boxing in Illinois at the general assembly at Springfield last Tuesday, returned to Chicago yesterday. Santry said the failure of seven representatives to vote caused the defeat of the bill.

"After everything seemed reasonably favorable for the passage of the measure reconstructed from the original Hilton, Epstein, and Santry bills, no less and no other person than Speaker Shanahan of the house placed the skids in position," said Santry. "Speaker Shanahan sent word to several Republican members of the house to the effect that the passage of the boxing bill would be a blot upon his administration as speaker. There were at least seven Republicans who would have voted for it if it had not been for the speaker's interference. They were Representatives Smejkal, Turnbaugh, Roderick, McCabe, Kessinger, Davis, and Holaday.

Referendum Plan Killed.

"If the bill had passed the house and had been sent to the senate for approval the program was to attach an amendment in the shape of a referendum clause to it and send it back to the house for concurrence. Boxing or no boxing would then have been squarely up to the voters.

"This was the legislative program and there is no reason to suppose that Shanahan was not well acquainted with it in all its details. For boxing to be turned down by the voters, however, did not jibe with Shanahan's ideas. He saw a chance to pose as a real reformer and he accepted the opportunity."

Bill Dead for Two Years.

Santry said there was little chance to revive the bill at this assembly. He asserted Senator Carroll might make an attempt to pass the bill out of the senate with the referendum clause attached to it, but he was not enthusiastic over its success. Santry believes followers of the sport will have to wait two years before another attempt can be made to pass a boxing bill.

Willie Shaeffer, the local newsboy welterweight, and Mickey Sheridan yesterday were matched to box ten rounds in Grand Rapids, Mich., on June 3. They will meet at catchweights.

Harry Forbes announced the names of amateurs who will represent his gymnasium in the open tourney at the White City on Thursday and Friday in connection with the Sportsmen's club carnival. Following are the members of the team: Tony Melchor, heavyweight; Leo Laporte, middleweight; Richard Tuttle, welterweight; Walter Jacobson, lightweight, Eugene Knoebel, featherweight; Charley Treybal, bantamweight; Frankie Lavender, 108 pounds, and Joe Berman, 105 pounds.

For Players of Whist.

BY A. R. METCALFE.

PROGRESSIVE auction is a joke as it is usually played. Skill is of little importance, as the scores are mostly due to honors, and there is no inducement offered for winning games. Such a game is about as interesting as rhum or playing with a rattle.

At a prominent country club last week a woman stated that she and her partner always doubled when they reached tables at which their friends were playing, as this helped both scores. The absurdity of the proposition arises from the fact that one pair may win, but their opponents don't lose.

The Whist Club of New York makes laws for duplicate auction as follows:

No rubbers are played, but 125 points are given for a bonus every time thirty points below the line is scored in a single deal; and this reward makes the game worth while.

The score of the losing team should be deducted from that of the winner, at each table. For instance, if four deals are played on which one pair scores 300 and the other 200, one pair should score plus 100 for those deals and the other pair minus 100. This, of course, would leave about half the players with minus scores when the game was finished, but players could not afford to throw away hundreds of points to help their friends if such points were deducted from their own scores.

Mason City, Ia.—[To the Editor.]—Will you kindly answer the following questions in regard to progressive auction bridge? Have all indications been eliminated? What is the proper count for big and little slams? Is chicane still counted? Are you authorizing the count of 20 on each honor score for "easy" aces in no trumps? Is 150 for progressive the customary count in the honor score? Is it fair, in your opinion, to count rubbers, 250, in a progressive game where they are moving as soon as any one table has completed four hands? Are there any more new rules which we should know about? M. K.

Ans.—Many of your questions are answered in the article preceding your query. The game was abolished in 1913. Count for slams is still unsettled, but probably will be 50 and 100. The new code of laws will no doubt be published very soon.

A bridge teacher in Los Angeles was awarded heavy damages for an injury to her left elbow in a street car accident, which prevented her practicing her profession.

Evidently we cannot keep the pace set by California players. The use of the left elbow in bridge is still in its infancy in Chicago.

Hampton, Ia.—[To the Editor.]—Should bidder bid his best suit first or should he bid poor suit and then hit best suit on second bid? I. W.

HURLERS TO CLASH TODAY.

The champion Dalcassian hurling team will meet the E. McNeills this afternoon at New Gaelic park, Forty-sixth and Kedzie, to decide the leadership of the Gaelic league. The Dalcassians must win to hold first place. The football contest will bring together the Emmets and Kickhams. Several track and field events are arranged for the Gaelic team in preparation for their annual outdoor athletic meet.

MANY MILLION DOLLARS INVESTED BY GOLF DEVOTEES

JEROME TRAVERS ASTOUNDED BY GROWTH OF GAME

Ex-National Amateur Champion Estimates Links Army at 350,000.

BY FREDERICK DONAGHEY.

Of the score or fewer of American golfers who can fairly be regarded as the amateur celebrities in this country, Jerome D. Travers should be the last to express awe at the rapid and immense growth of the game since 1895, and especially in the last ten years. Awe, nevertheless, is the special expression of an essay of his on "The High Cost of Golfing" in the American magazine for the current month.

The number of American players; the cost of their golf balls and golf clubs per year; the multiplication of courses from coast to coast and crosswise in the land; the sums spent, spending, and to be spent for no other purpose than golf—these and cognate items combine to astound, amaze, and profoundly move him.

Uses "Magazine Style."

At least that is the impression he seeks to leave upon his readers. Perhaps, after all, he has merely given in to the puffy, chug-chuggy thing known in this country as "magazine style." As he piles up sums, figures, statistics, and data he achieves something of the philosophically overcome effect the reader got about a year ago from some articles signed "An Englishman" in The English Review. The latter writer, too, built his figures into a veritable skyscraper of golf importance, and then, taking a sociological turn, expressed conscientious regard as to the future of the army of caddies conscripted in the service of the game, and with no apparent means of support for the remainder of their lives save bag carrying at a shilling per round. [It is my recollection that some excerpts from the article in The English Review were reprinted in THE TRIBUNE by "B. L. T."]

$100,000,000 a Year for Golf.

As Travers' figures have been put together after an enthusiast's study of all available records, they need not be questioned, even when he, himself, would appear most staggered by them. His research and study have given him reason to say that American golf players today are not fewer than 350,000; that employés of the game, including caddies, number 300,000; that not a cent less than $100,000,000 is invested in clubhouses, courses, and "improvements"; that "we have given up 130,000 acres of our most valuable soil to this game"; and that we are spending "as a nation," $50,000,000 annually in pursuit of golf.

The sociological wail is not sounded at all as his figures mount. Instead, he goes on to predict that within ten years we shall be spending $100,000,000 a year on the pastime; and then, in conclusion, is the riant note of the incurable: "It takes something of a game—something beyond a mere fad—to reach such proportions. In fact, it takes golf!"

Costs More Than Baseball.

The truth is, as Travers rather timidly intimates, that more money is annually spent on golf than on any other sport, including baseball. He arrives at his estimate of 350,000 golfers by averaging the membership of 3,100 listed organizations at 250. It is safe to assert that there are at least 150,000 active, devoted golfers who are not members of any listed organization, inclusion being made of those who play on the public courses. As I recently pointed out, there are more than 3,000 players of record at Jackson park alone, the record consisting of the list of locker holders at that public course.

The statistics of golf in the United States today are amazing mainly for the retrospect. Less than twenty years ago the jokes on the game and its few players outnumbered 100 to 1 the jokes of two years ago about the wearers of wrist watches, or those of a year ago about the fordafforders. No small part of the late Dan Daly's repute as a very comic man was based on his being the first of the comics on the American stage to dress in the toggery of golf and make some grotesque passes with a club—and that, too, was less than twenty years ago.

Nobody's Fighting Golf.

So far as is known, any opposition to the growth of golf that may have been manifested has long since disappeared. The vogue of the game is not a matter of propaganda by its players but of promotion by the shrewd merchants who recognize that prosperity never has followed the flag more undeviatingly than unearned increment has followed the links. The man with a parcel of choice suburban land and a desire to cut it into building lots is the best kind of a prospect when the taking up of subscriptions for a neighborhood golf course is the subject of the day's solicitude and soliciting.

Down in South Bend, Ind., golf has of late languished a bit. Now the live men of the town are giving consideration to a variety of sites for a new course of championship quality for the Sunnyside Country club. The trolley corporation which serves that city and vicinity has offered to the club 100 acres rent free for 100 years—choice golf land, too, about four miles east of South Bend.

South Bend Awakes.

Nobody paid much attention to the offer until last week, when a delegation of South Bend citizenry, unskilled in the use of mashie and other arms, returned from Chattanooga to announce that the Dixie highway would be given a tentacle touching the city. Then somebody suggested that even the possession of the Dixie, the National, and the Lincoln highways shouldn't be made a reason for regarding South Bend as a mere wagon works, play factory, and automobile stopover, and a meeting to talk golf was called in the chamber of commerce.

This South Bend instance is described simply because it serves as a topical illustration of my assertion that the propaganda of golf is not spread so much from the inside as from the outside.

Atlantic City's Debt to Golf.

The chief industry of the state of New Jersey, as is generally known, is Atlantic City. That town, with all its wonderful natural advantages, was popularly regarded from its foundation till along in the '90s as simply a place where Philadelphians went for sea baths in July and August. Few took seriously the claims of its boosters that it was an all the year round resort of superlative values. Then the big hotel men got together, a course was laid out, and the word "golf" was added to the ads, the railroad folders, and the resort "literature." The course was somewhat tentative and naive; but it was the only place to play golf twelve months in the year in that neighborhood, and early American devotees of the game were quick to decide that Atlantic City was just the climate demanded by their assorted ailments.

Nearer Chicago, and of far more recent date, a north shore realty enterprise lagged for no reason discernible other than the unwillingness of people to spend money on new homes following the November national elections of 1912. The realty dealers bought more land, promoted a golf club, and sold the additional land to the club for less money than they paid for it. The land today is all but all gone—sold under uncommon restrictions, too—with nearly all the purchasers thereof enrolled as members of the golf club, which made a good job of its end of the deal by building one of the great courses of the middle west—Indian Hill.

OUT in left field was the wide world, in right field was a chicken coop. Dr. Harley Parker, former national league pitcher, was at bat, or, to be specific, at the eighteenth tee. He is a recent convert to golf and on this occasion was playing with Ned Sawyer, former western champion. The doctor asserts he was 6 up, but this sounds a trifle "spoofy."

In his baseball days Dr. Parker was a left field hitter and out in that direction was space which spelt safety. To the right was the chicken coop menace. A long drive from the last tee always affords a pleasant reminiscence and the doctor swung hard with all the usual grace of a novice. Also he put some vim into the stroke. The ball sailed merrily into the coop.

"I knew I was a left field hitter," remarked the doctor, "but the ball did not know it."

NEW TRIER GAINS IN GOLF LEAGUE

Standing of Teams.

La Grange	918	University High	959
New Trier	927	Evanston	1,026
Thornton	950

Continuous rain for nearly twenty-four hours did not deter the Suburban High school golfers from playing the second round of their team championship at the La Grange Country club. Those who played got soaked and those who failed to appear were soaked with penalties.

The New Trier quintet, led by H. Meyer, with a card of 82, had low total of 443, leading La Grange by five strokes and gaining on that team. Thornton's first three men played finely and the team had an excellent chance to gain had not G. Seidel been absent. He was given 110 points, one stroke more than the highest score made yesterday.

Evanston High school won the rain-dodging honors, not a man showing up. This earned the team a forfeit score of 550 points and put it in the cellar.

Max Gross of Thornton had a gross of 80 and tied Arthur Sweet of La Grange, both being fine performances over the soggy course. Douglas, Workman, and Waldschmidt are tied for the prize for low gross aggregate. The next round will be played at Flossmoor on June 5.

PRIZE TO STONE IN 'WET' TOURNEY AT MIDLOTHIAN

Johnson and Burr Tie for Second Honors; Rain Stops Other Matches.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Despite the unwonted amount of rain, which put most of the local courses out of commission, Midlothian golfers found enough islands over which to play their opening event. A limited field of venturesome "wets" competed in the eighteen hole handicap, W. C. Stone winning with a card of 93—21—72. J. H. Johnson, 90—11—79, and L. E. Burr, 92—13—79, tied for second place. Other leading scores were R. C. Butler, 97—16—81, and R. Fitzgerald, 96—14—82.

One hundred and thirty-four members attended the club dinner at night, those entertaining parties being Judge K. M. Landis, W. J. Black, J. Clark Dean, J. T. Llewellyn, F. A. Ingalls, I. T. Hartz, C. C. Pickering, O. P. Powell, E. F. Bryant, W. B. Edgar, L. B. Quinn, L. A. Goddard, L. S. Lauer, C. D. Ettinger, A. H. Sanders, W. C. Stone, B. W. Mudge, and C. C. Ingraham.

Glen Oak.

Glen Oak golfers had to postpone their qualifying round for the Memorial day tournament and this caused a change of program for tomorrow. A medal play handicap will be played in the morning and a thirty-six hole event will be played all day. High and low scores for three blind holes will receive prizes and minor events for men and women will be played in the afternoon. William Rautenbusch won the choice score for May with a total of 63.

Beverly.

Beverly Country club members qualified for the "duck" championship when they defied the downpour and competed in an eighteen hole twosome event. H. R. Shollenberger and C. R. Terry proved to be the best swimmers, when they won low gross score of 162. They also took low net honors, but were not allowed to win both prizes, and the latter trophy went to B. A. Duffy and J. T. Henry, who had 170—11—159.

Skokie.

The formal opening of the Skokie Country club was delayed and the eighteen hole medal play handicap event will be decided on next Saturday. The stag dinner which was set for the evening was held and 150 members took part in the evening program.

Maywood.

N. Faunce won the eighteen hole handicap at Maywood with a score of 78 from scratch, T. A. Ballantyne being second with 81. C. H. Beckett, 106—20—86.

Edgebrook.

On account of the wet condition of the course the Edgebrook club has postponed its Decoration day events.

Memorial Day Events.

Ridge—Formal opening. Flag event in morning and bogey event in afternoon.

Chicago Heights—Driving and putting contests for men and women in morning, flag tournament in afternoon.

Riverside—One day tournament. Mixed foursome at 5 p. m.

BORROW TAKES $11,700 STAKE

Whitney Gelding, Leased to Thompson, Wins Rich Kentucky Handicap.

Louisville, Ky., May 29.—L. S. Thompson's 7 year old gelding Borrow, carrying 126 pounds, won the Kentucky handicap at a mile and a quarter at Douglas park today over a heavy, holding track. Hodge was second and Prince Hermis third. The net value of the stake to the winner was $11,700. The time was 2:10 2-5. Jockey J. Notter rode Borrow.

Borrow's advantage over W. J. Weber's Hodge was an open length and a half, and he won well in hand. The most rousing fight was for second honors, Hodge winning by half a length over Lew Marion's Prince Hermis. Emerson Cochran and Short Grass were heads behind in a driving finish.

Favorite Roamer Far Back.

Royal II., six lengths away, led the other starters of a field of nine. Roamer, Andrew Miller's champion 3 year old of last year and favorite in the betting today, was eighth, more than twenty lengths back of the leaders.

At the rise of the barrier the red of Roamer's rider flashed to the fore and the gelding showed the way nearly a mile, when his impost of 127 pounds, top weight in the race, began to tell. Prince Hermis took the lead, but relinquished command when Borrow challenged.

Jockey Notter kept his mount well up with the leaders during the early stages, and when just about to turn into the stretch moved through the field with a rush and retained his advantage to the end.

How Others Finished.

Behind Royal II. the other starters finished in this order: Ringling, twelve lengths; Roamer, ten lengths, and David Craig last.

Borrow is owned by Harry Payne Whitney, who recently leased his entire string of racers to L. S. Thompson. The handicap is the second capital stake captured on Kentucky tracks this season by the Whitney stable. His filly Regret won the Kentucky Derby.

A week's continued rain had left the course in poor condition. Borrow was lightly regarded in the betting because of a recent disappointing race he ran over a heavy track, and as a result winning $2 mutuel tickets paid $31.40.

AUTO FANS WAIT FOR BIG CONTEST

Postponement Till Monday, However, Causes Many to Quit Indianapolis.

BY REED L. PARKER.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—[Special.]—A race with rain in place of a race for $50,000 was the order of events at the Indianapolis speedway today, and instead of tempting death through 500 miles of ceaseless grinding the drivers nervously looked over their cars, wondering whether they would have stood the grind had the battle of cylinders been staged today.

Thousands of race fans remain in hopes of seeing a real clash among the stars, but the postponement until Monday and the early morning rain today caused many to pack their baggage and hit for home to spend the Sabbath in front of the fire, guessing whom they would have watched dash over the line a winner and feeling sorry for the people who were enthusiastic enough about racing to stay over for the battle.

2,000 Fans at Track.

The speed kings did little during the day in the way of running, although about 2,000 people paid 50 cents apiece to watch the stars flash around the track. The rain, to a certain degree, was the cause of the fans who went to the track being disappointed, while the drivers, refusing to take a chance on injuring their mounts, helped matters along.

The fans who are seeking excitement here in an effort to pass the time until the races are started will be entertained tomorrow by Deloyd Thompson, the aviator, and Barney Oldfield. The management of the course prevailed upon the two to put on the exhibitions, and, as a result, the two will show.

Will Make for Good Humor.

The exhibitions will do more than anything else to put the disappointed crowd in good humor. Today has been a long one for many, and with the loop the loop and the aeroplane vs. automobile race, some excitement to break the wait will be furnished.

WHITE AND WELSH REACH AGREEMENT FOR DENVER GO

Charley White and his manager, Nate Lewis, returned yesterday from Boston, where the local lightweight landed a left hook on the jaw of Fred Yelle, scoring a knockout in the third round. White came back loaded with offers to box at eastern clubs, for his services are in demand since he has scored knockouts in his last three fights. Lewis said, however, that no bouts had been accepted, because he believed it a cinch that White would fight Freddie Welsh for the championship at Denver on July 5.

The Denver club offered Welsh $13,000 for his end, win, lose, draw, but the champion held out for $15,000. When in the east Lewis conferred with Harry Pollok, Welsh's manager, with the result that it was agreed that White should give Welsh $2,000 to go through with the fight. Pollok accepted and it is now up to the club to stage the contest.

The Cook Colts are anxious to schedule games with any out of town teams, to be played in Chicago. According to Manager G. C. Smith, the expenses of the visiting team will be paid. For games address G. C. Smith, 3000 West Lake street.

LEWIS CARRIES N. W. "PREP" MEET

Chicagoans Take Four Cups; Zoellen Cuts Minnesota Record.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 29.—[Special.] Lewis institute athletes of Chicago today took first place in the Northwestern interscholastic track meet at Northrop field, beating out Shattuck Military school of Faribault, Minn. The Chicago team scored 25½ points and the Faribault school was second with 19 1-3.

The meet was the hardest fought track event ever staged on Northrop field and was featured by the work of Zoellin of Chicago, who lowered the Minnesota state record in the high hurdles from 16 seconds to 15 4-5. Zoellin was also individual winner of the meet.

When the Shattuck relay team was disqualified from this event the Chicago team was sure of first place.

The Chicago men carried off four cups, one for winning the meet, one for the relay, and the first place men were also awarded cups. Kline of Rice Lake, Wis., beat Zoellin of Chicago in the 100 yard dash in one of the best races of the day. The same man from Rice Lake bested his Chicago opponent also in the 220 yard dash. Colley's jump of 21 feet 2½ inches easily gave him first place in that event.

Pearson, sprinter, was timed in :10 1-5 and :22 2-5 on a muddy track at Washington State college and in :10 on the Spokane stadium.

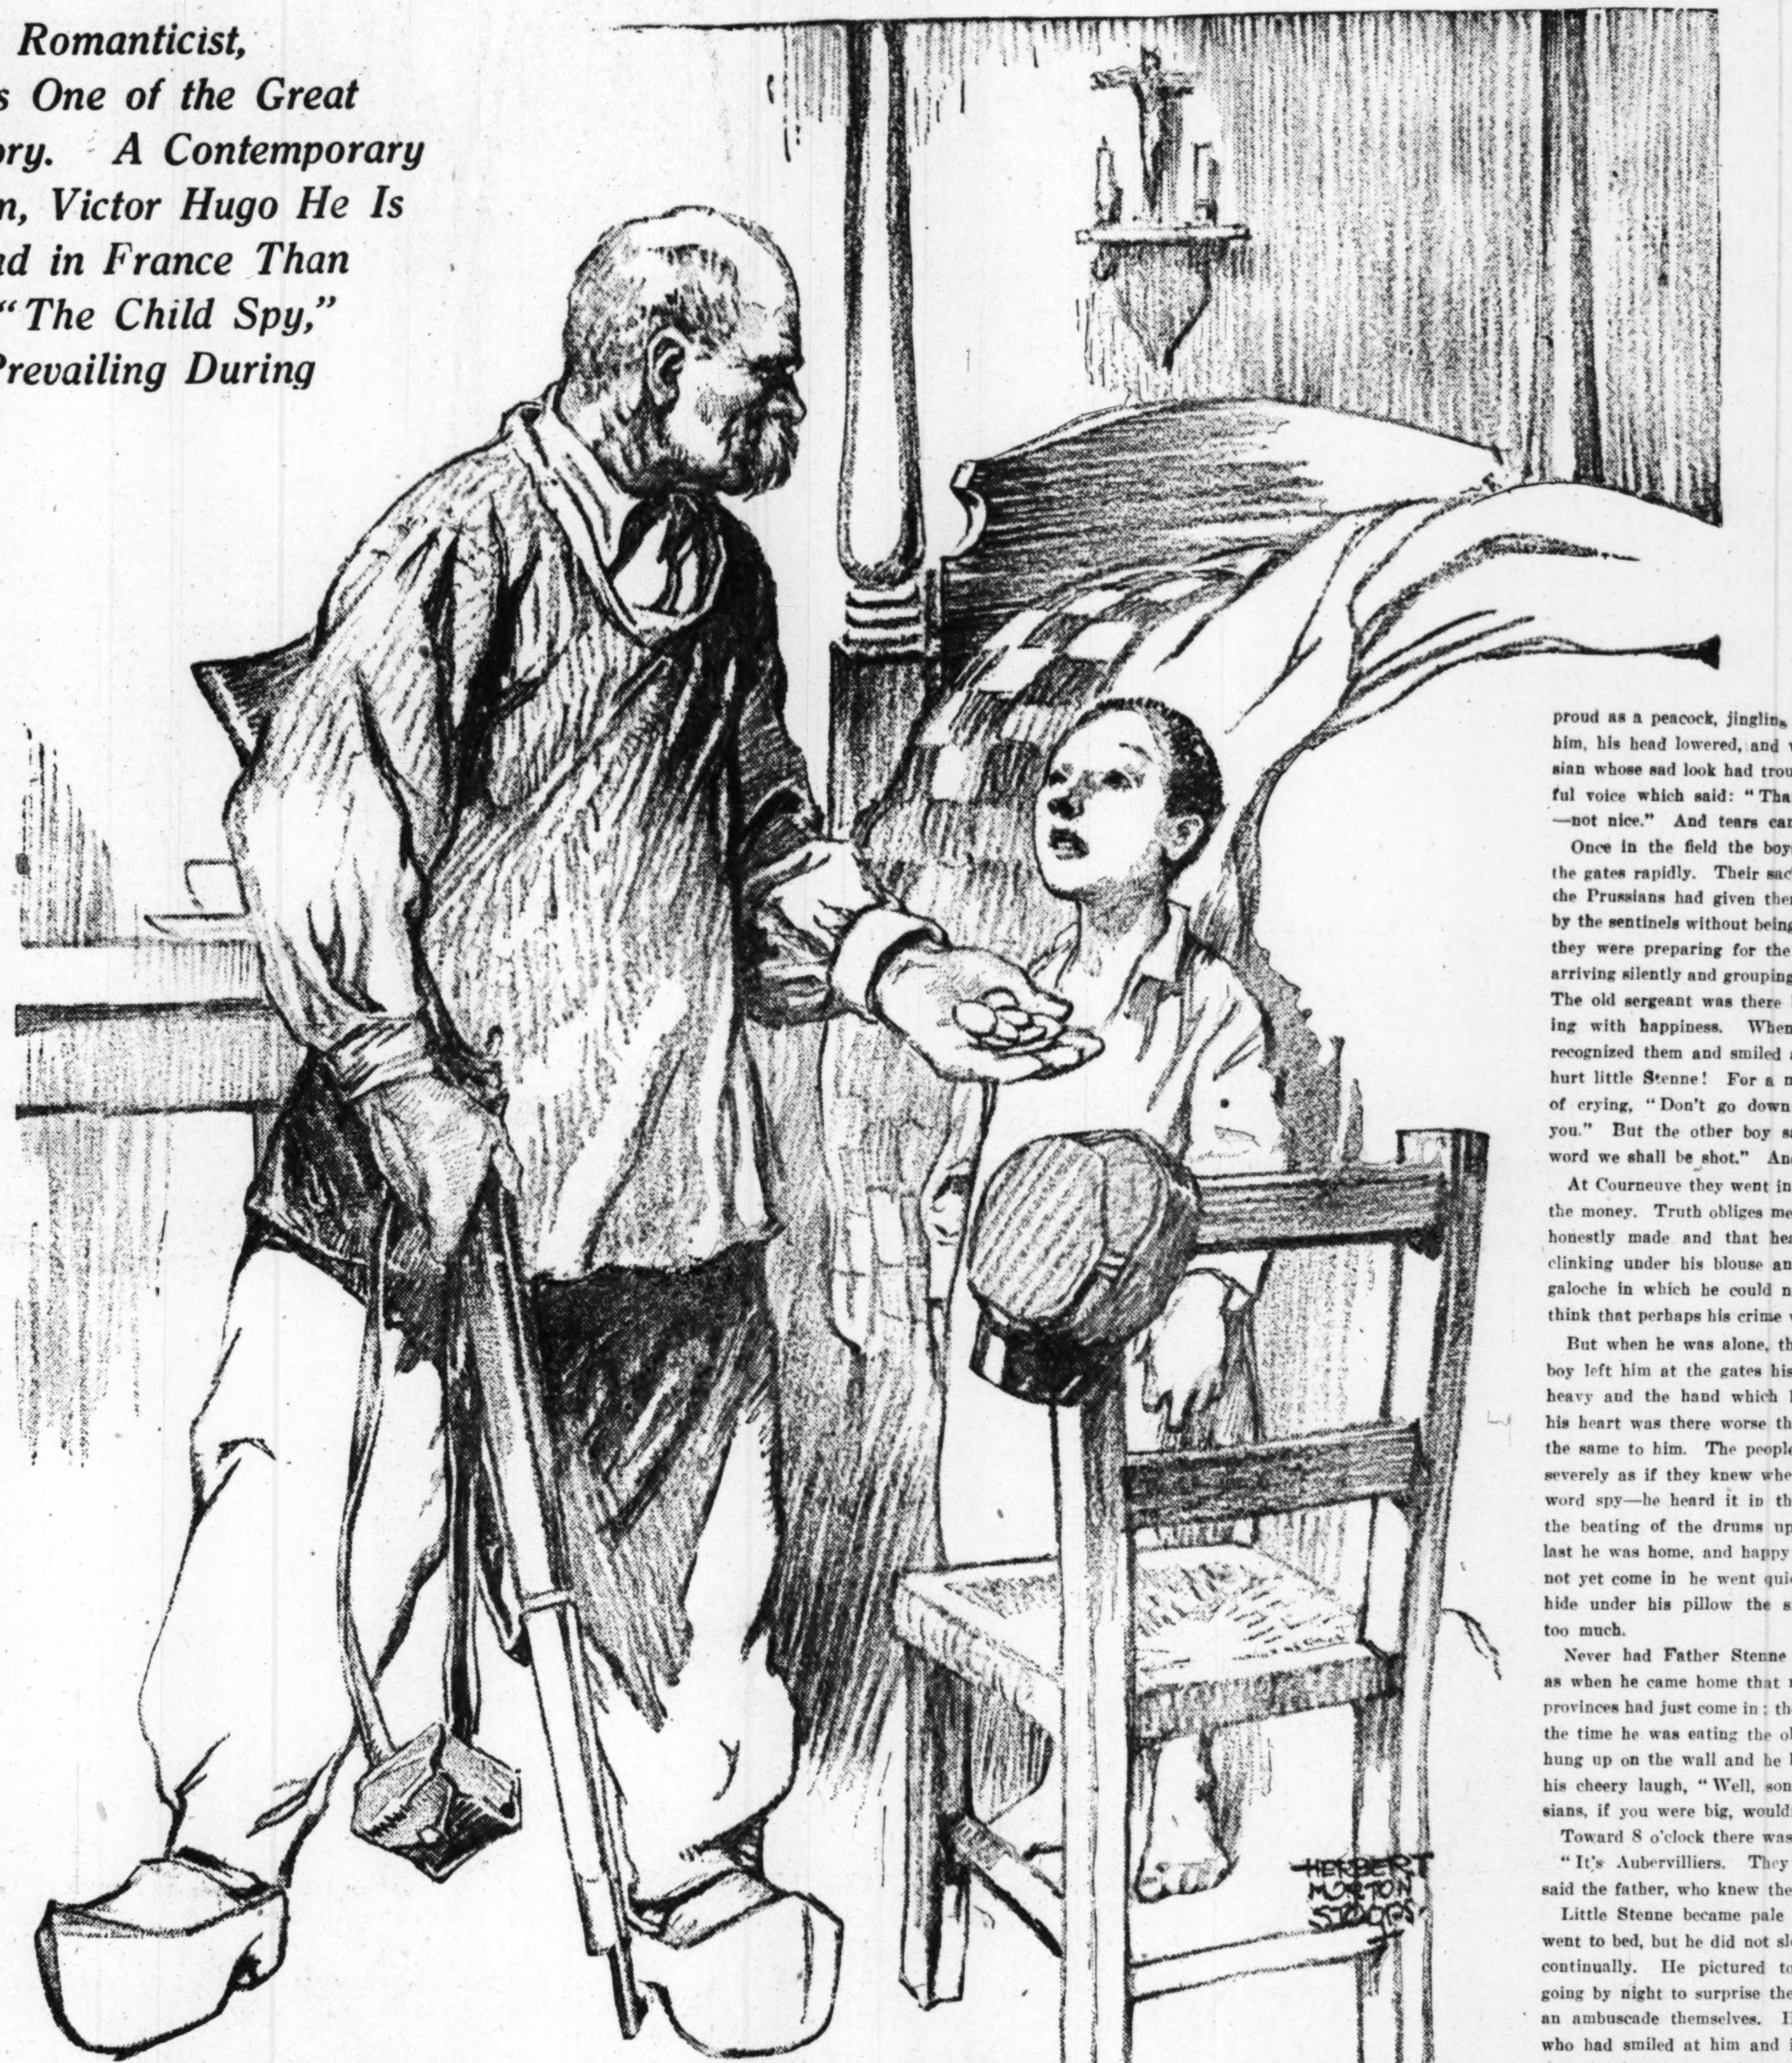
The Child Spy

by Alphonse Daudet

Alphonse Daudet, French Romanticist, Journalist, and Poet, Was One of the Great Masters of the Short Story. A Contemporary of, Though Younger Than, Victor Hugo He Is Now More Generally Read in France Than That Genius. His Story "The Child Spy," Based Upon Conditions Prevailing During the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, Is Now Being Avidly Read Throughout France. The Story Is Presented Here, Translated by Carolyn Wilson.



HIS name was Stenne—little Stenne. He was a child of Paris, peaked and pale, who might be 10 years old or even 15. You never can tell with those undersized boys. His mother was dead; his father, an old soldier, kept the square in the Temple quarter. The babies, the nurses, the old woman hobbling along, the poor mothers, every one who came to take shelter from the traffic on these squares bordered with sidewalks, knew Father Stenne and adored him. They knew that under his shaggy mustache, terror of dogs and tramps, was hidden a tender, almost maternal smile, and to see this smile one had only to say to the good man:

"How is your little boy?"

How he loved his little boy, Father Stenne! He was always so happy every evening after school when the little fellow came to get him and they walked together down the alleys, stopping at each bench to speak to the oldtimers, to respond to their cheery greetings.

With the siege, unfortunately, everything changed. Father Stenne's square was shut up, they put gasoline there, and the poor man, forced to keep constant guard, passed his days in the deserted walls, all alone, without even smoking, and only seeing his son late at night at home. You should have seen his mustache then when he spoke of the Prussians.

Little Stenne didn't complain too much about this new life. A siege! It's so amusing for the little rascals. No more school, no more arithmetic. Vacation all the time and the street to play in as if it were the country. The child stayed outdoors playing until night. He accompanied battalions of the quarter which were going to the ramparts, choosing those which had the best music, and on that little Stenne was well versed. He would tell you decidedly that the music of the Ninety-sixth wasn't much, but the Fifty-fifth was just fine. Other times he watched the militia practicing, or other times there was the bread line.

His basket under his arm he would take his place in the long lines which formed in the shadowy morning of winter, without gas, in front of the butcher's or of the baker's. There, with one's feet in water one made many valuable acquaintances; one talked politics and as the son of M. Stenne, every one asked his advice. But the most amusing of all was the game of corks—that famous game of galoche which the Bretons had made the fashion during the siege. When little Stenne wasn't at the ramparts or the baker's, you were sure of finding him at a game of galoche in the plate of Château-d'Eau.

Of course, he didn't play—it took too much money. He was satisfied in watching the players with all his eyes! One especially, a big fellow in a blue jacket, excited his admiration—he never put in anything but 5 franc pieces. When he got up to go away you could hear the money jingling in his pocket.

One day as he picked up a piece of money which had rolled near little Stenne's feet he said to him, low: "That makes your eyes pop out, doesn't it? Well, if you want to, I can tell you where to get some."

The game finished he took him in a corner and offered to take him with him in selling papers to the Prussians. One made 30 francs a trip. At first little Stenne refused, very indignant, and after that he stayed away from the game three days. Three terrible days. He didn't eat, he couldn't sleep. At night he saw piles of galoches standing upright at the end of his bed and 5 franc pieces which lay flat and shining. The temptation was too strong, the fourth day he returned to Château-d'Eau, saw the big boy again, and let himself be persuaded.

They went off one snowy morning, a cotton sack on their shoulders and the papers hidden under their blouses. When they arrived at the gate of Flandre, it was scarcely daylight. The big fellow took Stenne by the hand and went up to the official—a good old fellow with a red nose and a kindly air. He said to him in the whining voice of a beggar:

"Let us pass, dear, good monsieur. Our mother is sick and our father is dead. We want to see, my little brother and I, if we can't find some potatoes in the fields out there."

He cried. Stenne, very ashamed, lowered his head. The official looked at them a moment and then down the deserted, white roadway.

"Go along, quickly," he said, pushing them out, and there they were on the road to Aubervilliers. The big fellow laughed.

Confusedly as in a dream, little Stenne saw the factories transformed into barracks, the deserted barricades covered with wet rags, the high chimneys which cut the fog and mounted toward the sky, empty, half broken off. From time to time a sentinel, some officers wrapped up in capes who looked off yonder with field glasses, some little tents bent down with snow which was melting before fires which were dying. The big fellow knew the way across the fields to avoid the outposts. Nevertheless they came, without being able to avoid it, upon a main guard of the franc-tireurs. The other franc-tireurs were there in their little cabins, placed at the edge of a ditch full of water all along the route of the railroad to Soissons. This time it didn't do the big fellow any good to tell his little story. They didn't want to let him pass. Then, while he was whining, an old sergeant, quite white and all wrinkled, who looked like Father Stenne, came out of the house on the barricade.

"Don't cry, my lads," he said to the two children, "they'll let you pass to get your potatoes. But first, run along in and get warm a bit. He looks half frozen, that boy there."

Alas, it was not with cold that little Stenne trembled; it was with fear, with shame. In the cabin they found several soldiers squatting around a meager fire—a real widow's fire—in the flame of which they were thawing out biscuits on the ends of their bayonets. They moved together to give the children room. Then they gave them something to drink, a little coffee. While they were drinking an officer came to the door, called the sergeant, spoke to him in a low voice, and hurried away.

"My lads," said the sergeant, entering radiant, "there's going to be something doing tonight, all right. We know the password of the Prussians. I think this time we are going to take it from them, the blessed Bourget!"

There was an explosion of bravos and laughs. They danced and sang and clashed their sabers and bayonets, and profiting by this tumult the children disappeared.

Beyond the trenches there was only a flat field and at the end of it a long white wall with holes in it. It was toward this wall that they went, stopping at each step, pretending to pick up potatoes.

"Let's go back. Don't let's go in there," said little Stenne all the time.

The other shrugged his shoulders and went on steadily. Suddenly they heard the click of a gun which was cocked.

"Lie down!" said the big boy, throwing himself on the ground.

As soon as he was down he whistled. Another whistle came back over the snow. They advanced crouching. Before the wall level with the ground appeared a yellow mustache under a coarse Tam 'Shanter cap. The larger boy jumped into the trench beside the Prussian. "That's my brother," he said, pointing toward his companion. He was so small—the little boy—that the Prussian began to laugh when he saw him and was obliged to take him in his arms to lift him up to the opening.

On the other side of the wall there were ramparts of earth, trees which had been cut down, black holes in the snow, and in each hole the same coarse Tam o' Shanter and the same yellow mustache which lifted in a smile as the children passed. In a corner a gardener's house had been fortified with tree trunks. The lower room was full of soldiers who were playing cards or making soup over a huge clear fire. It smelled deliciously of cabbage and bacon. What a difference between this and the camp of the franc-tireurs! Up above were the officers. One heard them playing the piano or pulling corks out of champagne bottles. When the two boys entered a shout of joy welcomed them.

They gave out their papers and then they drank the wine which was poured out for them. All the officers seemed conceited and ferocious, but the bigger boy amused them with his impudent retorts, with his street boy slang. They laughed and repeated his words after him, delighting in this taste of filthy Parisian talk.

Little Stenne would have liked to talk, too, just to prove that he wasn't stupid; but something oppressed him. Opposite him, slightly apart from the others, was a Prussian, older, more serious than the others, who was reading or pretending to, for his eyes seldom left the boy. There was tenderness and reproach in the look as if this man had at home a little boy the same age as Stenne and as if he were saying: "I should rather die than see my son do what you are doing."

From then on little Stenne felt as if there were a hand placed tightly over his heart, stopping its beating. To get away from this feeling he begs a drink. Soon everything was whirling about him. He heard vaguely, through heavy laughter, his comrade making fun of the national guards, of their fashion of exercising, imitating a midnight alarm on the ramparts. Soon after the big the officers drew closer, and their faces became grave. The wretch was about to warn them of the sudden attack of the franc-tireurs.

Suddenly little Stenne got up enraged, almost drunk. "Not that, don't tell that. I don't want to."

But the other only laughed and continued. Before he had finished all the officers were standing. One of them pushed the children toward the door. "Get out of the camp!" he said to them. And all the officers began to talk very fast in German. The bigger boy went out proud as a peacock, jingling his money. Stenne followed him, his head lowered, and when he passed by the Prussian whose sad look had troubled him he heard a sorrowful voice which said: "That wasn't a nice thing to do—not nice." And tears came to his eyes.

Once in the field the boys began to run and entered the gates rapidly. Their sack was full of potatoes which the Prussians had given them and with this they passed by the sentinels without being questioned. In the trenches they were preparing for the night attack. Troops were arriving silently and grouping themselves behind the walls. The old sergeant was there busy placing his men, beaming with happiness. When the children went by he recognized them and smiled at them. O, how that smile hurt little Stenne! For a moment he was on the point of crying, "Don't go down there. We have betrayed you." But the other boy said to him: "If you say a word we shall be shot." And fear kept him silent.

At Courneuve they went into a deserted house to divide the money. Truth obliges me to say that the sharing was honestly made and that hearing the fine silver pieces clinking under his blouse and thinking of the games of galoche in which he could now play made little Stenne think that perhaps his crime was not so dreadful after all.

But when he was alone, the poor child! When the big boy left him at the gates his pockets began to feel very heavy and the hand which had seemed to tighten over his heart was there worse than ever. Paris didn't seem the same to him. The people who passed looked at him severely as if they knew where he had come from. The word spy—he heard it in the rumble of the wheels, in the beating of the drums up and down the canal. At last he was home, and happy to find that his father had not yet come in he went quickly up to their bedroom to hide under his pillow the silver pieces which weighed too much.

Never had Father Stenne been so happy, so joyous, as when he came home that night. Good news from the provinces had just come in: the army was doing better. All the time he was eating the old soldier looked at his gun hung up on the wall and he kept saying to the boy with his cheery laugh, "Well, sonny, you'd do for the Prussians, if you were big, wouldn't you?"

Toward 8 o'clock there was the sound of cannon.

"It's Aubervilliers. They are fighting at Bourget," said the father, who knew the sound of all the forts.

Little Stenne became pale and pretending to be tired went to bed, but he did not sleep. The cannon thundered continually. He pictured to himself the franc-tireurs going by night to surprise the Prussians and falling into an ambuscade themselves. He thought of the sergeant who had smiled at him and imagined him stretched out there in the snow and how many others with him. The price of all that blood was hiding there under his pillow—and it was he, the son of M. Stenne, of a soldier. Tears stifled him. In the adjoining room he heard his father walking about, opening the window. Down below in the square the recall sounded; a battalion of militia numbered off to go to the ramparts. Decidedly it was a real battle. The poor child could not keep back a loud sob.

"What is the matter?" said Father Stenne, coming in.

The child could not keep his secret any longer. He jumped out of bed and threw himself on the floor at his father's feet. With his hasty movement the silver pieces rolled on the floor.

"What are those? Have you been stealing?" asked the old man, trembling.

Then all in one breath little Stenne told that he had been out to the Germans and all that he had done. As he spoke he felt his heart becoming lighter; he felt better as he accused himself. His father listened with a terrible look on his face. When the story was finished he hid his face in his hands and wept.

"Father, father," little Stenne tried to say.

The old man pushed him away without answering and picked up the money.

"Is this all?" he demanded.

Little Stenne made a sign that that was all. The old man took down his gun and his cartridge box and put the money in his pocket. "All right," he said, "I'm going to give it back to them." And without adding a word, without even turning his head, he went down to join the militiamen who were going out into the night. And no one has ever seen him since.

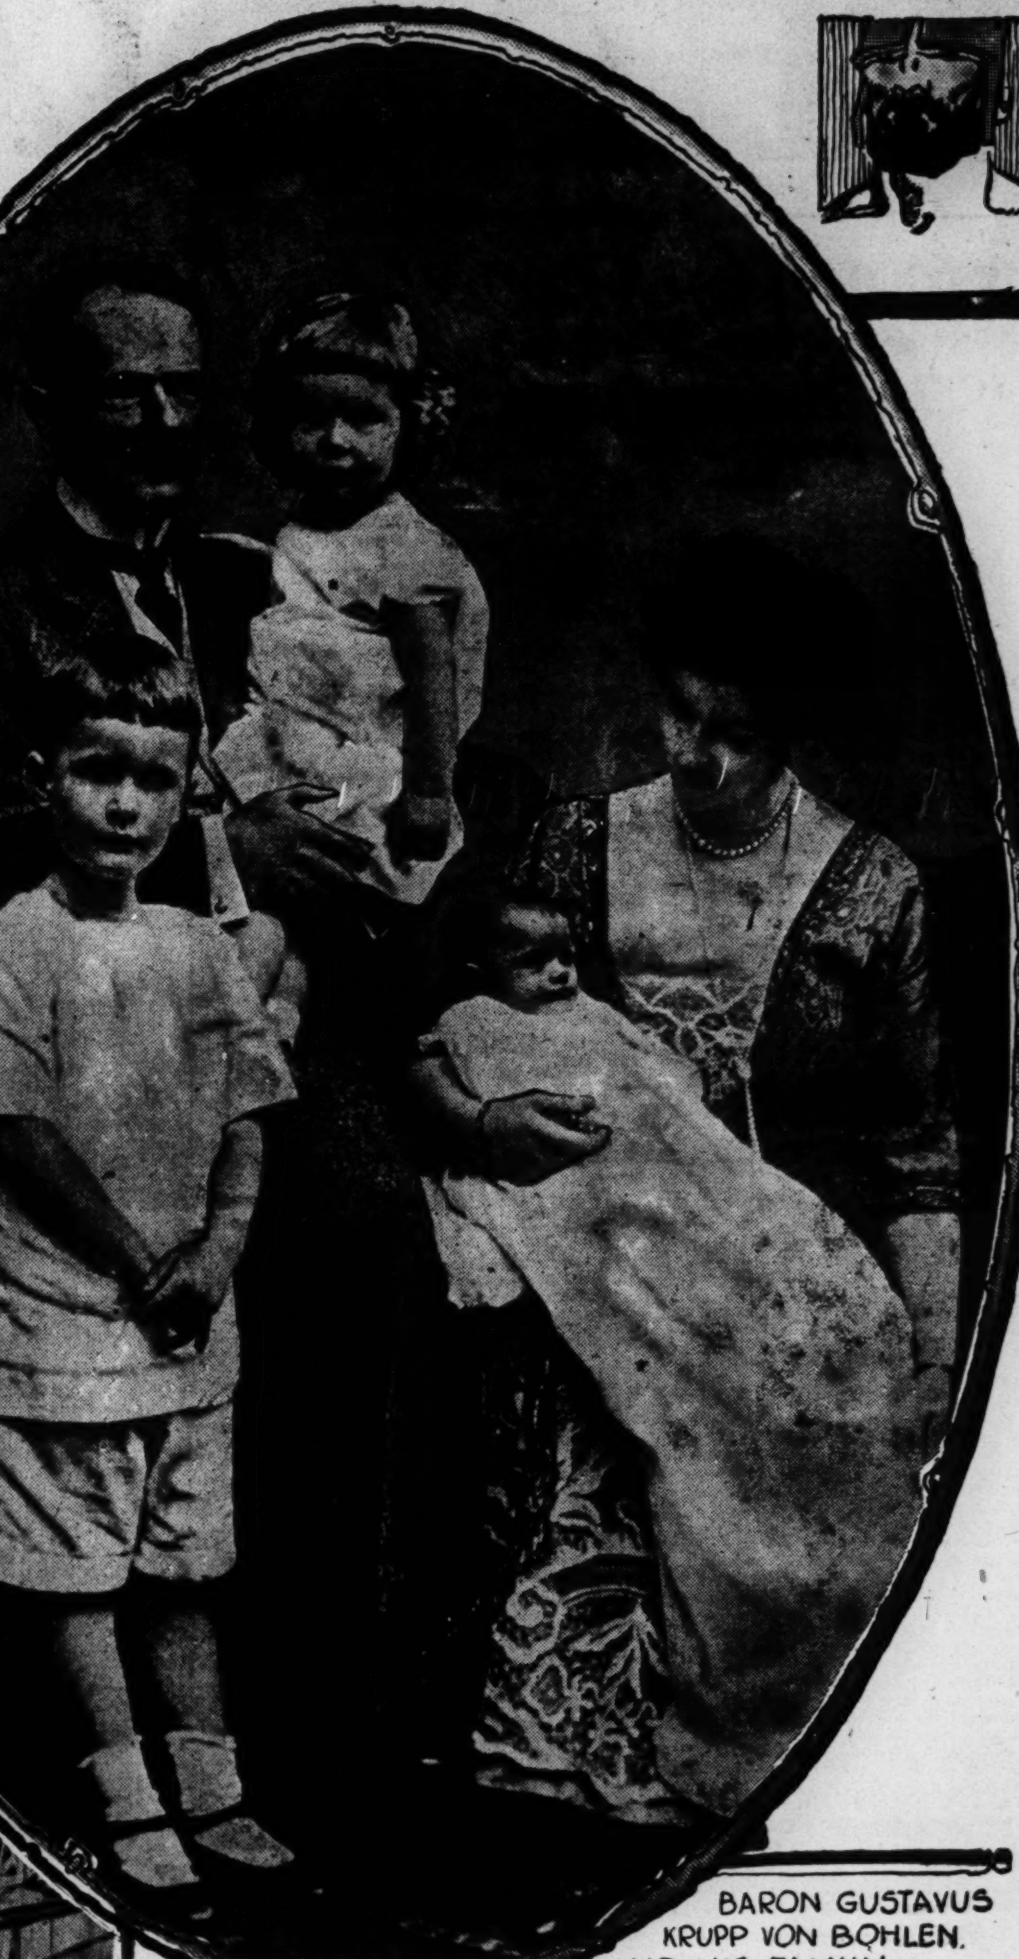
The Head of the World's Greatest Death Dealing Organization, A Man of Peace

(Copyright: 1915: by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)



BARON GUSTAVUS KRUPP VON BOHLEN. AND HIS FAMILY

"Taffy" Von Bohlen, Head of the Great Krupp Gun Works at Essen and Husband of Bertha Krupp, for Whom the German 42 Centimeter Guns Are Nicknamed "Busy Berthas," Is Well Known to Many Americans Who Remember His Visit to Chicago During the World's Fair. Mme. X. Has Written an Intimate and Gossipy Story of "Taffy's" Life and Presented the Anomaly of This Good Natured, Peace Loving, Good Fellow's Position.

By Mme. X.

WAS there ever a man placed in a seemingly more distressing, uncongenial, and altogether harrowing position than that of Baron Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, head of the great Krupp gun works at Essen, in the province of Cassel, Germany? Gentle, gay, artistic, fond of sports, more than usually humane in all his instincts, "Taffy" von Bohlen (and his very nickname sounds kind and jolly) is presiding genius of the greatest death dealing organization the world has ever known.

It must be a horrid, heart breaking combination—a nature like his and a factory like the Krupp works! And yet ever since his marriage to Fräulein Bertha Krupp in 1905 placed him in her late father's post he has devoted himself heart and soul to the gigantic concern, mingling advanced sociological ideas with the scientific, industrial, and financial part of the gun works. He has, moreover, shown as much ability in the last three phases of the business as in the presumably more congenial problems of sociology.

He is especially interesting to us Americans because of a strong strain of American blood in his veins. His father's mother was Miss Sophie Borie, a member of the well known Borie family of Philadelphia. Her two brothers, John and Adolph Borie, were in their day conspicuous citizens of the Quaker City. Her sister, Alwyna, also married a German, Baron von der Goltz. The son of this union, Gen. von der Goltz, was recently the German governor of Belgium and is now commanding the German forces in Turkey.

There is a strong strain of the French in the Borie family, which probably largely accounts for the Gallic "joie de vivre," wit, and great personal charm of "Taffy" Krupp von Bohlen. His mother, too, was American, though of Teutonic extraction, as she was a daughter of the United States officer Gen. Bohlen.

One of the Notable Sextette.

Born at The Hague Aug. 7, 1870, the present master of the Krupp works will be 45 next August. He is young for the terrific responsibilities which rest on his shoulders. He is one of a family of six sons, a spirited, dashing, notable sextet, all military in training and attached to different regiments. They were brought up with French and English tutors and special instructors, and from 16 years on spent each year six weeks in the spring and six weeks in the autumn in military maneuvers—twelve weeks out of the fifty-two—besides their regular three years' service.

Gustav was not born, however, with a warlike spirit. When he was a little boy he always said that he was going to be a "Herr Pastor." After he grew up he took a degree as doctor of jurisprudence, being quite an authority on international law. He also was given a degree as an engineer. He has a well cultivated taste for Chinese porcelains, rugs, and curios, a taste developed and fostered during his sojourn in Peking from 1900 to 1903 as chancellor of the German legation. During this time at Peking he also learned several Chinese dialects.

Do all these attributes, pious, scholarly, æsthetic, sound like an equipment for the master of Krupp? Had it been one of his brothers one would not have marveled at it, for they seem to be of a different stamp.

To go back a little, the father of the sextet, the late Baron Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach, who bore the title of governor in chief of the castles, was minister resident for the grand duchy of Baden at The Hague at the time of Gustav's birth. The family had three residences—a house at Carlsruhe, a villa in the Black forest, and an old place on the Rhine called Obercastle, next door to the ancient and historic castle occupied by their cousins and intimate companions, the Princes of Schomberg-Lippe.

Eldest Brother Insane.

The six sons of the house of Von Bohlen und Halbach were Arno, Harry, Alwyn, Gustav, Fritz, and Kurte. Arno, the eldest, is said to have been queer from infancy. As a child he had a tame goose follow him always everywhere. When he grew up he became engaged to an English beauty and heiress, the daughter of Sir James McCarrell Hogg, an enormously rich Australian. The engagement was broken because of Arno's going insane. He now is confined in what is called "the fortress," an old castle in northern Prussia devoted to housing insane German officers.

Harry, the second son, was a wild, harum scarum youth, to judge from the tales told of him. On one occasion he won a wager by riding his horse into the opera house (either at Berlin or Carlsruhe). He trotted down the aisle and leaped on to the stage. There he turned, faced the audience, vaulted back over the orchestra into the aisle, and so out into the open air once more—as mad a prank as any on record, I think.

Fritz von Bohlen und Halbach developed his adventurous spirit on a different line, as he eloped with his colonel's wife and fled with her to Argentina, where he has been ever since. I doubt if even the present war has lured him back to his native land.

The mother of this lively six is still living, a beautiful German grande dame, over 80 years of age.

During the world's fair in 1893 "Taffy" von Bohlen came to Chicago with his cousin, one of the Schomberg-Lippes, and was the guest of his American cousin, Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, who is a daughter of the late John Borie, "Taffy's" greatuncle.

This Prince Schomberg-Lippe, by the way, and his father and brother were all killed in various engagements during the early months of the present war, thus wiping out this branch of a distinguished family.

Served at Foreign Embassies.

Young von Bohlen was a secretary of the German embassy at Washington in 1899 and 1900, being sent from this country to China. At the end of his term in China he was made a member of the German embassy to the vatican. In Rome he was noted for his entertainments in his charming apartment in a little street just off the Corso—an apartment filled with exquisite things he had brought back from China. He joined much in the gay life of the capital and was very popular. Society eagerly climbed the three or four flights of stone stairs that led to his quarters, where he gave delightful little breakfasts, afternoon teas, and dinners. He was an athlete and a sportsman. He played tennis and golf.

He was especially famous as a dashing rider to hounds. The Roman hunt is the best on the continent. It is no anise seed trail the hunt follows, but wild foxes that lead them mad dashes among the ruins, over the inequalities, and wild, waste spaces of the Campagna. That historic district furnishes a setting for this fashionable sport not equaled anywhere else in the world.

In 1904, the year following her father's death, Fräulein Bertha Krupp, the quiet, retiring, modest inheritor of the greatest fortune in Germany, came to Rome merely as a tourist. There she met the gay and much courted "Taffy." It was a case on both sides of real love at first sight, a love that has grown and ripened into one of the ideal marriages of the day.

Although she was mistress of millions, Fräulein Krupp, true to the best German traditions, sewed and embroidered every stitch of her trousseau herself. A German "braut's" trousseau is a tremendous affair. It consists of dozens and dozens of everything in the way of underwear, house linen, table linen, handkerchiefs, etc. This enormous paraphernalia required of a bride partly is the result of the German custom of only having the laundry work of a household done three or four times a year. Our habit of weekly washing they consider intolerably burdensome. I don't believe, however, that their custom appeals any more to us than ours to them.

Baron and Baroness Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach have three children and lead a quiet, industrious, and unpretentious life, mostly at their country villa, Auf dem Hugel, overlooking Essen. Contrary to all expectations and prophecies, Gustav von Bohlen has devoted himself heart and soul to the great responsibilities thrust upon him by his marriage.

Honored by the Kaiser.

At the centennial celebration in 1910 commemorating the foundation of the Krupp works in 1810 by the old, original Friedrich Krupp, the present kaiser conferred on Gustav Krupp von Bohlen the Order of the Red Eagle and made him a baron in his own right as a recognition of and reward for his splendid work among the employés of the innumerable Krupp enterprises. He planned and developed one of the best coöperative systems in the world. He carried still further the many benevolent schemes begun as long ago as 1856 by Alfred Krupp, schemes which include schools of various kinds, lyceums, libraries, better housing of wage earners, pensions, sick funds, insurance, a sanitary commission, and other up to date undertakings.

"Taffy" Krupp von Bohlen, the authority on Chinese curios, the crack amateur sportsman, the delightful companion and man of the world, is also the great authority in his country on all phases of sociology that touch workmen and their problems. The result is an entirely satisfied lot of workers. The Krupp employés numbered all told 43,083 in 1902. What must the roster be now? Strikes are unknown among Krupp enterprises, and wage earners all over Germany look upon service in the Krupp company as the goal of their desires.

The perfection of the workmen's houses and model towns has been made an especial study by Baron Krupp von Bohlen for the last ten years. The cottages are marvels of convenience inside and attractive exteriors. In this he has been greatly aided by the German architect Baurat Schmol, who has laid out whole communities with great skill and art. The pointed gables, tiled roofs, rough plaster walls, quaint windows, pretty gardens, and immaculate streets of these various colonies would make attractive dwelling places for any one. And there are any number of these model communities near Essen and also near the great Krupp coal mines at Datteln. Near Essen are Alfredshof, Altenhof, and Friedrichshof, while there is the Hanover mining settlement and the latest achievement—the Emscher-Lippe colony of fifty officials and a thousand wage earners near Datteln.

The Krupps have been in Essen since 1560. Friedrich Krupp, great-grandfather of Fräulein Bertha Krupp, was born there in 1787. In 1810 he founded the present works. Essen is the center of a great coal district, and therefore peculiarly adapted to the support of this enormous industry. The Krupp foundry had a hard time of it until in 1859 the prince regent of Prussia—later Emperor William I.—gave it its first order for arms, an order calling for 300 cannon. From that moment the fortunes of the Krupps were assured. The son of this Alfred Krupp, Friedrich Alfred Krupp, became a dominating figure in Germany and was an intimate personal friend of the present emperor. His death at his villa, Auf dem Hugel, in 1902 left his daughter, Bertha Krupp, the nominal head of the great Krupp gun works.

Bearer of Many Titles.

In appearance Baron Krupp von Bohlen is rather un-German, being of medium height, slender of build, and with a keen, sensitive, expressive face. His coloring is chestnut—hair and eyes being of this soft brown. Although, like all German officers, he is much at home in uniform, unlike the majority of them he looks equally smart and up to date in civilian attire. An air of friendly bonhomie, a ready wit, an easily aroused sympathy all combine to make of him a charming personality entirely lacking in that "schneidigkeit" (curtness) so cultivated by many of his compatriots.

This devoted, cultivated, enlightened couple must have many moments of poignant and bewildered sorrow as from their residence on the heights above Essen they look down on the grim wilderness of smoking chimneys, flame-belching blast furnaces, and vast miles of factories all devoted to the manufacturing of engines of destruction. Even the most fanatic patriotism is not proof against those flashes of acute realization of what war means that must come to this thoughtful, naturally gentle, and benevolent couple.

Given all his titles, Baron Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach is doctor of laws, doctor of engineering, minister plenipotentiary to H. M. king of Prussia, chamberlain to H. R. H. Grand Duke of Baden, captain in the reserve of the regiment of the Leib Garde (or body guard) of the Potsdam hussars, and member of the Prussian upper chamber—quite a formidable string of honors, offices, and responsibilities for a gay, debonair, charming, clever, friendly good fellow like "Taffy" Krupp von Bohlen!

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A bitter feud has existed between Col. Arthur Stanley and his cousin, Judge Lamar Stanley. The feud has been engendered in family jealousy over an heirloom, "the diamond from the sky" that was found in a fallen meteor by an adventurer ancestor. The feud is further augmented by the fact that the succession to the Stanley earldom in England may come to an American Stanley. When a daughter is born to Col. Stanley of the eldest branch of the Stanleys in America, and the mother of the child dies at its birth, the chagrined colonel buys a new born gypsy boy and substitutes him as heir. Three years later the gypsy mother, having had no part in this bargain, steals the colonel's little daughter, being reared in secret, and leaves her own son undetected as the rightful heir of Stanley hall in Virginia, "the diamond from the sky," and the prospective heir to the earldom in England. The gypsy mother has also obtained possession of "the diamond from the sky" and a document that holds the Stanley secret of the false heir. She rears the little girl, Esther Stanley, as her own, and grows to love her. When Esther is grown a beautiful young girl, Hagar, now gypsy queen, returns to Virginia with her, hoping she may right the wrong that has been done her by the Stanleys and the wrong she has done the Stanleys in turn. She has a wild plan that Dr. Lee, the late Col. Stanley's old friend, may now adopt Esther, as originally intended. Her hope also is that her son, the supposed Arthur Stanley II., may fall in love with Esther, and thus the innocent girl may become by marriage what she is by birth—mistress of Stanley hall. In all this Hagar, the gypsy queen, sees a fulfillment of all her hopes—her own son master of Stanley hall, possessor of "the diamond from the sky," presumptive heir to a proud English title, and also the sweet girl, Esther, cheated of her birthright, sharing all this good fortune and great honor. Dr. Lee readily agrees to adopt Esther, but also demands that Hagar turn over to his custody "the diamond from the sky." Dr. Lee also informs Hagar that her son, the supposed Arthur Stanley II., is a profligate and not worthy of Esther. But Hagar hopes for the best and with her people departs. Arthur Stanley does fall in love with Esther, and so does his boon companion, Blair Stanley, the cousin who would be the rightful male heir of Stanley were the Stanley secret known. Blair, in endeavoring to steal the diamond from Dr. Lee, causes the death of the old doctor. In escaping from the doctor's house at midnight with the diamond Blair encounters Arthur, who has come to serenade Esther. To avoid the suspicious connection that would be established between his presence and the doctor's death, Blair insultingly infers to Arthur that he has just left Esther's room. Arthur forces him to fight a duel at close quarters, and although Blair treacherously attempts to fire before the signal Arthur is the victor and tumbles Blair into an open grave. Before he goes, however, he searches Blair and finds on his breast "the diamond from the sky," which he takes. Blair is only stunned, and when he gains consciousness he makes an effort, with the connivance of his mother, to place the blame for the murder of Dr. Lee upon Arthur. The sheriff attempts to take Arthur into custody on suspicion of the murder, but after a thrilling drive in a high powered motor car he eludes his pursuers, only to be thrown from his car into the river after a tragic smashup. His body is last seen floating down the river.

-AND THE FACE WAS OF ARTHUR STANLEY. SON OF HAGAR

"THE PRODIGAL'S PROGRESS."

LIKE Rachel of old, Hagar, the gypsy, "mourned for her children and would not be comforted." The years had brought nought but a harvest of heartaches for Hagar. The son she had borne had been torn from her ere scarce she had felt his little head against her heart, and as for the child she had taken from the house of those she deemed her enemies, the girl Esther, the child she had taken in retribution for the great wrong done her, the child she had nurtured in hate and had grown to love with every fiber of her being, sweet Esther, the rightful Stanley, of her, too, Hagar was now bereft.

Here, while her sad heart still mourned for both her children, yet longed the most for sweet Esther, came the homing pigeon to the rocks where it had been reared. And here Hagar saw it flying, laden with its message, and read the call for her that Esther sent. It did not take her long to mount and ride away.

"BE A GOOD MAN, ARTHUR," ESTHER WHISPERED TENDERLY

Within a few hours she was at Dr. Lee's cottage to find Esther already cast out by the cold, proud widow of Judge Stanley, Blair Stanley's mother, and next of kin to Dr. Lee. For the doctor had delayed, in his easy going way, just one day too long to legally adopt Esther, to tell her who she was, and to see she regained the heritage of Stanley hall and what was left of the estate the supposed heir was wildly squandering.

So it was Hagar arrived just in time to spare the shrinking Esther from further humiliation. And as they rode home in the dusk and crossed the ford at the river near the gypsy camp, the only home that sweet Esther seemed fated to know, the hoofs of Hagar's horse, that bore them both, splashed water on the face of what seemed the corpse of a man in the sedge. And the face of the seeming corpse was the face of Arthur Stanley, son of Hagar!

At Hagar's wild calls the gypsies came running from their camp not far from the river bank. The unconscious form of Arthur was tenderly borne to Hagar's luxurious van. But ere they bore him there Hagar's hand, feeling for his faint heart beats in the dusk, had closed about the diamond from the sky.

Distracting Esther's agonized attention, Hagar had unclasped the great jewel and hidden it in her breast unseen, scarce knowing why she did so.

When Arthur recovered consciousness, Sheriff Swain and his deputy had raeched the camp in their search and inquired for the fugitive. No corpse had been found when the wrecked and overturned auto had been dragged from the river bed, and the sheriff knew that Arthur Stanley, dead or alive, had floated unseen down the river.

It was with blazing eyes that Hagar confronted Arthur when he was strong enough to bear her fierce reproaches. "My sacrifice has been all in vain," she cried bitterly. "A ruined man and a murderer, you have wasted every chance in life for which I bowed my head in bitterness and sorrow. Better had you been bred the poor gypsy you were born, rather than to be a fugitive impostor who has squandered a heritage that was not his!"

Arthur regarded her as though she were, what she seemed to him, an insane harridan, who raged at him in half incoherent frenzy. Then Hagar drew a brass bound box from its hiding place, and, opening it with a key from her bosom, handed him a sealed document, yellow and musty with age, on the outside of which were the words,

"To be opened only after my death in case my son, Arthur Stanley II. should prove unworthy of the name of Stanley."

With trembling hands he broke the seal and realized the woman before him had spoken the dreadful truth. For there, affixed, was the signature of Col. Stanley, which he knew well, and also Dr. Lee's, also known to him, as witness.

"Nothing belongs to you, not even your name, and much less this for which you stained your hands with blood!" cried Hagar hysterically. And she threw down into the open brass box with a gesture of disdain the diamond from the sky.

"But I am not guilty of the death of Dr. Lee; he was my friend," replied Arthur hoarsely. "I did kill my supposed cousin Blair, and he now lies in a grave dug for another, but not for this," and he pointed to the baleful jewel. "I killed Blair Stanley because he spoke ill of Esther. Why have you driven her out to reproach me with what I am not guilty? Tell me, if I am not Arthur Stanley, who is she? Is she my sister? I ask this, for by every wild deed of my reckless life in the past and for every good deed I hope to achieve, I love her!"

"No matter who she is, you are not good enough to breathe the same air with her!" replied Hagar fiercely. "Make the better man of yourself that you boast you will! Make a name for yourself in place of the one you have lost and then return to me for a mother's blessing and to learn who Esther is!"

So saying Hagar, for she felt her fortitude giving way, walked with dry eyes and head erect from the van.

Arthur picked up the diamond from the sky. In her agitation Hagar had forgotten it, and Arthur was of the belief that his Spartan mother had left it there that he might take it and make some temporary use of it to build his fortunes with. For Arthur believed that Blair still lay dead by his hand in the grave dug for another, and with him the last male Stanley save the old earl in England had perished.

As Arthur passed from the van he saw Esther come towards him from Hagar's side and was glad to note his fierce, stern mother made no attempt to stay her. And Esther had evidently been told as much as Hagar cared to tell her. She called him "brother," and walked with him to the woods at the edge of the camp and there they paused and made their farewells.

"Be a good man, Arthur, my brother, and let me be proud of you!" Esther whispered tenderly. And Arthur folded her to his heart and kissed her and strode away. He looked back once and saw her leaning against a great tree and weeping. But neither he nor the weeping Esther beheld the dark face of Luke Lovell peering at them through the shrubbery!

It was not until next morning that Hagar sought for the diamond and found it missing. Again her rage at Arthur burned high. Hagar hated the Stanley name and despised every Stanley possession, but she was resolved since all the Stanley line was near at hand that Esther, defrauded of every other birthright, should have the diamond from the sky.

Hagar had not wholly believed Arthur guilty of Dr. Lee's murder, even when she had first learned of his being suspected from Esther's lips when she had come for Esther to Fairfax the day before. Hagar resolved to go to Richmond, the nearest big city, feeling sure Arthur would be there in hiding, in the hope of finding him and securing the diamond from the sky for Esther, even if it were necessary to give Arthur, her own son, up to the law. She wired again from the nearest railroad station, from which they took train to Richmond. This telegram was again to the Blake agency. This time it was to recall Tom Blake, the head of the concern, from Fairfax to Richmond.

No suspicion in the slightest had been directed at Blair in connection with the doctor's murder, nor did any living soul in Fairfax, save Blair and his mother, know of the encounter Blair had had with Arthur in the doctor's dooryard, nor of the grewsome duel across the open grave at midnight that had followed Blair's wild ruse to defame Esther's good name that Arthur might not suspect him of murder and robbery, the real guilt Blair felt the burden of.

But in order to be safe, and at his mother's suggestion, Blair Stanley had gone to Richmond, his mother giving the excuse that he went to attend to urgent matters brought about by the doctor's sudden and tragic death. Esther, too, was gone from Fairfax now, and this, with the flight of Arthur and the presence of the Richmond detective, made the countryside of old aristocratic Fairfax county ring with rumors and the revival of old, long forgotten tragic and mysterious happenings among the Stanleys in the past.

In Richmond Arthur Stanley, giving himself the name of John Powell, found humble lodgings awaiting opportunity to slip from Richmond when the hue and cry after him had died down. It was necessary for him to have funds. To obtain these he resolved to pawn the diamond from the sky, believing that no living person save Hagar knew of its existence.

In eighteen years the diamond from the sky had almost come to be regarded as a myth in Fairfax county. Some there were who claimed it had never existed at all and others who believed it had been a bit of old trumpery that Col. Stanley had found valueless and destroyed.

It was only when he came out of his hiding place after several days that Arthur dared buy and read a Richmond paper. There were no further accounts from Fairfax of the death of Dr. Lee and the flight of his supposed murderer. Arthur also came to the conclusion that the death of Blair Stanley, and his being found shot that, having done this, the doctor, who was greatly agitated, had fallen dead in his chair

"I was afraid I would be suspected of killing him for the diamond; how could I explain, when you caught hold of me," lied Blair, glibly. "I did not mean any reflection upon Esther, as you thought I did," he continued. "I only thought any altercation at such a time, and the doctor lying dead, might jeopardize her good name. I was too frightened to explain and you were too angry to listen to me. I was only stunned and got home all right. But there has been a detective hired and I believe he will find some clew, and your evidence would only tend to convict me, and I am innocent!"

Arthur reflected that Dr. Lee had known he was the spurious heir and that the diamond did properly belong to Blair in consequence. He did not tell Blair the Stanley secret, that he, Arthur, was but a gypsy changeling. But he resolved to stand by Blair and thus in reparation do what good he could until the time came when he might tell. So for the time being he resolved to keep Hagar's secret—and his own.

Blair was quick to take advantage of Arthur's joyous and softened mood. "I never will be able to prove I did not kill Dr. Lee," he said, with affected sadness. "True, there would not be any proof to convict me, but the suspicion of it would ruin me. You must stand by me, Arthur."

And Arthur, in the foolish impulsive generosity of his nature, promised. The relief he felt at seeing Blair alive placed him in the mood to promise anything that Blair might ask. Then, too, with an inward shame, he realized that after all he was an impostor and stood in Blair's way, and yet he could not bring himself to be despised of Blair should he tell him the Stanley secret.

The spirits of Blair rose correspondingly. With Arthur gone, suspicion would forever rest upon the hidden fugitive! Blair heaved a sigh of relief and then said to Arthur, "You do not know my mother's cousin, Mrs. Burton Randolph, who gives the grand ball in Richmond tonight. Come, let us have one fling, one good time together, in memory of the old days at Stanley hall before you go to the west. I will introduce you under any name you choose. There is a stunning young New York widow—lots of money and style about her—I want you to meet. She's just my style and I want your approval of her."

Arthur hesitated a moment and then realized that if the pursuit were still hot on his trail the last place he would be sought for would be at a high society function. So he shook hands with Blair and exclaimed heartily, "I'll go you, Blair! One good fling before I go west to make my fortune, and if I make it, Blair, I promise you that you shall share it!"

For Arthur all his generous impulses were now founded on the desire to recompense Blair for the heritage he had, unknowingly till now, deprived him of. And Arthur was young. For him the strong, brotherly affection he bore for Esther and the desire in his heart to do justice to Blair were now the main motives of his life. And he would have this farewell joyance with Blair.

Blair took him first to Abraham Bloom's private "club," and here, despite Arthur's wiser counsels, counsels the wisdom of which he now wondered at himself, Blair plunged again at roulette and lost the money he had gotten on his watch at the pawnbroker's and half of what Arthur had gotten from the same source on the diamond from the sky, of which, of course, Blair knew nothing.

Up to Richmond this night of Mrs. Randolph's ball came Hagar. She brought with her Esther, from whom she was resolved never again to be parted. Hagar brought also, as half servant half body guard, her lieutenant in her gypsy queenship, Luke Lovell.

Tom Blake, the detective, returned to Richmond at her summons and met her. It took but few inquiries with the means at Blake's command to locate Blair Stanley, cutting a swath in Richmond's gayest circles. It was with surprise Hagar learned, and a happy surprise, too, that Blair Stanley was alive and seemingly uninjured the while Arthur had believed he had killed him. And then later in the evening Blake brought her word that Arthur was with Blair under an assumed name, and it was evident was going to the Randolph ball with Blair that night.

On many occasions the thrifty Hagar had turned such fashionable functions as the Randolph ball to good account. She knew the idle rich welcomed the diversion of the impromptu appearance of a gypsy fortune teller on such occasions. As a gypsy fortune teller she determined to appear and confront Arthur and get the diamond ere he left Richmond to make his way in the world.

Meanwhile a fair vision was on the threshold of Abraham Bloom's private "club"; this fair vision was none other than the stunningly attired and vivacious woman of the world, Vivian Marston. Abe's "club" was on a quiet side street. The supposed "New York society belle" ran little risk of being seen by any of Richmond's "best society people" at 4 in the afternoon as she hurriedly passed from her waiting cab into the double doorway of the "clubhouse."

Abraham Bloom received the supposed "New York society leader" with an astonishing air of friendly familiarity. Vivian Marston may not have been a society leader in New York, as the rest of Richmond supposed, but it was true enough that she was a gay New Yorker, and Mr. Bloom had met her there on more occasions than one when he had visited the gay metropolis.

"Surprised to see me in your town, Abe?" asked Vivian gayly. "Well, I met one of your society dames, Mrs. Randolph, at Palm Beach last winter. I made a hit with her and I am here as her guest. She gives that big blowout you hear so much about tonight. I want to pick up some rich guy of Richmond and marry and settle down among the southern aristocracy. I have got plenty of fine clothes, but I had to hock my ice in New York to get them and get here. I want to beg, borrow, or steal a fine outfit of jewelry, and I want you to help me get the loan of some, unless you get enlargement of the heart and present it to me."

"Nix on that generosity stuff, Vi, old girl," replied Mr. Bloom. "Business is bum, there's no money in Richmond except the old Confederate bills they printed here by the ton during the war. But I got a brother who runs a hock shop——"

"And you and your brother catch them coming and going," merrily interjected the New York society leader, so called. "After you break the boobs, your brother gets their jewelry!"

"Never you mind about that, kiddo," replied Mr. Bloom affably. "I'll give you a note to brother Ike to lend you all the ice in the refrigerator. He'll fix you out with sparklers till you'll look like a chandelier."

The lady departed from Mr. Bloom's establishment with a compelling note to his brother, the pawnbroker. The best Mr. Ike Bloom had in the shop was the diamond from the sky. In a fatal moment he displayed it to the opulent looking lady friend of his brother, Miss Marston of New York, and that dazzled young person had eyes for nothing else.

"That for me!" she cried, "and nothing else! It would be a sacrilege to wear anything else with that!"

"Be very careful of it," warned the cautious Bloom, reluctantly. "I don't know where it came from, but when you wear that I know you are wearing one of the finest diamonds in the world!"

"They can't come too good for me, Mr. Bloom!" said Vivian, as she gazed enraptured at the great jewel in its antique setting.

That night Vivian Marston, in all her luxuriant beauty, set off as it was by the diamond of the sky blazing on her fair bosom, was the cynosure of all eyes at Mrs. Randolph's ball as she stood with her hostess in the receiving line.

Arthur and Blair gasped at her beauty, but stared as if turned to stone to see the diamond from the sky gleaming on the bosom of this fair stranger in Richmond.

Hagar, admitted as soon as her application reached the hostess, happy to have the novel diversion of real gypsies to tell fortunes at her ball, gasped, too, to see the diamond flaunted boldly by this dark, luxurious stranger. She thought Arthur had given this bold faced beauty the diamond from the sky and her heart again hardened to him.

Esther, dazzled by the lights and the luxury, clung timidly to Hagar's arm. She had never seen the diamond from the sky before, nor had she ever heard its history.

Outside Luke Lovell loitered idly, awaiting to guard Hagar and Esther back from the ball.

"Shall we have the fortunes first?" asked the hostess of her guest from New York. "It will be great fun and help to get things started."

Hagar had given no sign of recognition to Arthur, and he in turn was relieved that his gypsy mother did not seem intent on creating any scene. He stood aloof with Blair and silent, and both of them gazed from afar as though fascinated at the diamond from the sky blazing on the breast of Vivian Marston.

How came it here, was the thought of both of them. For in all their reconciliation they had sedulously avoided discussing the baleful gem.

"I have a wondrous fortune to tell this lady," said Hagar huskily, as she indicated Vivian. "Will the lady go aside and wait for me?"

"What fun! You must tell me all your wondrous fortune! Now don't forget!" exclaimed Mrs. Randolph as Vivian Marston smiled and nodded assent to this and glided away to a seat by a low, heavily curtained window in the small tearoom off the great Randolph parlors.

Vivian had just settled herself with the serene self-satisfaction that she was the sensation of the evening, she and the great blazing gem upon her breast. Then she saw Hagar, leaving Esther to be gently patronized by Mrs. Randolph, coming toward her. She settled herself back in the low gilt chair against the parted velvet hangings of the window, and then she felt a strong hand clutch at her throat, throttling her through the curtains so she could not shriek aloud. Then a brawny forearm drew back her shapely neck and the strangling hand loosened its hold on her neck and snatched away the diamond from the sky.

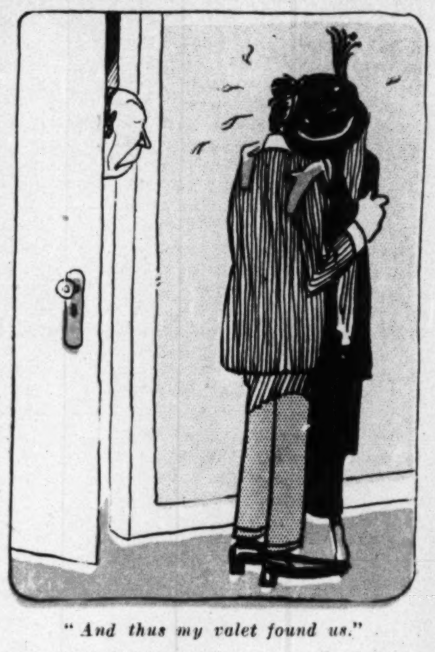
HIS LETTERS

This is the third of a series of letters written by a moving picture actor to his lawyer friend in Chicago, procured under promise that the author's incognito would be preserved.

The sketches are NOT photographs.



"And thus my valet found us."

DEAR BOBS: I ask you just what is it about me that makes me a goat? Is my name Butter? It is not! Just the same I am a baa-baa, and through no fault of my own, I swear!

The other day while my valet was at lunch—he quits me long enough to eat occasionally—the telephone in the hall rang. I waited a minute to see if somebody else would answer it, my contract not stipulating that I receive phone messages for either myself or anybody else. But as, on the other hand, there is no clause preventing my doing same, and as the bell began to annoy me unduly, I finally bolted out and yelled: "Well, hello!"

The company's operator answered: "Mr. Carney, please!"

"That's my name."

"Oh, why, listen, Mr. Carney. There's a lady here that says she has simply got to see you! She is not one of the ordinary kind, that's why I thought I'd better ask you would you see her."

I rubbed my eyebrows and cleared my throat; strange how dependent I am on my valet, after all! He has me completely spoiled. I have no mind of my own any longer. Maybe he'd be along in a minute to help me out of this crisis: I asked: "What kind of a lady?"

"A tall veiled lady!"

"What color is the veil?"

"Black."

"Is it a plain veil, or has it spots?"

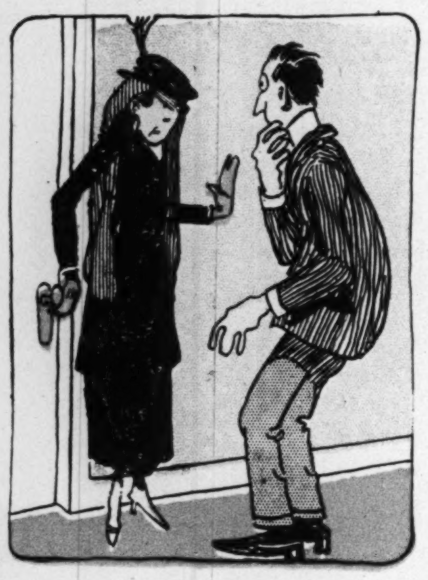
"It has little lizards on it, Mr. Carney."

"Little lizards? O yes! Lizards. Little black lizards?"

"Yes, sir!"

"How-er-quaint! Little black lizards! Well, well! (Why the —— doesn't that valet return?) Is the lady tall or short?"

"Tall."



"She beat me to it."

"Tall?"

"Yes, sir."

"About how tall would you say she is?"

"Why, I couldn't just say."

"O well, I suppose you couldn't. Does she appear to be-er-ladylike?"

"O yes, quite so, Mr. Carney."

I cast a frenzied glance about, not a smidgen of a valet in sight. I drew a deep breath, flung back my head, and shouted: "Send her up."

Then I bolted inside my dressing room and closed the door. No sooner was it shut than it opened and in bolted valet, disapproval written in every line of his countenance.

"I understand, Mr. Carney," he said, "that you have agreed to see a woman."

Now, Bobs, I believe I have given you to understand that I had been yearning for my valet. I had. But something about his physiognomy as he appeared before me so suddenly made me sore. After all, who was he to dictate to me; me a star! A hero!

"Yes," I said, haughtily; "and what of it?"

"Now, Mr. Carney," he said, "you know that if you start that sort of thing you'll have to keep it up. You will be pestered to death. You will have no time of your own. It will interfere with your work. It——"

There came a gentle tap at the door. I frowned majestically.

"Show the lady in, Hurlburt," I commanded. And as he obeyed I added: "I will call you when I need you!"

Never, my dear Bobs, will I forget his parting look. It contained the original recipe for scorn, disgust, annoyance, concern, and all their kin. In the meantime the lady glided in and stood hesitatingly before me.

"Mr. Carney?" she whispered.

"Yes," I assured her. "W-won't you sid-down?"

"Thanks," she said, and she accepted the chair I placed for her. I sat down opposite. There was silence for a moment. Then I said: "I-er-don't believe I caught your name."

"N-no," she whispered, "you didn't, because I—I didn't give it to you. I—I can't, either."

"Well," I said, "never mind. What can I do for you?"

Silence. Suddenly I became aware that it was a sniffly silence. Heavens! The woman was crying! What the dickens was I to do.

"Say," I said, "don't do that! Just a minute and I'll find a woman or something for you!" I started for the door. She beat me to it, backing up against it, her black draperies fluttering wildly.

"Don't," she said; "don't go! It is you I want! No woman would understand!"

I was about to insist that it was a cinch no man would when she threw back her veil, revealing the fair face of a woman of some fifty winters, and, thrusting out her hands, explained: "It's my husband—the brute! The brute! The brute! The brute! And she fell to weeping.

"Oh," I gasped! "Oh, I see! You've made a mistake! You were looking for a lawyer named Carney, or a policeman named Carney. Just a minute, I'll call——"

"Nobody!" she screamed. "It is you I want! Ever since I saw you in 'When His Heart Thundered' I have made up my mind to come to you. I was told you would see nobody, but I knew that the electric current of genius which surges through both our souls would waft me to your presence. And here I am. I want to be your leading lady! The gods have been kind to me, have they not?"

She stopped her weeping and smiled at me. Will I ever forget that smile to my dying day? I hope I do, but I bet I don't.

I stuttered: "Bu-b-but what about your husband? If I ac-c-cepted your proposal he would k-kill us both."

Again she smiled and rolled her eyes toward heaven. "Ah-h, then," she said, "we would die together!"

And then she got me. She catapulted at my neck, and after having succeeded in partially strangling me, she bestowed tears and kisses, wet, sloppy kisses all over my head and ears.

And thus my valet found us! To this hour I don't know just how he extricated me. But the great fact is, he did. He escorted the lady out and returned to prepare me for the afternoon's work, quite as if nothing unusual had happened. For quite some minutes I said nothing, knowing of nothing to say. But at last I blurted: "Was she crazy?"

"O no," he said; "not according to the general meaning of the word. The woods are full of 'em, Mr. Carney. You'd have a hundred just such visitors every day if you'd see 'em. I was pretty sure that's what she wanted. I was outside the door all the time; that's why I advised you as I did."

Laugh yourself sick, old loon, but the fact remains the news did not leak out, which is why my valet now wears my cameo pin, my watch fob, and my cuff buttons.

Nothing is too great a price to pay for such discretion. Some valet! But in the future, however, believe me

JIM.

Kathlyn Williams

KATHLYN WILLIAMS, famous as the heroine of "The Adventures of Kathlyn," is, as you know, with the Selig Company. She was born in Butte, Mont., and spent her early life there. During her senior year in high school the failing of the family fortune compelled her to start out to seek her own. Miss Williams' charm of face and grace of figure, her poise and histrionic resourcefulness attracted the attention of a western theatrical manager and he engaged her for small parts in a Butte playhouse. She had not been on the stage long before her work attracted attention and she was sent to a dramatic school in New York, where she studied two years. At her graduation she was asked to take the position of leading woman with a dramatic company. William H. Selig seeing Miss Williams on the stage recognized her capabilities and engaged her as leading woman for his stock company in Chicago. Miss Williams immediately entered into the new work with a zest that made her a valuable acquisition for the serious side of the motion picture business. Having run the gamut of the sensational and tragic heroines, Miss Williams became the "lead" in a new sort of drama in which wild animals figured. Her absolute fearlessness won her name and fame, and this coupled with her versatility have made her one of the most popular movie "heroines" of the day.

DAISY: It would certainly do no harm for you to ask young Mr. Chaplin for a picture of himself. I would suggest that you accompany the request with a quarter. Address him in care of the Essanay company, Niles, Cal. I'm so glad you like this page.

VIVIAN: I'm sorry, but I have no information regarding the actor you mention. A letter addressed to him in care of the Pathé company, 1 Congress street, Jersey City Heights, N. J., will reach him. The Balboa Feature Film company is located at Long Beach, Cal.

CURT AND LEM: Yes, indeed! Tom Moore is still in moving pictures. How could they get along without him, I'm asking you? Matt Moore, I understand, is not married. Harry Beaumont is married to Bliss Milford. You're a thousand times welcome for your "thousand thanks."

I. L. B.: Ella Hall lives in Hollywood, Cal., where Universal City is located. King Baggot is still with the Universal company.

M. K., M. O.: Address Anita Stewart in care of the Vitagraph company, East Fifteenth street and Locust avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Beverly Bayne is with the Essanay company, 1333 Argyle street, Chicago. Glad to help you out.

FOURTEEN YEAR OLD: It's nice of you to write and tell me what you like and what you don't. I'm so glad you appreciate the Silly Gallillies. Mr. Hall draws the pictures and I put the words into them. (I know just what you're going to say, but don't say it.)

A SINCERE ADMIRER: The name of the man who played the lead in "The Scrub" is George Elliott. I have no information regarding him. He is, I believe, comparatively new to the screen.

ANXIOUS M.: Since you are considered pretty, I will give you any advice I can. But what shall I advise you about? I've gone over your letter thoroughly, but I can't find a single thing. Carlyle Blackwell recently joined the Lasky company. A letter addressed to him in care of that corporation, Longacre Theater building, New York, will reach him. Ella Hall is 17 years old. She is with the Universal company, Hollywood, Cal. No, indeed, you didn't ask me too much. Write again and tell me what you want advice about.

LOTTIE B.: I don't know Pauline Bush's exact age. Awfully sorry.

JAMES: In the World production, "The Deep Purple," Milton Sills was Lake.

VOICE of the FAN

Dear Miss Tinee: The "pink permit" is my theme. Last week there was a "pink permit" performance of "Three Weeks." Well, I managed to witness this performance despite the fact I am only 18 and look like 15. Why, may I ask, did this exhibitor have to have a special permit to show this picture? There wasn't an offensive scene in the entire film. I had the pleasure of witnessing the play about a year ago and am inclined to believe it should not have been "scenarioized" at all. "The Clemenceau Case" is another picture released and exhibited by special permit.

Pictures exhibited in this manner lure you to them but they are in reality very mild and seldom if ever give offense. Others of a similar nature are "A Fool There Was," "The Destroyer," "The Single Standard," "The Escape," and "A Summer's Sequel." What is the national board of censors? Why is it? I think it is just a bit too strict in "cutting out" and all people should be permitted to attend any theater. Of course, I may be wrong. I do not claim to be correct, but that is my idea. There are not two persons in the world who agree perfectly with each other.

I hope the time will soon be here when I can go out to a moving picture show without being compelled to go from one to another only to be refused admittance on account of my youth.

FRED S. LEXIN.

If you are agreeable I would like to see this in print on your Right Off the Reel page:

First scene is "Broncho Billy," who is standing near his horse;
Then, to make the picture thrilling, there's a gambler, of course;
And "Broncho's" little sweetheart Nell is leaning on the gate.
She is bound and gagged by "Desperate Dud," and then left to her fate,
In a lonely, sandy desert, far from food and drink and town;
But she's spied by a prospector from the hillside looking down.
Back to town they ride together, met by anxious "pa" and "mar."
Nell then tells her sad, sad story—"Dud" is searched for near and far.
They find him in the "Dew Drop inn," cheating miners blind.
The men sneak up and grab him from in front and from behind:
When last seen "Dud" was hanging on the back end of a freight.
Of course to let the people know Nell comes to no more harm
The end now shows her safely clasped in "Broncho Billy's" arm.

Dear Miss Tinee: Might one more humble patron of the "jitney opera" voice a protest? Why should movie patrons be compelled to sit with cold shivers chasing up and down their spines and listen to some one with a voice like a file sing the latest mushy love song or caper about with the easy grace of a cow while shouting the latest ragtime hit? Could not the movie managers spare us this unnecessary suffering?

YOUNG AMERICANS
Conducted by Terry Ramsaye

Boy Scouts will participate in the patriotic observances of Memorial Day in every city where organizations of the Boy Scouts of America exist. The national flag should be displayed today at half mast until noon, and at full staff from noon to sunset.

In Chicago the boy scouts will participate in the general Memorial day parade, probably to the number of about 2,000, or about half of the total Chicago membership. The scout organizations will report in uniform to James Fitch of headquarters between 1:30 and 2 o'clock in the afternoon in Grant Park.

The Trail of the Boy Scouts

PHOTOGRAPHY IN SCOUTCRAFT.

PHOTOGRAPHY is one of the most interesting and valuable diversions of scoutcraft. It is a real grown up sport open to boys. It can be made an incident of a vacation or outing, or it may be the center of supreme interest.

The requirements for a merit badge for photography as stated in the official organ of the Boy Scouts of America are that the scout must:

Accurately understand the construction and operation of the ordinary types of cameras, understand the principle of development, the action of light on the sensitive plate, and the general facts of the structure of lenses.

Understand and be able to apply a number of printing processes, and to define the special advantages for special purposes that each may present.

Make a clear, recognizable photograph of a wild bird larger than a robin, a wild animal in its native haunts, or a fish in the water.

Take, develop, and print twelve separate subjects, including three interior views, three landscapes, three portraits, and three action pictures.

You will observe from these requirements that real boy scout photography requires something more than the ability to point a camera at the subject, press the button, and let the corner drug store developing agency do the rest. To earn recognition as a scout photographer means that you have to study the camera and its processes.

Serious attention to photography carries with it many developments. In time one learns to see a great many things that passed unnoticed before—the color of light, the tint of skies, the grouping of trees, the changes of facial expression, the march of the sun through the hours and the declination of its rays—a thousand and odd aspects of nature. All healthily worth while. Photography also teaches one to see pictures with a discriminating eye and to search every environment for compositions of beauty and interest. Probably there is no place in the world where interesting pictures cannot be taken.

The boy who sets out to take pictures seriously must at once reconcile himself to the necessity of real study. If you want to take just "snapshots" and don't try for anything else you will never get anything else. Get a "fool proof" fixed focus box and never try any other.

The boy who would qualify for recognition as a camera scout should choose a better camera. A better camera does not necessarily mean any considerable expenditure. A cheap camera can do fine work and just as good work within its limitations as the most expensive camera in the world. Some of the finest pictures to be seen in the camera print exhibits have been taken with boxes that cost less than $6. The biggest thing about the camera is the fellow who holds the shutter release.

Coming down to the camera itself, get one of the focusing type, and, if you can afford it, one which uses both plates and films. There is a lot of work that you will want to study on the ground glass of the plate attachment, and then often on hikes and camping trips you will want the convenience of films.

The size is worth considering. If you go in for a miniature camera—that is, one which takes pictures 2¼x2¼ inches square or smaller—it will be only a short time until you will be demanding a lot of expensive enlargements or find yourself put to the necessity of making them. The postcard size, which is quite a fad among amateurs now, is not entirely undesirable. But, in my opinion, built on some expensive experience, the most practical size is the camera which takes a picture 4x5 inches. The cost of sensitive materials, films, papers, and the like is not excessive for this size, and it gives a wide range of possibilities, in both record and pictorial photography. The size is also one that lends itself handily to the occasional enlargment you will want from the best of your negatives.

Recent developments in lens manufacture have put the price of some good anastigmats in the reach of most any camera buyer, but in choosing a lens an anastigmat is not at all necessary to the beginner. The more common lens known as the "rapid rectilinear" is an excellent lens, and for many purposes it is even better than the anastigmat. The anastigmat is so named because of its correction against the faults of the earlier lenses involving optical principles, and the treatment of light waves you had better study from handbooks and catalogues.

Get a simple outfit to begin with and in time you will either lose interest in photography or go in for a whole battery of cameras, ray filters, anastigmats, backed panchromatic plates, and other highly complicated properties of picture making. Let your equipment grow up along with your ability to use it. A $200 outfit would disgust a beginner because he would be unable to get a picture with it at all, unless by miracle.

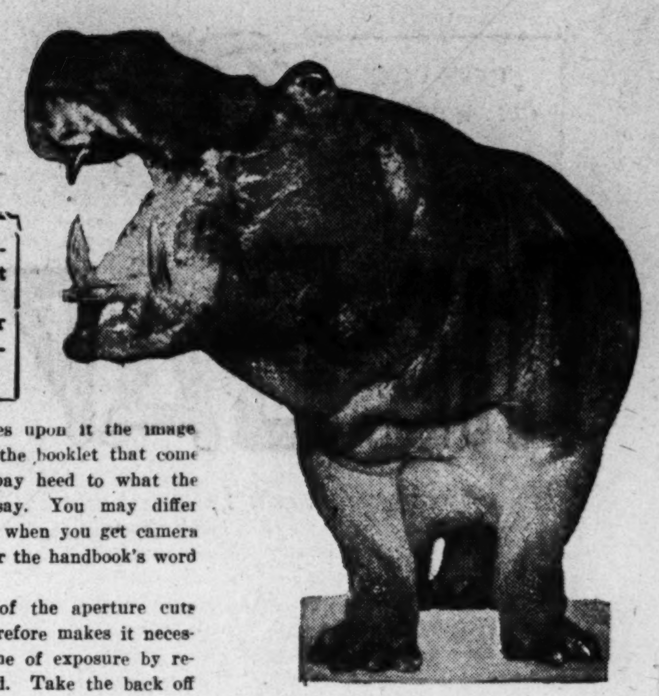
The first thing to worry about when you get a camera is the question of aperture and shutter speed, because these factors govern the amount of light which strikes the sensitive plate and impresses upon it the image. Read the circular and the booklet that come with the camera and pay heed to what the manufacturer has to say. You may differ with him after a while when you get camera wise, but to the beginner the handbook's word must be law.

Decreasing the size of the aperture cuts down the light, and therefore makes it necessary to increase the time of exposure by reducing the shutter speed. Take the back off your camera and change the adjustments of the diaphragm and shutter until you have proven this to yourself. You will find the system of markings for both speed and aperture all explained in the booklet that goes with the camera.

It will take a good deal of experiment for you to learn to make exactly correct exposures. Too much light "burns up" the film, too little fails to impress the image on the sensitive silver salts of the negative emulsion. Keep a note book on every exposure, jotting down the nature of the subject, the date, the time of day, the weather and sky conditions, the stop or aperture used, and the shutter speed. From this data, compared with the negatives, you can tell what your mistakes have been.

It would be useless to try to tell you much about development of the negatives here. That you will have to suffer out alone in the dark room. Follow directions in development. If you follow them exactly the development will bring out everything that is in one of the negatives.

And now about the choice of subjects. Always be ready when you look at a print to answer this question, "Why did you take that picture?" Too many amateurs waste a lot of materials and effort snapping away like a boy with a new air rifle. Don't expose a negative unless there is a picture in sight, or a reason for it.



Incidentally, also, avoid coming to grief and strange ghostly mysteries on your negatives by trying to take pictures of racing horses, automobiles, and express trains right along side of you. Leave that to the focal plane camera experts. Even the cheapest camera for beginners can be made to "stop motion," as they call it, but only within certain well defined limits.

Study your pictures and compare them with the work of the best photographers and painters. That is the only way to learn picture composition and get out of the snap shooter class. Don't crowd your pictures full of stuff, and try to avoid the terribly common fault of amateur work of perpetually taking "posed" pictures. Let your subjects be doing something besides the business of staring at the camera with that "my picture" expression.

As your photographic requirements and tastes develop learn to make your own apparatus. That's the real fun.

MY ADVENTURES AS A SPY
By Lieut. Gen. Sir Robert Baden Powell
Founder of the Boy Scouts

FORTUNATELY for us, we are a nation considered by the others to be abnormally stupid, therefore easily to be spied upon. But it is not always safe to judge entirely by appearances.

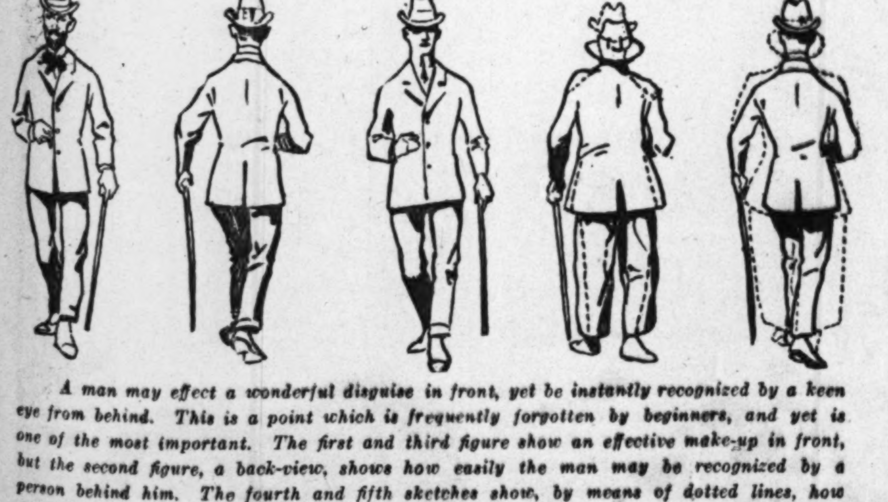
Our ambassador at Constantinople some years ago had the appearance of a cheery, bluff, British farmer, with nothing below the surface in his character, and he was therefore looked upon as fair game by all intriguing rivals in eastern politics. It was only after repeated failures of their different missions they found that in every case they were outintrigued by this innocent looking gentleman, who below the surface was as cunning as a fox and as clever a diplomat as could be found in all the service.

And so it has been with us British. Foreign spies stationed in our country saw no difficulty in completely hoodwinking so stupid a people; they never supposed that the majority of them have all been known to our secret service department, and carefully watched, unknown to themselves.

Few of them ever landed in this country without undergoing the scrutiny of an unobtrusive little old gentleman with tall hat and umbrella, but the wag of whose finger sent a detective on the heels of the visitor until his actual business and location were assured and found to be satisfactory.

For years the correspondence of these gentry has been regularly opened, noted, and sent on. They were not as a rule worth arresting, the information sent was not of any urgent importance, and so long as they went on thinking that they were unnoticed, their superiors in their own country made no effort to send more astute men in their place. Thus we knew what the enemy were looking for, and we knew what information they had received, and this as a rule was not of much account.

On Aug. 4, the day before the declaration of war, the twenty leading spies were formally arrested and over 200 of their minor agents were also taken in hand, and thus their organization failed them at the moment when it was wanted most. Steps were also taken to prevent any substitutes being appointed in their places. Private wireless stations were dismantled, and by means of traps those were discovered which had not been voluntarily reported and registered.



A man may effect a wonderful disguise in front, yet be instantly recognized by a keen eye from behind. This is a point which is frequently forgotten by beginners, and yet is one of the most important. The first and third figure show an effective make-up in front, but the second figure, a back-view, shows how easily the man may be recognized by a person behind him. The fourth and fifth sketches show, by means of dotted lines, how the "back-view" can be altered by change of clothing and gait.

It used to amuse some of us to watch the foreign spies at work on our ground. One especially interested me, who set himself up ostensibly as a coal merchant, but never dealt in a single ounce of coal. His daily reconnaissance of the country, his other movements entailed in preparing his reports, were all watched and recorded. His letters were opened in the post, sealed up, and sent on. His friends were observed and shadowed on arriving—as they did—at Hull instead of in London. And all the time he was plodding along, wasting his time, quite innocent of the fact that he was being watched, and was incidentally giving us a fine amount of information.

Another came only for a few hours, and was away again before we could collar him; but, knowing his moves, and what photographs he had taken, I was able to write to him, and tell him that had I known before-hand that he wished to photograph these places, I could have supplied him with some ready made, as the forts which they recorded were now obsolete.

On the other hand, the exceedingly stupid Englishmen who wandered about foreign countries sketching cathedrals, or catching butterflies, or fishing for trout, were merely laughed at as harmless lunatics. These have even invited officials to look at their sketch books, which, had they had any suspicion or any eyes in their heads, would have revealed plans and armaments of their own fortresses interpolated among the veins of the botanist's drawings of leaves or on the butterflies' wings of the entomologist.

Once I went "butterfly hunting" in Dalmatia. Cattaro, the capital, has been the scene of much bombarding during the present war. More than a hundred years ago it was bombarded by the British fleet and taken. It was then supposed to be impregnable. It lies at the head of a loch some fifteen miles long, and in some parts but a few hundred yards wide, in a trough between mountains. From Cattaro, at the head of the loch, a zigzag road leads up the mountain side over the frontier into Montenegro.

When the British ships endeavored to attack from the seaward the channel was closed by chains and booms put across it. But the defenders had reckoned without the resourcefulness of the British "handyman," and a few days later, to the utter astonishment of the garrison, guns began to bombard them from the top of a neighboring mountain!

The British captain had landed his guns on the Adriatic shore, and by means of timber slides rigged up on the mountain side he had hauled his guns bodily up the rocky steeps to the summit of the mountain. He fixed up his batteries, and was eventually able to bombard the town with such effect that it had to surrender.

It was perhaps characteristic of us that we only took the town because it was held by our enemies. We did not want it, and when we had got it we did not know what to do with it. We therefore handed it over to the Montenegrins, and thus gave them a seaport of their own. For this feat the Montenegrins have always had a feeling of admiration and of gratitude to the British, and, though by terms of ulterior treaties it was eventually handed over to Dalmatia, the Montenegrins have never forgotten our goodwill towards them on this occasion.

But other batteries have since been built upon these mountain tops, and it was my business to investigate their positions, strength, and armaments.

I went armed with most effective weapons for the purpose, which have served me well in many a similar campaign.

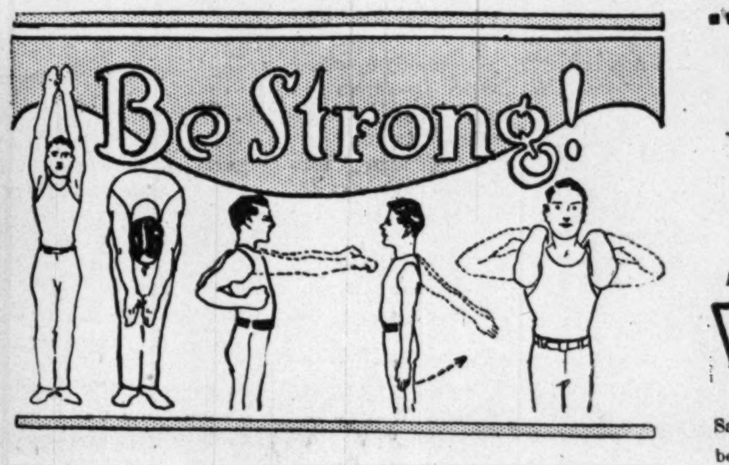
Be Strong!



Setting up exercises help you start the day with a lot of "pep." You can use them anywhere, in your bedroom, on the beach, or in camp. They call for no equipment but energy. Great for "spring fever."

Left to right: Arms at vertical position, thumbs locked together, head fixed between arms. Then, as in next figure, bend forward as far as possible, without bending knees, and return.

Forearms flexed at sides, as in third illustration, then thrust arms forward and return.

Arms at side, vertical, swing backward beyond sides of body, rising on toes with the end of the swing.

Arms at front, horizontal, forearms flexed, fingers on shoulders; then swing backward to side, horizontal in position.

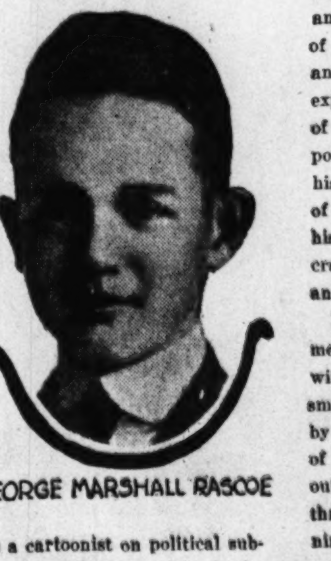
Make 'em snappy. Five to ten minutes is enough to stir up your circulation, fill your lungs with air, and put an edge on that breakfast appetite—providing it needs an edge. Don't be lazy about it and keep it up. Half-hearted efforts are efforts wasted.

The setting up exercises will find out your weak spots. When a muscle gets a trifle sore it's a good sign it has been loafing. Keep it at work. That will prove an excellent cure.

Interesting Boys

GEORGE MARSHALL RASCOE.

AT the close of the last session of the Oklahoma legislature a 16 year old boy was presented with the gavel of the speaker of the house and invited to make an address. This limelight youngster is George Marshall Rascoe, the son of M. L. Rascoe, owner of a ranch four miles out of Seminole, Okla. Young Rascoe was then chief page of the legislature and private page of the speaker of the house.



GEORGE MARSHALL RASCOE

As an early evidence of progressive and mature thought the young man devoted his address to the house to a discussion of the legislation of the session just passed, commending the workingmen's compensation act as the most valuable work of the session.

The youth has had no technical training, but he has attained fame in his state as a cartoonist on political subjects. His cartoons have been published in several papers and he is the author of a series of signed articles in Tulsa and Oklahoma City papers describing the work of the legislature. It is the chief page's proudest boast that "none of the pages of the legislature uses tobacco in any form, all keep regular hours, study and exercise a certain time during the day, and have as firm a grasp upon parliamentary procedure as any member of the legislature."

Rascoe has organized boy scout troops. He plays baseball and works on his father's big ranch in the summer. He is the master of the "buckingest" mustangs and bronchos that the Indian country can produce. He is a crack shot and a good huntsman.

"My ambition now is to be a great cartoonist," he has confided. "It would be great stuff to be able to do things with a 'punch' and make the people think. Pictures are, of course, the one universal language, and all the argument in the world could never carry the conviction of a well drawn right-to-the-point cartoon. You don't have to read or study good cartoons, they hit you right between the eyes."

Popular Science

If You Were as Strong as an Oyster.

WHEN we grow vaingloriously proud of the power of the human race, pointing with pride to Mr. Jess Willard, Mr. Hercules, and Mr. Samson, it is well that we consider the busy bee, the humble ant, and the modest oyster.

If a man were relatively as strong as a house fly he could lift with his feet a beam of wood 14 feet long by 2 feet 6 inches square.

If a man had relatively as much grip in his hand as a common crab has in its claw he could shake hands with a pinch of two and a half tons.

These figures are derived from the researches of Felix Flateau, a Belgian naturalist, who has made many interesting investigations of the strength of the lower animals. To test shell fish he put claws between their shells, suspending them by one and attaching weights to the other until the shells opened one millimeter. To measure the strength of insects he constructed a harness attached by a slender wire to a weighing machine. By prodding the insects he made them walk and try to get away, adding weights until they could not move. By this means he found that a bee, weight for weight, was thirty times as strong as a horse. A horse can draw no more than five or six times its own weight.

Some of the smaller flies are even stronger than the bee. An ordinary housefly held up by the wings can lift a match stick with its feet, which is equivalent to a man lifting the bridge timber referred to above.

There is a little fork tailed insect that burrows into pears and figs that can haul six match sticks, equal, weight for weight, to a man dragging 330 beams as big as himself.

Prof. Flateau fastened crabs securely so that they could not escape from his laboratory bench, hung a balance to their movable claws, and teased them into opening and closing their pincers. This proved that the power of a crab's nip in his strongest claws often reached four and a half pounds. A general average in this series of experiments indicated that the crab had a pinching power of thirty times its own weight. A hundred and fifty pound man gripping a dynamometer with his right hand will rarely register a reading of more than 100 pounds, or two-thirds of his own weight. If he were as strong as a crab he could grip hard enough to lift two and a half tons.

It seems probable that these relatively tremendous powers are even exceeded by the wing power of some of the rapidly flying small migratory birds. The swallows, which, by the way, the war has almost driven out of Belgium, fly from France to Africa without an opportunity for a single rest, and throughout the journey maintain a speed of ninety or more miles an hour.

Consideration of the remarkable powers of insects reminds one of that fanciful chapter in Henri Fabre's work on the spider, in which he depicts a world ruled by monstrous and wonderful giant insect forms.

THE CAPTURE of the SPEAKING BIRD

FROM THE ARABIAN NIGHTS

BY DONAHEY

SYNOPSIS OF THE SPEAKING BIRD.

The two elder sisters of the sultana of Persia become jealous of their royal sister and steal her children, two boys and a girl, as soon as they are born. The sisters set each baby afloat in a basket on a canal, and all are found and adopted by the governor of the sultan's gardens. After they are grown an old woman tells the princess of three wonders, a talking bird, a singing tree and the yellow water, and the brothers determine to get these for their sister, the eldest setting out in search of them. Before his departure he gives his sister a knife, telling her as long as the blade remains bright he will be safe, but if a stain appears he will be dead. Some time after his departure a stain appears upon the blade. Prince Perviz goes out to find what has become of his brother, and when he does not return the princess goes in search of both. She meets an old man, who tells her to climb a certain mountain, being careful not to look back. Near the top of the mountain she sees the speaking bird, who tempts her to look behind.

REMEMBERING the old woman's advice, the princess, however, would not be tempted. She never stopped to look back, but boldly climbed on up the rocks and grasped the cage of the speaking bird.

"I am your slave," cried the bird, "now that you have captured me, and I hope that you will not be angry with me for trying to trick you into looking back. Had you looked back when I told you that your brothers were being murdered, you would have been instantly lost."

"But, tell me now," cried the princess. "Where are my brothers?"

"I cannot tell you," answered the bird, "until you have found the singing tree and the yellow water. If you break a small twig from the tree you will find that when it is planted in your garden it will soon grow into a large tree."

The bird then told the princess where she could find these other magic marvels, and at once she started in search of them. She soon came to the singing tree, and as she stood beneath it all the leaves opened their mouths and sang, making a wonderful chorus of the sweetest voices.

Following the direction of the speaking bird, she soon found also the yellow water, and, filling a flask with the fluid, she ran quickly back to the bird.

"Now, do please tell me where I can find my brothers," begged the princess, as she drew up panting before the cage.

"You will find them down there," answered the bird, pointing down the side of the mountain. Seeing that the princess was still afraid to look in that direction, the bird told her that since she had captured him the charm was gone, and she could look where she wished with safety. The princess looked down the path that she had climbed, but saw nothing except the many black rocks she had passed.

"Do you see those black rocks?" continued the bird? "Each one represents a man, your two brothers among them. Each has tried to capture me, but becoming alarmed at the invisible voices that cried out at them, they became frightened, looked behind, and were instantly turned into stones. You would have shared the same fate had you turned your head."

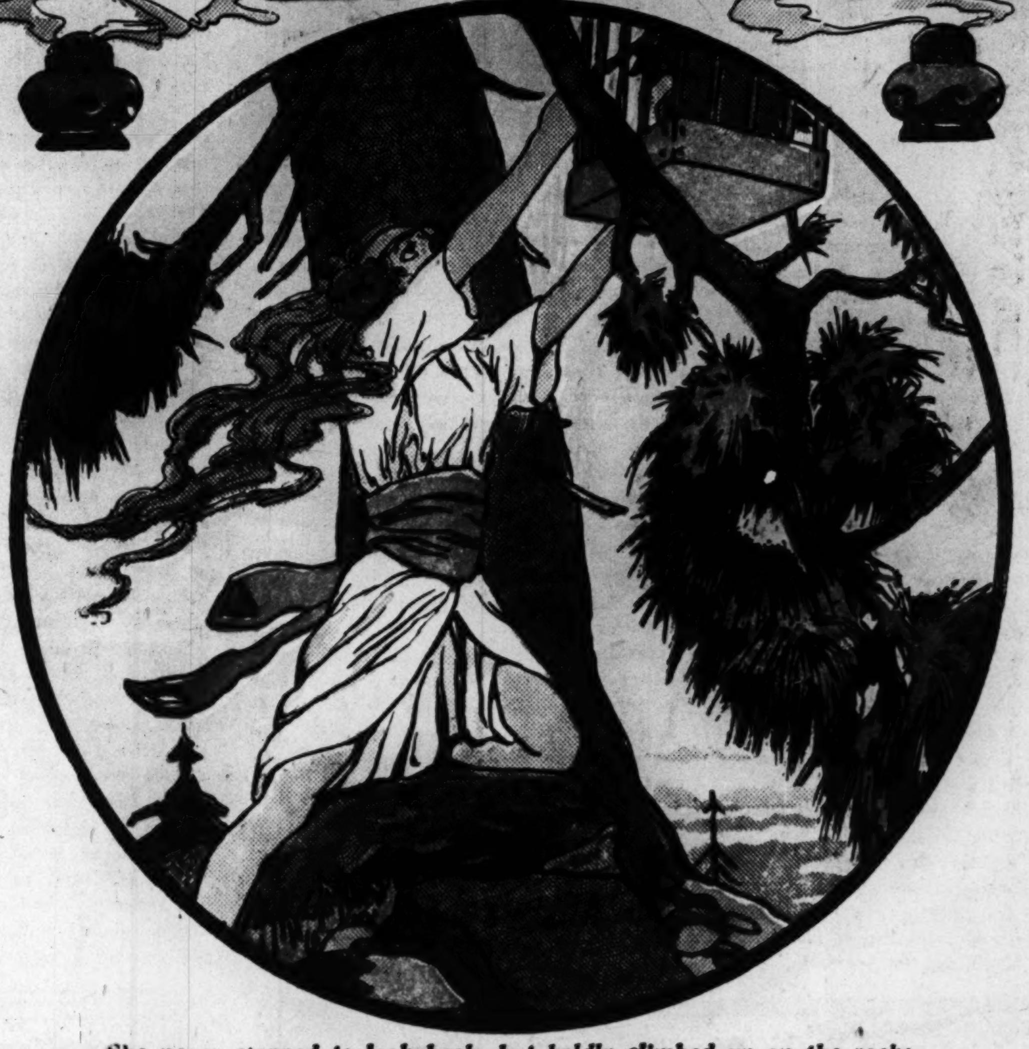
"Is there any way of bringing them back to their natural form?" anxiously asked the princess. "Yes," answered the bird. "Take some of the yellow water and sprinkle it on the stones, and they will immediately come to life."

The princess at once ran to the nearest stone and threw a few drops of water upon it. Instantly it disappeared, and a horse, bearing on his back a handsome young man, stood in that place. The young man rubbed his eyes sleepily at first, but they soon opened wide with astonishment when the princess explained how she had brought him to life.

As soon as the princess dropped the yellow water on the stones they turned into men and horses, and in a short time she had quite an army following at her heels. Presently one big, black rock, to her great joy, turned into her eldest brother, and soon after she was delighted to see Prince Perviz, too, step from the heart of a stone.

When the princess had turned all the stones back to men, she told them of her adventure, and how she had succeeded in capturing the speaking bird.

With her royal brothers on either side, the princess, carrying the cage with the speaking bird in it safely under her arm, rode down the mountain, followed by the rest, and when they came to the old man who had directed them all to the mountain, they found that he was dead.



She never stopped to look back, but boldly climbed up on the rocks, and grasped the cage of the speaking bird.

One by one the men dropped away from the party, as they came to their various roads, and after a pleasant journey the princess and her brothers arrived safely at their own home.

As soon as the speaking bird was hung up it began to sing, and soon thousands of song birds gathered in the trees about the house and made the air ring with their sweet voices. The princess ordered a huge marble basin placed in the garden, and when she poured a few drops of the yellow water into it, it increased until it filled the basin and rose up into a fountain, and though it constantly played, it never overflowed. Next the princess planted the twig of the singing tree in one of her flower beds, and it soon grew to a large tree, which sang as wonderfully as the tree from which it had been taken.

The news of these wonders spread rapidly through the countryside, and as the gates were thrown open to the public many people came to admire them. One day the sultan of Persia happened to see Prince Balman and Prince Perviz, and, struck with their handsome looks and their pleasant manners, he invited them to the palace.

"Your majesty," said Prince Balman, "we should love to come, but we never like to leave our sister without her permission, but if she is willing we will be delighted to come."

When Prince Balman told his sister of the sultan's invitation, she was greatly disturbed, for she felt that if they visited the sultan he would want them to become members of his court and then she would see very little of them. The princess told her brothers that before she could decide she would ask her talking bird, for he was wonderfully wise and had promised to help her in every difficult matter. Going to the bird, she told him all about the sultan's invitation, and asked his advice.

"Your brothers must visit the sultan," answered the bird. "And tell them to invite the sultan to visit your house in return. Do as I have advised you and you will never regret it."

Next day the princess gave her consent, and the brothers visited the sultan at his palace. A big banquet was given in their honor, and they were treated with the greatest respect by the sultan and his court.

When the princes invited the sultan to visit them, he was so pleased with the invitation that he promised to come the very next day. When the sultan arrived he was much pleased with the beauty of the princess, and as he took her hand in his he said: "If I could have one wish, I could think of no greater happiness than to have a daughter as lovely as yourself and two sons as fine and manly as your handsome brothers."

The talking bird, hanging in his cage near by, had carefully listened to this fine speech, and now, popping his head through the bars of his cage, he cried in a loud voice: "Your wish is a good one, great sultan, for they really are your children."

"What do you mean, bird?" asked the astonished sultan.

The bird then told how the two wicked sisters of the sultan's wife had stolen the children away at their birth and put dead babies in their places. He told how they had been set adrift on the canal by the sisters, and how the good governor of the gardens had found them and brought them up as his own children.

The sultan had his wife's sisters brought before him, and when he told them what the bird had said, they confessed to their wicked deeds. Filled with rage at the wickedness of the wretched women, the sultan had them thrown into prison, where they remained for the rest of their lives. The sultan took his children back to his palace, where they lived happily with their royal father and mother, and you may be quite sure that the speaking bird had always a place of high honor at their court.

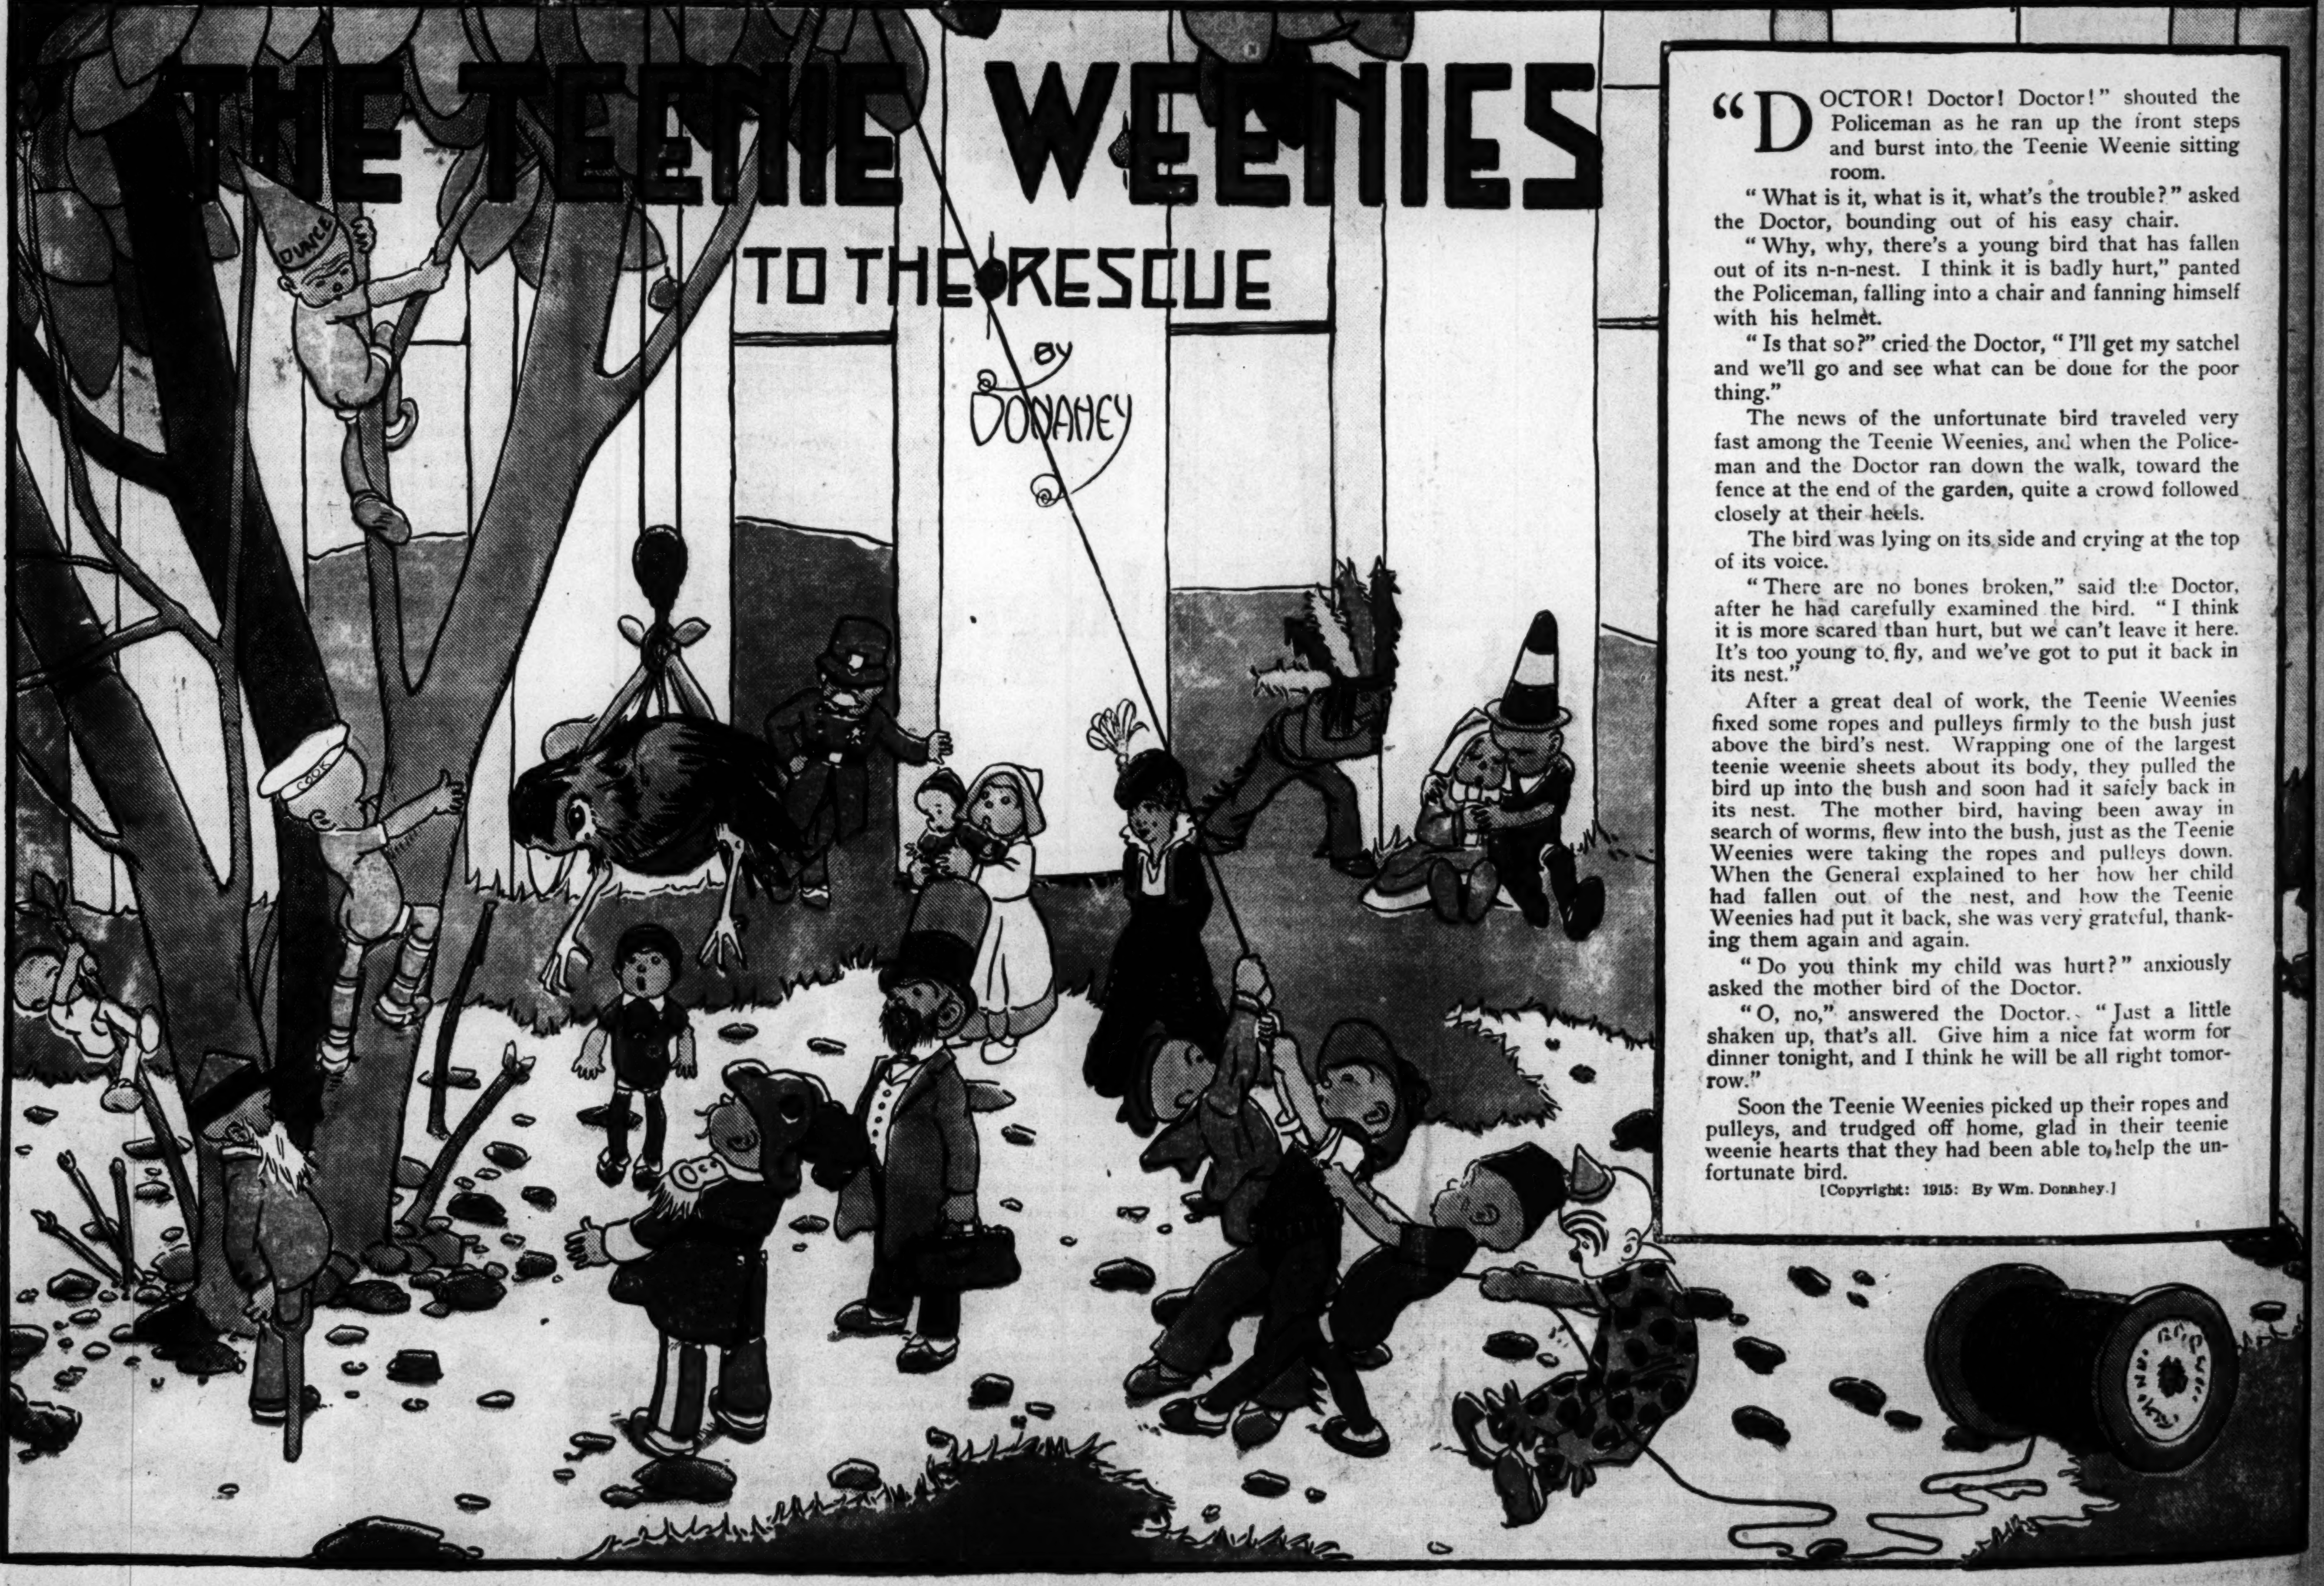
THE TEENIE WEENIES

TO THE RESCUE

BY DONAHEY



"DOCTOR! Doctor! Doctor!" shouted the Policeman as he ran up the front steps and burst into the Teenie Weenie sitting room.

"What is it, what is it, what's the trouble?" asked the Doctor, bounding out of his easy chair.

"Why, why, there's a young bird that has fallen out of its n-n-nest. I think it is badly hurt," panted the Policeman, falling into a chair and fanning himself with his helmet.

"Is that so?" cried the Doctor, "I'll get my satchel and we'll go and see what can be done for the poor thing."

The news of the unfortunate bird traveled very fast among the Teenie Weenies, and when the Policeman and the Doctor ran down the walk, toward the fence at the end of the garden, quite a crowd followed closely at their heels.

The bird was lying on its side and crying at the top of its voice.

"There are no bones broken," said the Doctor, after he had carefully examined the bird. "I think it is more scared than hurt, but we can't leave it here. It's too young to fly, and we've got to put it back in its nest."

After a great deal of work, the Teenie Weenies fixed some ropes and pulleys firmly to the bush just above the bird's nest. Wrapping one of the largest teenie weenie sheets about its body, they pulled the bird up into the bush and soon had it safely back in its nest. The mother bird, having been away in search of worms, flew into the bush, just as the Teenie Weenies were taking the ropes and pulleys down. When the General explained to her how her child had fallen out of the nest, and how the Teenie Weenies had put it back, she was very grateful, thanking them again and again.

"Do you think my child was hurt?" anxiously asked the mother bird of the Doctor.

"O, no," answered the Doctor. "Just a little shaken up, that's all. Give him a nice fat worm for dinner tonight, and I think he will be all right tomorrow."

Soon the Teenie Weenies picked up their ropes and pulleys, and trudged off home, glad in their teenie weenie hearts that they had been able to help the unfortunate bird.

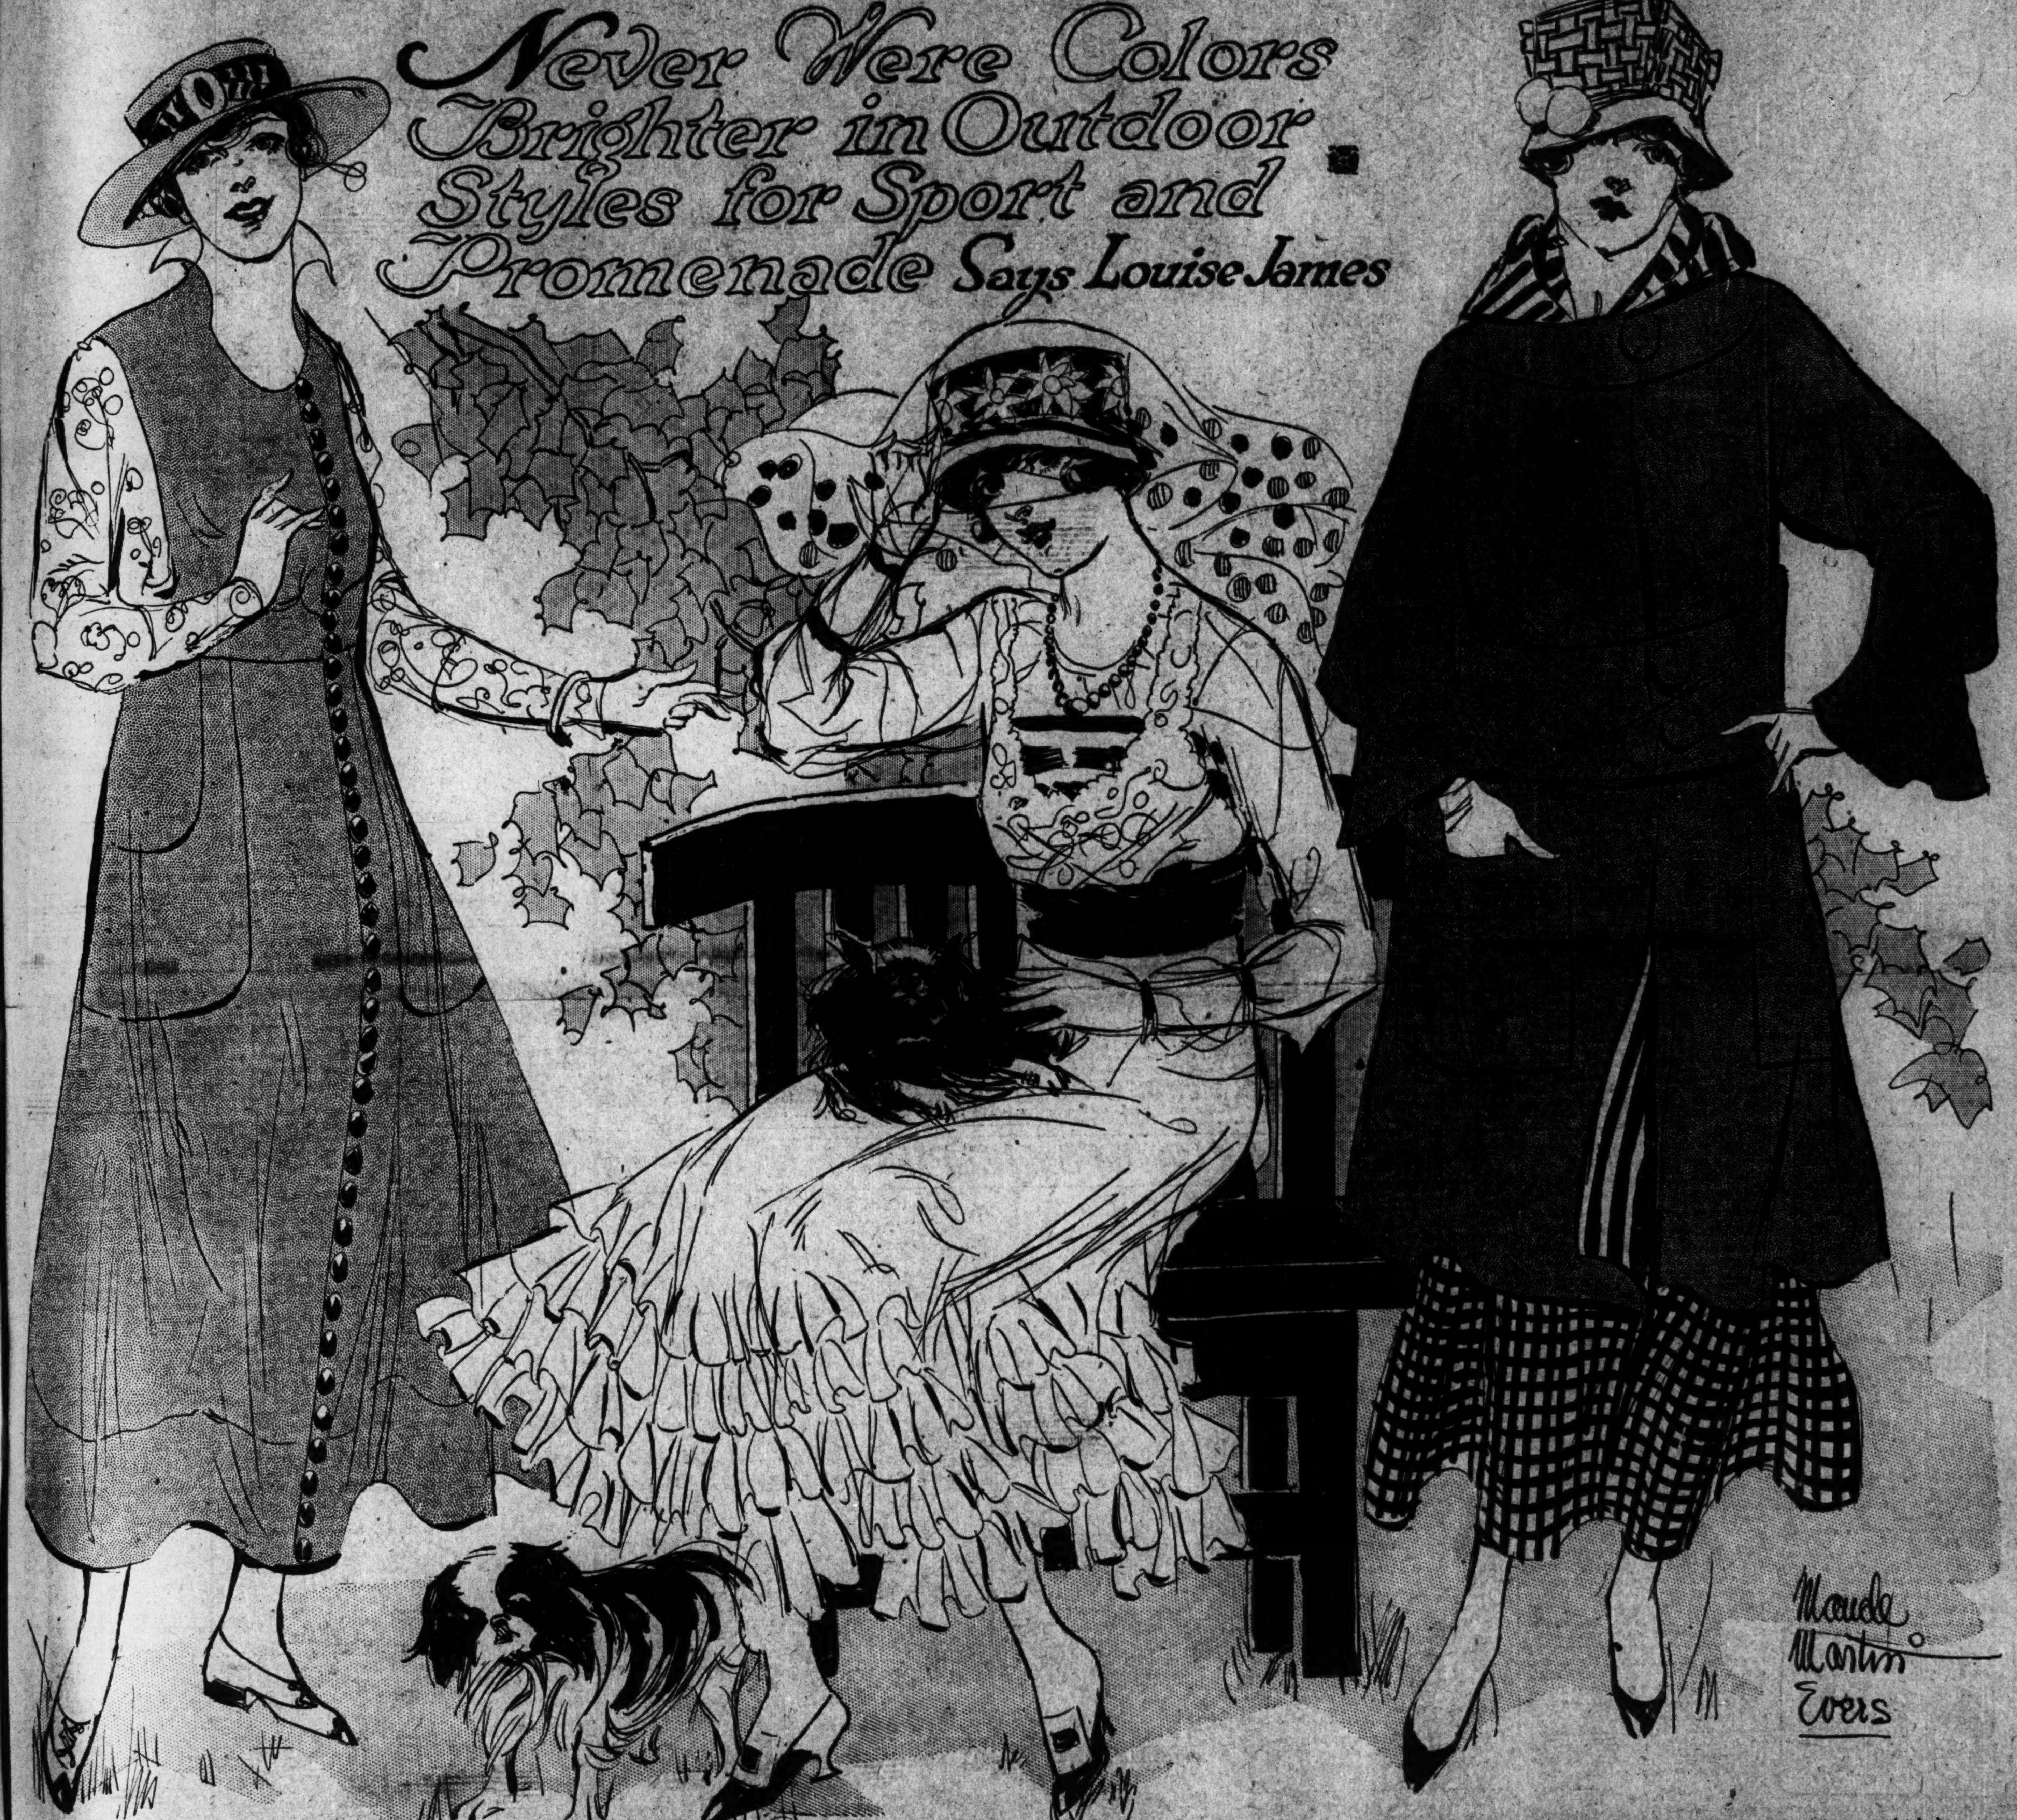
Never Were Colors Brighter in Outdoor Styles for Sport and Promenade Says Louise James



Beach frock in rose pink linen with a blouse of flowered organdy. The hat accompanying this frock also is of rose pink, but in corduroy with black and white striped silk ribbon.

Garden party frock of fine lawn, much beruffled with the now popular straps which join a black band which outlines the waist. A diminutive hat with a fine veil bespeaks the newest in midsummer millinery.

As stunning as it is useful is this steamer or auto coat. It might appropriately be made in cravanette with some such gorgeous lining as striped or plaided silk. In sport coats as well as in evening wraps the hood is one of the latest fashion fads.

This is the time for you to indulge yourself in bright colors if you have always been fond of them and have never been able to wear as many of them as you wished, for it is a veritable color season in outdoor garments of all kinds. The gamut of rainbow brightness has been run. Summer outdoor styles for sport and promenade, for garden party and yachting frolic, are all gay in their vivid coloring. There is a color for every type of woman and a material in that color to suit every purse.

PICTURESQUENESS is one of the notable features of this present fashion season, and it is especially prominent in the frocks, coats, and hats for outdoor wear. And along with this same striking and now generally accepted picturesqueness comes a vividness in coloring which is no less charming. After many months of pastel shades, after many months of the reign of black, we have, in this summer season at hand, a veritable galaxy of delightfully hued materials.

Since exceptions there must always be to every rule, there is one decided exception to this bright color ruling of Dame Fashion. And that is in the case of the traveling suit. If to one's wardrobe for outdoor wear a traveling suit be necessary, that should by all means be in neutral tinted tones. Common sense and good taste unite in making this an indisputable fact. But here the need for somberness of shade ceases. If one is a lover of all that is bright in the clothes line this is the moment to indulge her predilection to the full. There are color effects to suit every taste and every type of person.

There are about six or seven garments that rank particularly among those needed "for the outdoor summer time." There is the auto or the steamer coat for which there are a thousand uses if the wearer thereof is at all fond of outdoor pleasures, such as motoring, yachting, and the like. This is usually of some heavy material. Cravenette wool is excellent. It may be any shade desired, preferably bright, and with it a corduroy cap and skirt go well.

Another coat for sports wear which is considerable of a novelty right now is of flowered cretonne. When this material is wisely chosen it makes a striking garment for wear over white clothes. This might be lined with a good quality sateen or satin, and it is quite as practical as it is attractive. This cretonne also figures for skirts as well, and I have even seen tennis gowns made of it and worn with white lined blouses flaunting huge collars and cuffs of the [illegible] shadowy cretonne.

Then there is the yachting costume, which is an adjustable affair and which may be worn for other occasions as well as strictly for yachting purposes. White gabardine is splendid for these suits. The revers, the hat, and belt might be of some brilliant color to touch it properly with the spirit of the season.

Here I will mention one fact which distinguishes certain town costumes from those designed primarily for sports and country wear, and that is the fact that while the circular skirt is stylish and pretty it is not practical for outdoor athletic clothes. Plaited skirts always look better for these purposes. This season the plaited skirt has box or side plaits, with the plaits decidedly narrow. They are laid in and pressed by purely mechanical means, and their prim precision gives them their coveted style.

Then there is the garden party frock, which is by no means the same as a town gown for an afternoon tea. In the illustration I have had sketched organdy has been used. There is no material more modish than organdy for these garden occasions. There are many other washable materials, however, which are pretty and appropriate for the woman who considers organdy too emphemeral and passing.

Linen for tennis uses is not to be surpassed, and here again the bright shades come to the fore and claim the laurels. Rose pink, bright red, cool greens and lavenders, and rich blues and yellows are all in favor. A white chemisette separate from the outer frock is a sensible cut for a sports frock of any kind, as it gives the arms plenty of room and furthermore allows of different waists to be worn, sometimes plain waists and sometimes frilly ones.

There is nothing so desirable as a beach frock that can be easily laundered. Voile and linen is a good combination for this kind of suit. Fine French linen is much more stylish than the heavy voile kinds, and both linen and voile are being combined with satin and silk for afternoon frocks of an informal nature.

Awning stripes of every kind are having a veritable craze, and so far they have not been so overdone as to render them in any way undesirable. In the new silks of the pongee order they appear to particularly good advantage and in colors that are unusually charming. One of the smartest tennis costumes I have seen for a long time had a white outing skirt of gabardine, worn with a "blazer" waist of washable silk in the awning stripe. It extended below the waist line far enough to be supplied with pockets. Pockets also appeared on the front of the waist, and there were six pockets in all on the whole costume. Rose color and white was the color combination of this outfit but it can vary to suit the individual taste.

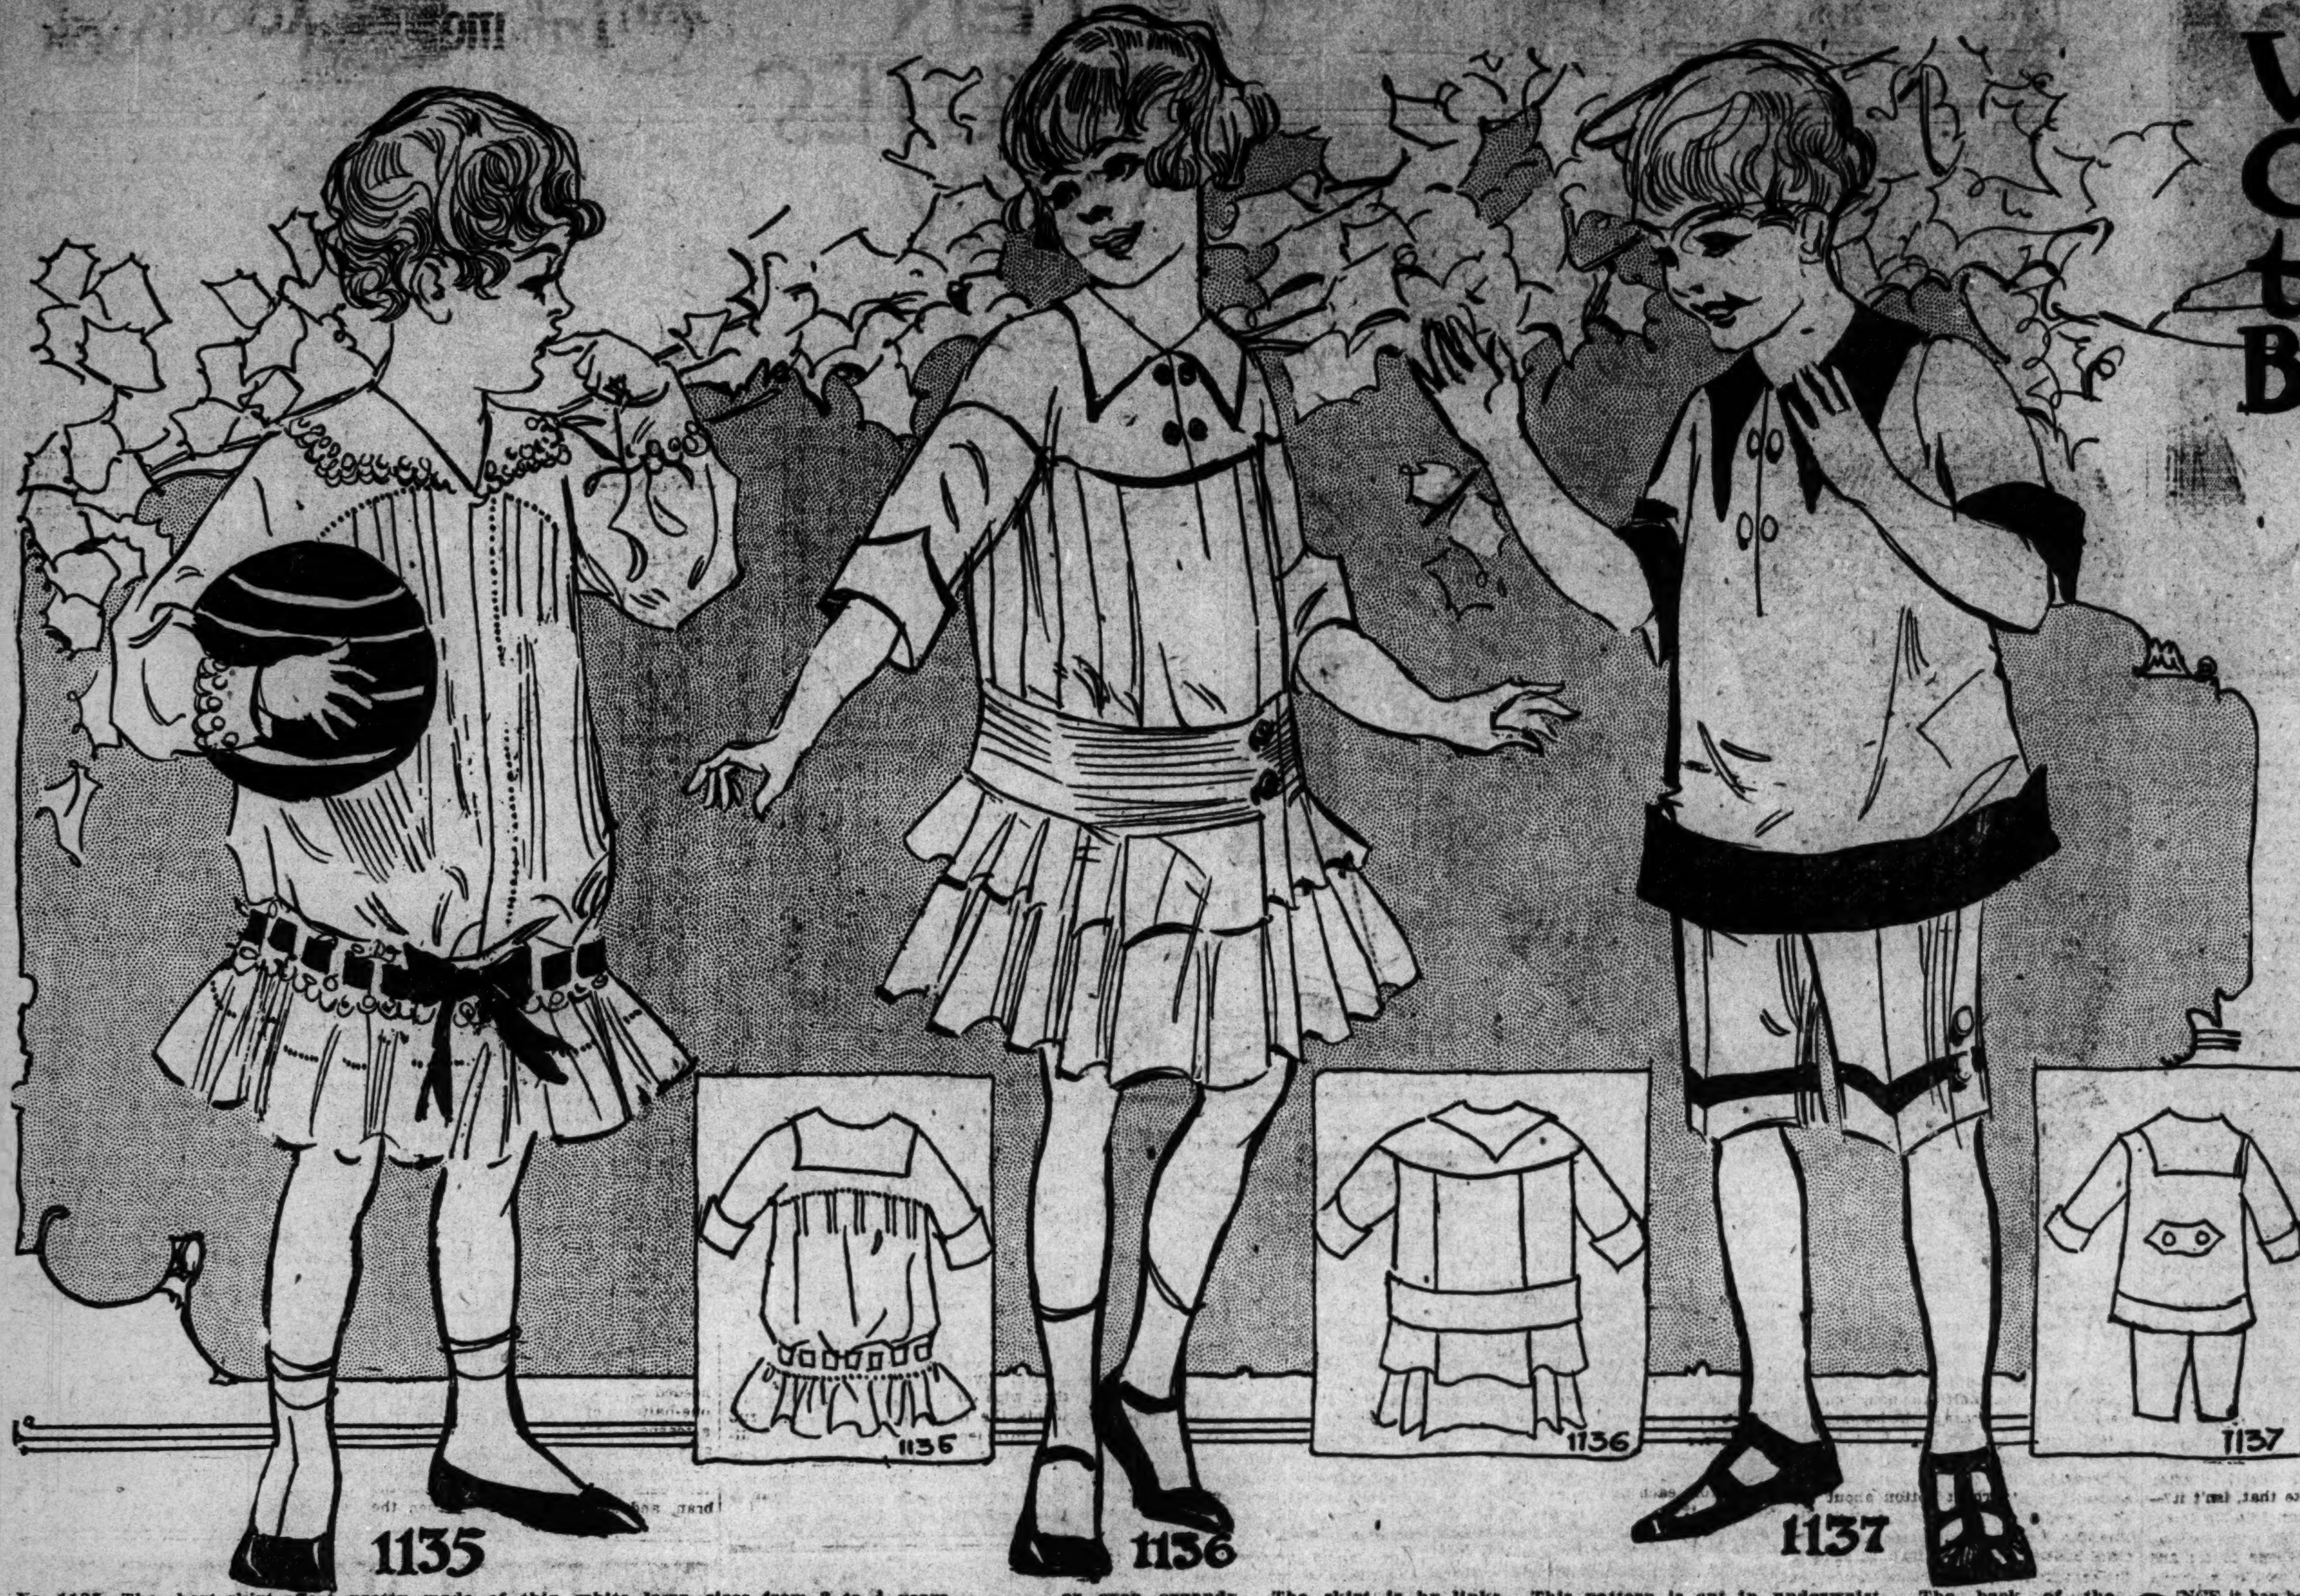
Vacation Clothes for the Small Boy and Girl

Designs by Clotilde • Drawing by Maude Martin Evers



No. 1135—The short skirt effect of this little girl's frock is obtained simply by applying braiding over the gathers. The frock is cut all in one below the yoke. The yoke includes the sleeves, so that there is freedom for the arms. The frock is simple to make and pretty made of thin white lawn and trimmed with embroidery. The belt is made of beading threaded with ribbon. It is also charming made of Dresden lawn, or crepe de chine, or any of the tub silks now fashionable for little folk. The pattern is cut in sizes from 2 to 4 years.

No. 1136—The Norfolk is universally becoming to childhood. This pattern shows it in a novel form, with a belt that fastens at the sides. It is a style that is adaptable to both thin and heavy material—lawn, linen, tub silk, or even organdy. The skirt is straight plaited and joined to an underbodice. The yoke is arranged over the upper part of the sleeve and the lower edge is joined to the plaited part of the blouse. The latter is drawn over the head in middy style and held together by links. This pattern is cut in sizes from 6 to 10 years.

No. 1137—While this suit is perfectly comfortable on account of its looseness it is also exceedingly smart in effect. The straight trousers are made with a waistband that can be buttoned to any underwaist. The back of the blouse has a strap that holds the fullness to the waist line. Linen, galatea, and natural pongee are all suitable for a suit of this sort. Both white and colors are correct. This pattern is cut in sizes from 6 to 10 years.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE and may be obtained through no other service. It is requested that customers allow one week before making complaint for nonreceipt. An extra 1 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and thereby hasten delivery.

SINCE it has become an established fact that children's styles should be individual and harmonize more or less with the personality of the girl or boy involved there has been a corresponding wealth of fashions from which to draw. A broad style range has been put into practice and no mother needs to dress her child unbecomingly.

Clotilde's designs this week for the younger members of the family are sufficiently simple in line and cut to keep well out of the reach of extremes and to prove generally becoming to the child of normal height and weight. They are furthermore eminently suitable for the summer months.

There probably is no season in the year when it is as important that children should be suitably dressed as in the vacation season which is now at hand. The wear that their clothes get is never so hard; the sun never shines so brightly and fades the goods so quickly; the dirt never gathers with such rapid accumulation. Summer clothes are the ones which require considerable thought and foresight by the practical mother.

Every man, woman, and child sooner or later experiences a coincidence. Sometimes the coincidence is tragic, sometimes it is sad, sometimes melodramatic, sometimes glad or funny. Maybe events in your life have coincided to produce one or all of these effects. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for each letter published on "The Most Striking Coincidence of My Life." It may be sad or funny, but it must be a real coincidence. Write on one side of paper only. Address Coincidence Editor, "The Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

BRIGHT SAYINGS of CHILDREN

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The stories may be sent in either by children or their parents. The only condition is the story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

One afternoon I visited some friends who have a small son. Their dog came into the room where we were sitting and started to whine. The little boy, who was seated in the middle of the floor playing with his blocks, came running over to the dog and, patting his head, said in a sympathetic tone of voice, "What's a matter, Bob, don't you want to be no dog?"

Jack is forever using, or rather misusing, the longest words in the dictionary. Saturday he played hard all morning and trotted into the kitchen at noon looking for something to eat. Nothing in sight. So Jack stalked in to mother and said with a lordly flourish: "Hadn't you better be repairing the dinner?" I. C.

Marjorie and her parents had been spending a month at the lake and Marjorie had discovered many interesting things. The day after her return the children of the neighborhood congregated in her front yard and commenced telling her all about the camels, giraffes, and elephants that had come to town with a circus while she was gone.

When she grew tired of hearing them talk she said: "I saw a ground hog while I was gone."

They all looked astonished and little Billy said: "What in the world is a ground hog?"

"Well," said Marjorie, "a ground hog is just like an elephant, only it hasn't got wings." M. C.

Nelson has had a pair of young rabbits and the other day they started to fight each other and made some fur fly. When his father came home Nelson was all excitement to tell about the trouble and wound up by saying: "Dad, you better get a father for those rabbits so they'll know who is boss."

My little niece had been naughty and I told her I could not show her the funny pictures when they came in the paper, but Sunday morning she came into my room with the paper and asked me to tell her about them. I said, "No, you were naughty yesterday and I cannot do it." After a sober five minutes she said: "Sit down dare, Aunt Edda, I'se doin' to show dem to 'oo."

When my twin nephews were 3 years old they were naughty one day and their mamma was obliged to correct them several times, and finally one little twin said to his brother: "Say, Bob, we better mind, cause mamma's got mads all over her face."

Bobbie was 3 years old and when there was company his mother made a bed for him on two easy chairs pushed together and carefully padded to make them the same height. He knew mother had tried hard to make him comfortable, and he wanted to show proper appreciation, so when she asked him how he liked his bed, he replied, "It's very nice, mamma, only it's just a little hilly in the joints."

John ate a lot of candy before dinner, and consequently did not have much appetite when the meal was served. His father remarked on how little he was eating, and said, "What is the trouble son? MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

By MARION HARLAND.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"WILL you kindly help me to secure an invalid's chair for my next door neighbor? He has been an invalid for years, suffering from rheumatism, and cannot straighten any of his limbs. He is as helpless as a baby, and, as he himself says, if he could only get out into the fresh air there is no telling how much good it might do him. No better deed could be done than to secure a chair for this shut-in. L. H. N."

At this time of year the thoughts of all of us turn longingly to out of doors. Happily, most of us are able to gratify our desire to get into the open, and this fact ought to soften our hearts and open our pocketbooks for the benefit of those who are unable to satisfy such a craving. If any one feels inclined to help him by gift or by the suggestion of how to procure the chair he needs, I will be happy to give the address of the correspondent who writes the letter just presented. Unhappily, only initials accompany it, no full name, but the town, street, and number are supplied, and by means of this the writer can be reached.

Shine on Worn Clothes.

"Some time ago there appeared in the Corner a remedy for the shine on worn clothes. I did not have time just then to cut it out, and when I did have time it was gone. Will you kindly insert it in the paper again, as I have need of it? "N. W."

I wish I could help you out by giving you the information you wish, but I am sorry to say I do not recall the paragraph to which you refer. Can any of the Cornerites give it to me? I use alcohol for the purpose sometimes and ammonia, but if there is anything better than these I would be glad to make a note of it.

Candidates for President.

"Has a Catholic ever been nominated for president of the United States? If so, who? If not, why? I. E. J."

I do not think that a Roman Catholic was ever nominated as a candidate for the presidency of the United States, although there is nothing in the constitution to prevent the nomination. As to the reason why this has never been, I suppose the fact that this is nominally a Protestant country has had something to do with the omission.

Thanks All the Givers.

"I wish to thank the dear friends who sent me dresses and ribbons and other things, I just can't tell how glad we were to get them. I wrote a letter to every one who sent an address and I hope that those who did not will accept my thanks and best wishes. E. R."

This is the little girl whose letter was printed some weeks ago. I trust that those to whom she has not been able to write personally will see this and appreciate her gratitude and joy.

Helps Over Rough Places.

"I have sent to you several times for addresses and have met some pleasant people through the Corner and have been able to help them over some bad spots. I am glad to sign myself yours, for giving the cup of water. Mrs. W. J. G."

This note is given as one of many of the same sort I am receiving constantly. The cup of cold water to the thirsty soul might almost be taken as the coat of arms or standard of the Corner, if one may judge of the refreshment it distributes to those who sorely need it.

Would Try Abdominal Support.

"I would much like an abdominal support if some correspondent has one to give away. I have been suffering a great deal lately with abdominal trouble and would like to try if there is any help or comfort in one of these supports. Mrs. J. V."

Can some one grant the desire of this Cornerite? I have her address on file.

HAIR ON FACE NECK AND ARMS WHAT CAUSES IT

Nature does not produce coarse stubborn growths of superfluous hair. They are caused by the unwise use of so-called hair removers.

The only way to gain control of such growths is to devitalize them. It is impossible to accomplish this result with pastes and rub-on preparations because they only remove hair from the surface of the skin. DeMiracle, the original liquid depilatory, devitalizes hair by attacking it under the skin as well as on the skin.

Imitations of DeMiracle are as worthless as pastes and rub-on preparations because they lack certain ingredients that DeMiracle alone contains which give it the power to rob hair of its vitality—its life sustaining force.

Insist on the genuine DeMiracle and you will get the original liquid hair remover. Others are worthless imitations—refuse them.

DeMiracle is sold at all good stores, including the Public Drug Co., and Buck & Rayner's five stores. The truth about the treatment of superfluous hair mailed in plain sealed envelope on request. DeMiracle Chemical Co., Dept C, Park Ave and 129th St., New York.—Advertisement.

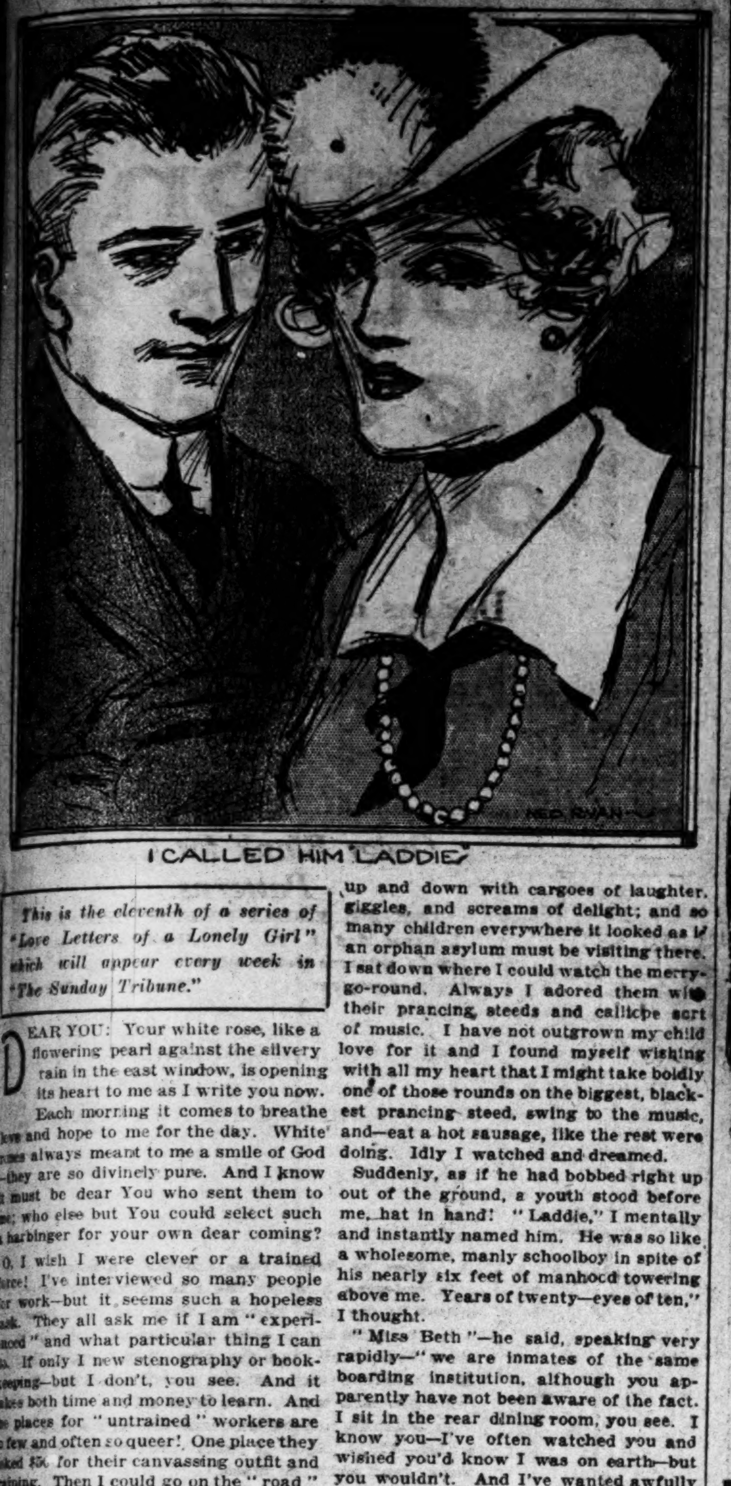
Love Letters of a Lonely Girl.



I CALLED HIM "LADDIE"

This is the eleventh of a series of "Love Letters of a Lonely Girl" which will appear every week in "The Sunday Tribune."

DEAR YOU: Your white rose, like a flowering pearl against the silvery rain in the east window, is opening its heart to me as I write you now.

Each morning it comes to breathe love and hope to me for the day. White roses always meant to me a smile of God—they are so divinely pure. And I know it must be dear You who sent them to me; who else but You could select such a harbinger for your own dear coming?

O, I wish I were clever or a trained force! I've interviewed so many people for work—but it seems such a hopeless task. They all ask me if I am "experienced" and what particular thing I can do. If only I new stenography or bookkeeping—but I don't, you see. And it takes both time and money to learn. And the places for "untrained" workers are so few and often so queer! One place they asked $50 for their canvassing outfit and training. Then I could go on the "road" and out of my commissions pay myself back. It took me one whole evening figuring it out. Even if I could sell things to people I could see that it would be impossible, and cowardly Little Me—on the road, in strange hotels, and coaxing people into buying something—I just can't!

One big fat man was very cross with me for daring to ask a position in his office as telephone operator, "without experience"; he fairly bellowed at me his rage for "wasting time" as I hurried out of the office.

Another man with a big heavy face and keen, incisive sort of eyes put his hand on mine and said: "That little hand was never intended for work."

"But I must have work—I must," I replied.

"Come out to dinner with me tonight and we'll talk it over, kiddie," and he leaned his heavy face close over to mine, with a queer twisty smile on his thick lips and a light in his eyes which seemed to shrivel me.

Stammering out that I would return on the morrow, I fled, glad to escape a nameless fear which swept me.

Heart sick, I went out into the street again. Wearily I took the first car homeward, without looking at its lettered destination. Occupied with my own thoughts, tiredly trying to solve the problem of work, I failed to notice I had been carried beyond my street, until the car turned abruptly, making me aware of an unfamiliar place—and a park. "End of the line," the conductor called—and I got out feeling rather bewildered and foolish at having day-dreamed myself into an unexpected place.

It was evidently an amusement park of some sort; many people were going in, mostly women and children. My spirit of exploration arose and I, too, entered the park. Music and the call of many vendors blended; overhead trams rushed up and down with cargoes of laughter, giggles, and screams of delight; and so many children everywhere it looked as if an orphan asylum must be visiting there. I sat down where I could watch the merry-go-round. Always I adored them with their prancing steeds and callicpe sort of music. I have not outgrown my child love for it and I found myself wishing with all my heart that I might take boldly one of those rounds on the biggest, blackest prancing steed, swing to the music, and—eat a hot sausage, like the rest were doing. Idly I watched and dreamed.

Suddenly, as if he had bobbed right up out of the ground, a youth stood before me, hat in hand! "Laddie," I mentally and instantly named him. He was so like a wholesome, manly schoolboy in spite of his nearly six feet of manhood towering above me. Years of twenty—eyes of ten," I thought.

"Miss Beth"—he said, speaking very rapidly—"we are inmates of the same boarding institution, although you apparently have not been aware of the fact. I sit in the rear dining room, you see. I know you—I've often watched you and wished you'd know I was on earth—but you wouldn't. And I've wanted awfully to know you—can't we forego the regular introduction and all that and just be acquainted anyway—will you? His smile was so full of warmth and delightful boyish appeal!

"We might make-believe we are castaways on an island and then you could with propriety speak with me," I replied.

"Do, please," he cried eagerly. "After all, it is something like that, isn't it?—an island of loneliness in this big town. I've been in Chicago only a few weeks. Came straight from college to try and make good in business, you know—but a fellow gets lonely sometimes in—in—" and he stammered politely.

"The boarding institution," I finished laughing.

So off we started. I was glad he understood that game of make believe. We dipped the dips, looped the loops, skidded the skids, bumped the bumps, and all the other delightful foolishness in such places when there is some one to share it. And we had five rides on the merry-go-round!

And the day's sun went down on our play. Homeward bound he told me all about his college life, his business interests here, what he hoped to achieve, his mother's gifts, his sister's letters, with the open hearted enthusiasm of a noble minded lad determined to build his life on a cornerstone of high ideals. I liked him; his companionship was conforting. I told him that to me he was "Laddie" instantly I saw him.

After dinner we did not go to the movies, for I detest them. We sat out on the steps instead, and watched the moon rise over the roofs and outline a new wonderland in the little park square. And I wished for You, dear, to share with me the restful beauty of the hour and the new, wholesome Laddie friend.

It approaches the noon hour now, and I have an appointment which may bring work. I must run away quick. By-by until tonight, dear You. Hurriedly, your

THE GARDENER AT WORK

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

The Garden Editor will give expert advice on planning gardens, organizing garden clubs, and planting flowers, vegetables, or shrubs. Address The Garden Editor, "The Tribune."

THE PENNY WISE.

A TRAVELER who had crossed the ocean was asked to pay at the gate of Wordsworth's garden. Being of a saving turn of mind the traveler kept the 3 pence in his purse and went away without seing the primrose, celandine, or daisy of the poet's lore. When homeward bound the folly of his economy burst upon him. He had gone to Dove cottage to visit the flowers.

Nickels and dimes spent in keeping up the flowering plants pay interest. With the best care the pansies may be victims of cutworms or well rooted borders of Carpet of Snow (alyssum), or the phlox drummondi that came up bravely die out. Immediately take out the dead plants, dig the soil with a trowel or fork, and plant more seed. Buy pulverized sheep manure to use as a tonic for the plants when well up.

In spaces where color and continual bloom is desired, portulaca, phlox drummondi, verbenas, zinnias, gaillardias, and centaurias give satisfaction. The portulaca and verbenas thrive in sunshine and dry weather. They need no care except weeding. Of course, they blossom more profusely if watered in the dry season and the soil is of good quality. Star phlox is a unique variety. The petals are fringed or toothed. While they have the gayety of the phlox drummondi, the edges are white and the curious irregular fringes make them more interesting. A dime's worth of seed will produce a quantity. The phlox drummondi grandiflora, as might be expected from its name, is showy, with large flowers. The seeds are sold in separate colors. A border of mixed reds, yellows, and whites and the quadricolor rose with shaded petals is worth having. The seeds can be sown at any time in the early sum-

FLOWERS IN THE PARKS.

COLUMBINE time in the parks follows closely upon the fading iris. The coral trumpets of the wild columbine (aquilegia) are repeated in the perennial gardens and new shades of purple, blue, and yellow, with strange dark colors found in the clumps of the cultivated species.

The park visitor haunting the Wooded island of Jackson park, the French garden of Washington park, and the flowery borders of Douglas, Garfield, and Humboldt parks will meet the columbines making a wreath around the city as far as the Shakspeare garden in Lincoln park.

English daisies, myosotis, or forget-me-nots, mertensia or blue bells, many colored pyrethrums, and the tradescantia royal blue or white are in bloom for Decoration day. White water leaf, buttercups, and wild geranium are along the wild flower plantations. By looking closely into the shrubbery one may find the cypripedium, a small yellow lady slipper species doing well in captivity.

CURIOUS—The elephant's ear, Caladium Esculantum, will grow in a large pot on the porch. The leaves measure from two to four feet from stem to tip. Elephant's ear needs a great deal of water. Plant the bulb just below the surface of the soil.

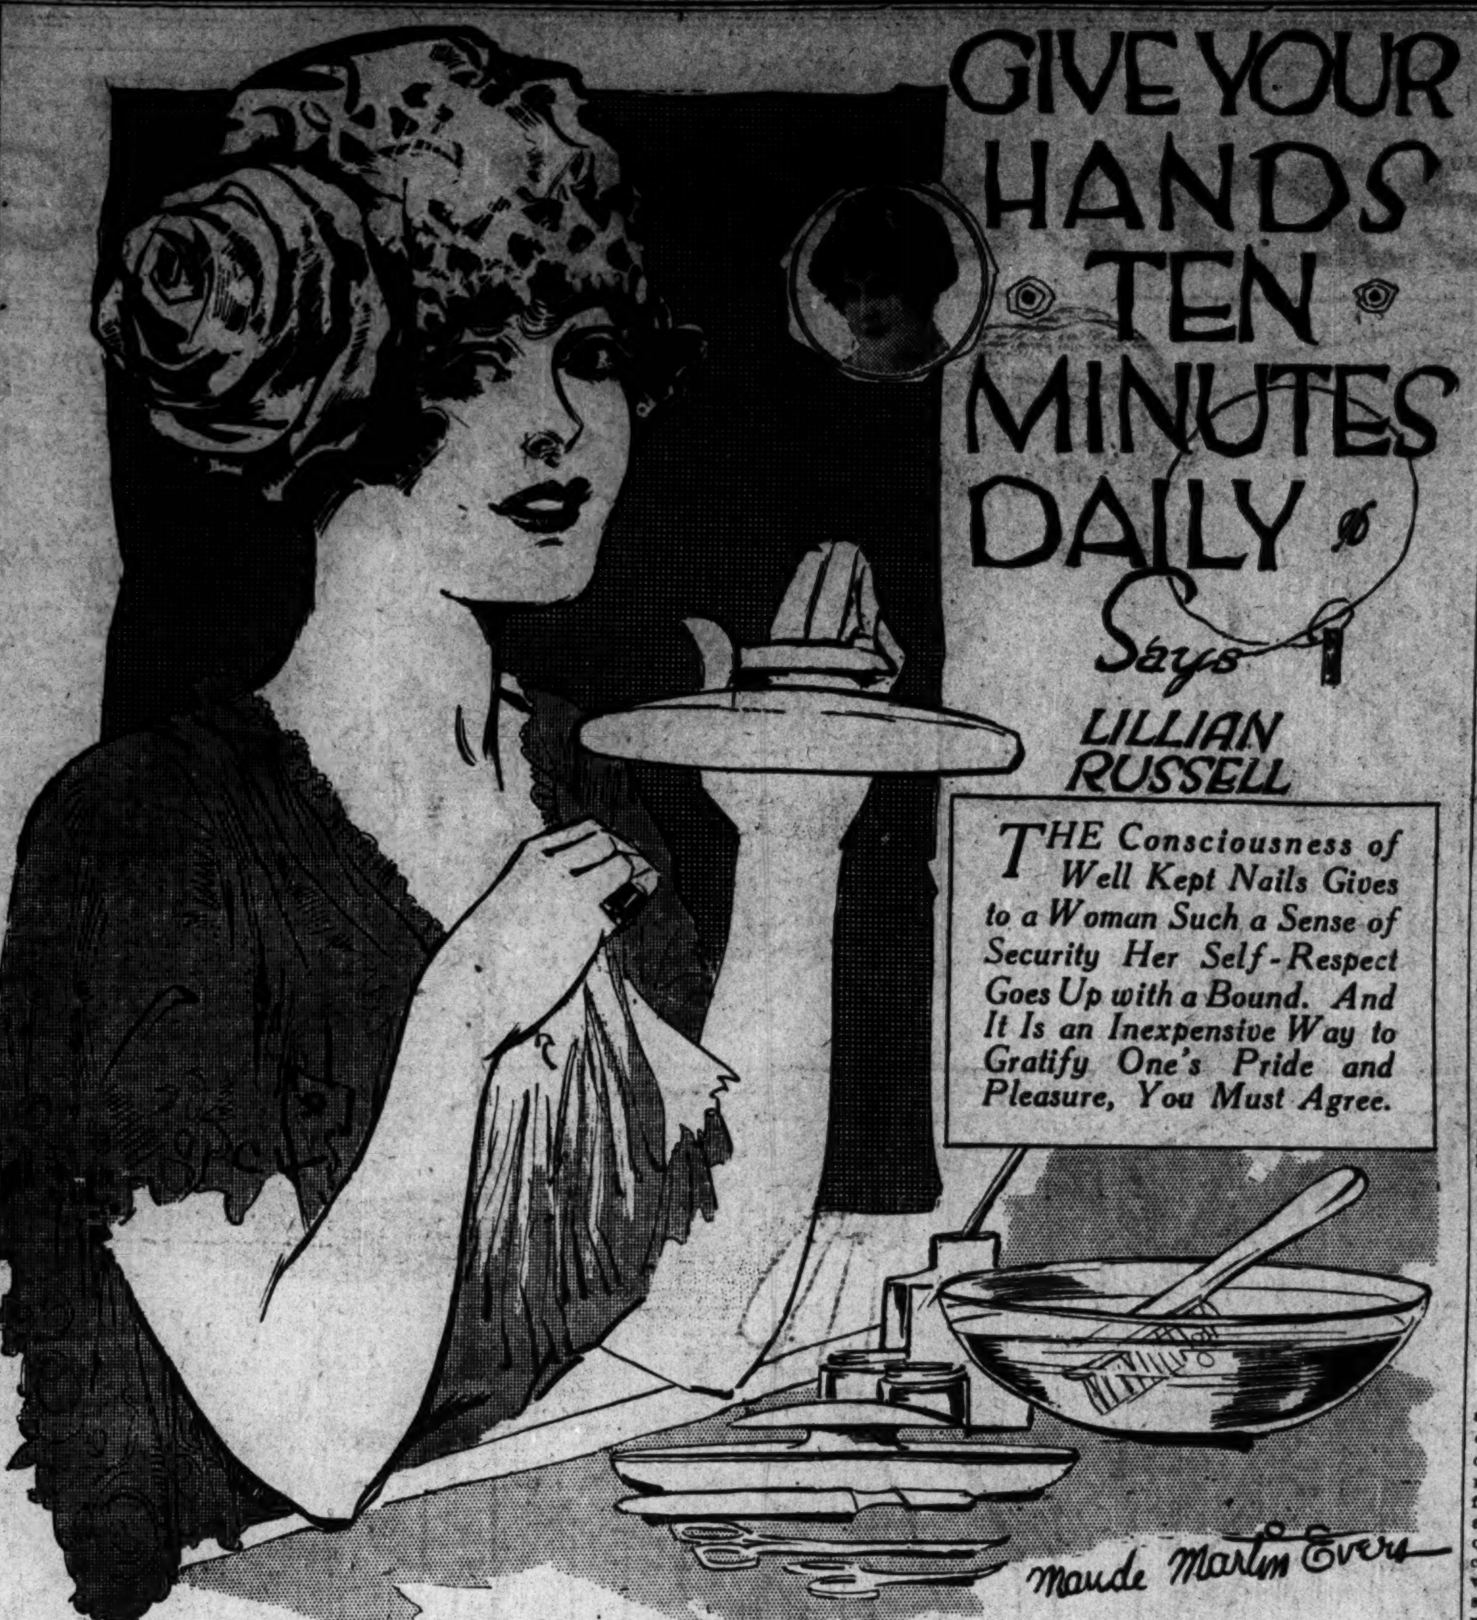
ARTISTIC—Your Tritoma, or rednot poker, will be more effective distributed in several places among the shrubbery. The strange flower is a flaming red and particularly pretty in the late summer.



GIVE YOUR HANDS TEN MINUTES DAILY

Says

LILLIAN RUSSELL

THE Consciousness of Well Kept Nails Gives to a Woman Such a Sense of Security Her Self-Respect Goes Up with a Bound. And It Is an Inexpensive Way to Gratify One's Pride and Pleasure, You Must Agree.

[Copyright: 1915: By Lillian Russell.]

MANICURING means "care of the hands," not of nails alone, as is popularly understood. Any woman can care for her own nails if she has ten minutes daily to spare upon them and half an hour once a week. For daily care of the hands I use a tablespoon of green soap diluted with two tablespoons of water and ten drops of peroxide of hydrogen. I wrap a small amount of absorbent cotton about the sharp end of an orangewood stick, dip this into the solution of green soap, and clean under the nails, gently pushing back the skin from them, but being careful not to push the inner skin away from the nail or in any way to bruise the nail itself. Never use a metal substance to clean the nails; it not only thickens them, but it corrugates the under side and makes them more susceptible to stain. Every day a little polish, either with a buffer or with the palm of the hand, does the rest.

Once a week without fail you should give your nails a good manicuring. The articles needed for this weekly manicure are a good, slender file; two pairs of scissors, both curved, but one much finer than the other; emery boards; orangewood sticks; a cuticle knife and cleaner combined in one; a chamois buffer; a small bottle of peroxide; a small bottle of green soap diluted with water and a few drops of peroxide, and a small package of absorbent cotton.

First file the nails, bearing in mind that the almond shape is to be preferred, but at the same time follow as nearly as possible the outline of the tips of the fingers. After the nails have been thoroughly filed and shaped, place the tips of the fingers in a bowl of warm sudsy water. (Use a tablespoon of green soap to a bowl of water and add a few drops of perfume.) Let the hands soak in the water about seven minutes. Remove, and with an orange stick, which has wrapped around the sharp end a small piece of absorbent cotton that has been dipped in the green soap solution, gently push the cuticle down from each nail so as to show the crescent, the much to be desired beauty spot, on each nail. You may not be able to do this at first, as the greatest care must be used in pushing down the cuticle, for if jagged, broken, or torn, hangnails will be the result. If there are already torn spots in the cuticle surrounding the nail, cut them off as closely as possible with the thin scissors and touch the spot with a drop of peroxide of hydrogen, being careful not to make the fingers bleed nor to bruise them so that they will feel sore. Now take the emery board and trim off from each nail the rough edges left by the file. If the nail still looks rough, use a bit of pumice stone to smooth it.

Next touch the surface of each nail with nail rouge, using as little as possible; the rouge is used not so much to give color as to act as a body to hold the polishing powder. Apply a touch of polishing powder to each nail, also put a liberal supply of the powder on the chamois buffer. Rub each nail briskly up and down and across at least 100 times. Care must be taken not to treat the nail roughly, for if you bruise it in any way the white spots will form. After all the nails have been polished carefully, dip the fingers in warm, soapy water and scrub vigorously with a stiff nail brush. Wipe dry. Put a small quantity of the polishing powder in the palm of your hand and rub the nails at least fifty times with it; this gives the celebrated hard polish of which the French women are so fond. The hand is again dipped in the warm water and every particle of the rouge and powder scrubbed from the finger nails and cuticle. The nails are lastly rubbed briskly across the palms of the hands and the manicuring is finished.

The whole process should not take longer than twenty minutes. A complete manicuring should be given once a week and the nails given a light polishing, about five minutes, before retiring each night.

Plumpness, shapeliness, and flexibility of the hands can be greatly increased by massaging with a little pure olive oil. The movements are downward toward the finger tips, with immediate light strokes, gentle pulls, and pinches across the back of the hand, with a few delicate upward strokes toward the finish. The palm should also be massaged toward the fingers in the same manner.

Even the best kept hands sometimes feel rough and coarse. Olive oil or coconut butter rubbed in twice a day will generally restore them, but in cases of persistent hardening the following formula is recommended, to be used twice a day for a week and then once a day until relieved: Two drams of tincture of benzoin, three ounces of alcohol, five ounces of water.

Chapped hands are caused by the dirt working into the skin and setting up an irritation. The simplest, cheapest solution is cornmeal. Mix it with a little fine castile soap and warm water. After a thorough washing in this solution, rub in a little olive oil, vaseline, or lanolin, and then wipe off. If after six nightly treatments the hands are still chapped, rub in a little lemon juice lastly. After ordinary washing in warm water, any time of the day, cold water should be applied, for this hardens the hands and enables them to better cope with cold air.

Keeps Baby's Pictures.

Have you ever made a pictorial baby record—the little one's first year or two told in pictures taken at various times and places? We have a camera and with its assistance have compiled such a book for our girlie, and I am sure it will be wonderfully interesting to her in later years. It opens with a snapshot of the hospital where the little lady was born, followed by pictures of the pretty nurses, the doctor, the chapel where she was christened, the home to which we brought her, and so on through the little happenings of babyhood. The pictures show her appearance at the end of each month, the place where she first went visiting, her first party, a trip to the seashore, etc. Such a book could be kept up, of course, through all the years of childhood, but my experience has been that as soon as mother and father have gotten deeply interested in one book it is time to begin at the beginning with another.

Pinning on Diapers.

Im going to tell you a good way to diaper a baby. Take the square diaper and double it so that it is long and narrow. Put one narrow edge under the baby's back and bring the other up through the legs and pin the corners at each side of the waist. Then draw the back and front edge around above the knee and pin and you will have what looks like a pair of drawers. The cloth does not hardly touch the baby and it will not get chafed nearly so quickly as by the old way. A good remedy to prevent the baby from getting sore is to use sweet oil instead of powder.

To Prevent Falls.

In many homes the floors are of highly polished hardwood and one must walk carefully not to get a fall. If there is a baby where there are such slippery floors—particularly a baby just learning to toddle and romp—be sure to scrape with sandpaper the soles of his shoes, not only when they are brand new, but often enough afterward to prevent the leather from getting smoth. Indeed this is a wise precaution to take with all baby shoes, no matter on what kind of surface the little one walks. It will make him surer on his feet.

Taught to Be Orderly.

When my little boy was 3 years old and we decided to give him a room by himself we thought that it was time to begin to teach him to be orderly.

We secured a large dry goods box, put two shelves inside, and covered the outside with a bright cretonne, which had animals on it. The baby took great pleasure in helping me place all the blocks, games, and books on one shelf and on the lower one the mechanical toys, etc.

At first putting the toys in their proper places, when he had finished playing with them was introduced as a game. I told him that the train wanted to rest in this corner, etc. After a while the habit was formed and he put them away as a matter of course.

We also put two hooks where he could reach them and taught him to hang his play coat and hat on them.

This was the beginning of some habits that we hope will help him in later life.

Sewing on Buttons.

In sewing on buttons, especially on children's wash clothes, begin on the right side, sew back and forth, then sew the button as usual. The knot of the thread then comes under the button and is not easily rubbed off. The buttons are then sewed on for keeps. On thin goods I put a strip of the goods or tape on the wrong side of the garment, to prevent tearing out.

Folks Remark Her Changed Looks.

When I was a girl of 18 I noticed that I was getting a double chin and some dark superfluous hairs on my upper lip, above a mouth that had very drooping corners. At first I did not know what to do, but to leave matters as they were. Then I lifted my head higher and practiced holding my head different ways, until now the double chin is seldom noticed. I applied peroxide to the obnoxious hairs and now they cannot be noticed unless under a strong light. Then I started to say "please papa, prunes, and prisms" about fifty times a day, and I never let the corners of my mouth droop any more. My whole appearance changed with this. In fact, so much that folks remark upon it. And I feel much happier.

IF you were born on May 30 or May 31 you are inclined to be conceited and fond of flattery. You love wealth and what money will buy for you, especially in the way of social position. You dress well, and you like pretty surroundings. There is no use trying to persuade you to do anything by scolding you. You'll do almost anything if you're flattered a little, but criticism will only antagonize you.

You are fond of your family, but you're liable to be shallow in your affections outside your home circle. You keep your own counsel. Try to look at flattery for what it is worth if you wish to make the most of yourself.

If you were born on the 1st or 2d of June you are musical, inventive, original, and poetic to a marked degree. You are faithful, hopeful, and intuitive. You are independent, but you are fond of home and family, to which you will sacrifice your own comfort and wishes, if necessary. You are inclined to take disappointment too much to heart. At times your anger is bitter and cruel, but you are generally cheerful. You have periods of the deepest depression, but you never tell any one how unhappy you are. Your literary ability is above the average, and you could make something of yourself in that line or in music if you wished to.

If you were born on June 3, 4, or 5 you are inclined to be venturesome to the verge of recklessness at times, but you are easily discouraged. New undertakings look bright to you, but do not always end to your satisfaction. You may become melancholy under defeat and disappointment. You will have to guard against that. You are businesslike and you want to turn your talents and accomplishments into money. You are loyal to your friends, although you don't make friends so quickly as some others born under this sign.

You are a great believer in your intuitions. Often you will change your opinions suddenly, for no other reason than just because you feel like changing them. Intuitions are valuable, but you mustn't trust them too implicitly.

It's Her Serve.

"My Dear Miss Blake: Do you think it would be proper, with my parents' consent, to ask a boy to play tennis with me, as we have a court?

It will be perfectly proper for you to invite a boy to play tennis with you on your court.

They Stare at Her.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 15 years old. Whenever I go out everybody looks at me. Can you tell me the reason?

"FIFTEEN."

I am sure that you only imagine that everybody looks at you. People are too busy to turn around and stare at girls. Get over being so self-conscious and you'll not think folks are looking at you.

The Tribune Cook Book

by JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

BRAN bread is far from being the universal corrective it is at present taken to be. There are other eatables which will do the same sort of correcting and in not so rough a manner. Bran is a corrective agent almost pure and simple, and not a food for although it contains some nutriment this is hard to extract, and the digestive co-efficient is low.

The coarser flours, like graham and whole wheat, and consequently the artificial mixtures with bran, do stimulate peristalsis, we are told, and we can learn this without being told, but this particular stimulation while good for some people is bad for others. Bran, in other words, is "roughage" with a vengeance.

For nearly or quite a century graham bread was the health bread, only superseded by bran bread when millers tampered with graham flours. Graham bread made with molasses is as good a health bread as one needs. Five per cent of bran, instead of 50 per cent, is enough to do the correcting required, with the help of the laxative molasses. True graham contains everything there is in a kernel of wheat, in which the percentage of bran is 5 per cent, but even so, 10 per cent less of graham bread can be affected by the digestion than can be affected by a bread made of white flour—that is, of its total nutriment the digestion can only get out 85 per cent. Following this reasoning, a bread that is half bran would yield to the digestion far less nutriment than a graham bread.

One who would like to realize just how much of either body nutriment or stomach stay there is in bran should eat nothing but bran mush for breakfast. He will almost surely be hungry within an hour after, even although he has eaten his mush with sugar and cream.

As to bran mush, there are people who find that it is a better corrective than bran bread, the sanitaria use bran, plain or mixed with other cereals, for mush. Plain bran mush has much the same nice flavor that the whole wheat kernel has when cooked, and this can be said of few of the bran breads made.

Every week nearly there come to me requests for a yeast bran bread recipe. I do not believe in these breads, and so sincerely that I refused to have one of them named for me, although it was disagreeable to do so. I do not believe that the puffy bran breads the bakers sell are worth much as health promoters and that these should not be eaten by people of sensitive or sore digestive organs.

Of another thing I am rather positive. It is that a cook who cannot make a fine yeast bread of white flour cannot be expected to be able to make a worth while yeast bran bread, and it is next to useless to try. She does not understand how to modify, watch, and work it.

As to the muffins, any of the package recipes tried have been good. Below are the slight modifications of two of them.

The barn animals must be having a good giggle, if they are not actually dismayed, at the way man is trespassing on their food supplies. It is not only the milling product bran, long considered exclusively theirs for mashes and mixing with corn, but the sour milk of the pigs and chickens, the cottonseed meal, and other materials that are now being used by man. Fewer cattle are being grown, they tell us, because man needs the corn they consume for his own food.

Light Bran Muffins.

Cream together a half cup of sugar and a scant tablespoon of butter and add to it one egg yolk well beaten, a half teaspoon or a little more of salt, one cup of sour milk to which has been added three-fourths of a teaspoon of soda dissolved in a fourth of a cup of water. Stir together quickly and thoroughly and then add one cup of bran and one cup of well sifted white flour. This is enough to make twelve small muffins. The batter should be almost as thin as that for griddle cakes, but not quite. It may seem too thin, but even if the muffins spread over the top of the pan after they rise it will do no harm. These are almost bran cup cakes.

Dark Bran Muffins.

One-half cup of wheat bran, or more if needed up to a cup, one-half cup of flour, one-half cup of sweet milk, one-fourth of a teaspoon of salt, one egg, three tablespoons of molasses, one teaspoon of baking powder, one tablespoon of melted butter. Mix the dry ingredients except the bran, and [illegible] add the bran, then the beaten egg and other wet ingredients. Add the butter last. Bake for thirty minutes in small muffin or gem pans. This can be baked in a small loaf and makes a good bread.

Bran Bread Without Yeast.

The following formula in the hands of an experienced bread maker yields excellent results and a health bread which may be cut in slices not more than one-quarter of an inch for tea sandwiches. One pint of bran, one pint of white flour, three tablespoons or half a cup of molasses, according to taste, one teaspoon of soda, one cup of sweet milk, or some prefer to use buttermilk, a level teaspoon of salt. Mix thoroughly, pat into a pan with a wet spoon, and bake from one hour to one hour and a quarter.

Bran Drop Cookies.

Us one whole eggand half a cup of sugar withh a half cup of bran or a little more, but have the batter thin enough to drop from spoon. Bake on greased paper on tin and do not remove until cool. These look like cookies, while the same thing with white of egg does not.

ETIQUETTE
by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

A POINT of etiquette not too scrupulously regarded by many otherwise punctilious people is the matter and manner of answering invitations. Promptness is the first requisite. Don't let the sun set on an unanswered invitation. If, for any reason, you cannot give a definite answer then telephone or write your wouldbe hostess telling her so and asking her if it would inconvenience her if your response was delayed. You should, however, promise an answer in the near future, naming, if possible, a definite date. In form make your answer conform to that of the invitation. If the latter comes by telephone answer it by telephone. If it be by telegraph, telegraph your reply. If it is in the shape of a formal note, one written in the third person, respond in the same manner. If the note be informal so should your reply be. But, above all else, respond promptly.

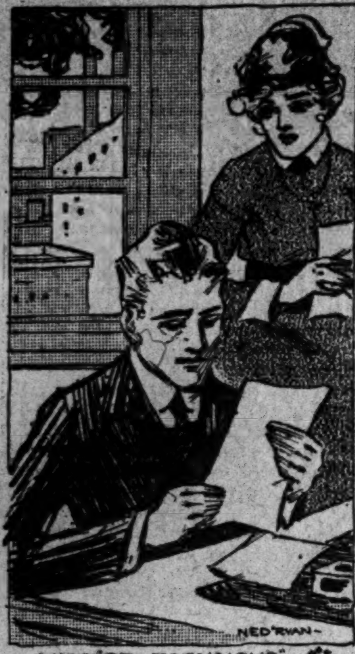
Suggestions from Subordinate.

A BUSINESS girl who signs herself "Self Conscious" has asked me if I think her employer would resent her making suggestions in regard to various new systems in his office which she knows will be a help to him. Her new employer is contemplating making changes in the work and adopting a system which he hopes will mean a saving in money to him.



MISS "SELFCONCIOUS"

Miss "Self Conscious" has seen the same system worked out where she had previously been employed and knows just how the new system should be installed to get the best results right away. She has seen where her former employer made mistakes and what a difference it made when he corrected them and had things running smoothly.

Ever since she heard of her employer's plan she has wanted to tell him of the other man's experiments and success to save him from making the same mistakes, but when she has an opportunity to speak to him her courage leaves her. She is afraid to risk being shown that it is not the place of a subordinate to make suggestions to an employer, especially one who has not been long with the firm.

I think this girl is foolish to feel the way she does about giving her employer the benefit of another man's experience. Far from thinking her officious, he should be grateful for her knowledge and appreciate her interest in his affairs. A man would be foolish to resent suggestions or ideas from his employés just because they are employés, and, therefore, subordinates. He would lose the benefit of some sound and practical advice.

I know of a man at the head of a firm who makes his new employés overcome any self-consciousness or diffidence they feel when speaking to him, because when he contemplates making changes in the office or in a system he wants the opinion of every one in the office and wants it given freely and without embarrassment. He says that he can never be accused of doing things without getting many opinions on them. Sometimes the ideas presented to him are not worth a great deal but often he gets real helpful suggestions which either bear out his own ideas or make him see where his could be improved.

The people who are doing the work that is to be changed surely should have some ideas about it and they ought to be good ones.

Miss "Self Conscious" is not even giving her own ideas about the new system her employer is contemplating installing so there is even less reason for her hesitating telling what she knows about it. She can hardly be accused of being officious for giving her employer information that will be helpful and save him perhaps time and money.

However, I do think an employer has a right to resent receiving suggestions which demonstrate a lack of judgment and thought on the part of an employé. People who make these suggestions just simply to be doing something to bring them to their employer's notice and not to be of any real help to him do not deserve any sympathy if they are snubbed.

Love Letters

With Mother's Blessing.

My Darling Boy: We buried poor mother today. Although we knew death was about to claim her we were not prepared for the final summons. But when I think of the suffering she had to endure I cannot bring myself to deep longing for her return. She has lived her life, rich in years, good actions, unselfishness, and went to a restful reward. She not only believed, she knew, there was life beyond and eternal rest and happiness.

I guess it is worth the pangs of death to have that sure belief.

I had a long talk with dear mother recently. I told her of my love for you and of my engagement. She seemed so happy. I said, "I have no secrets from you, dear mother, that concern my happiness and this does."

I then told her all—that you were everything one could look for in a good, pure, high minded boy. I did not blush to tell her I loved you for your many good and unselfish qualities and that you loved me.

She said that was all there was to say. When one possesses all traits noticed in those who make home what it should be, as you do, one need have no fear for a mother's blessing.

Her talk made me as an innocent child again at her knee. God bless you, dear boy, I love you better than any one on earth and know that you, too, feel it true.

I cannot write more, but will tell you all when I see you. I feel so alone tonight—how I wish you were with me! Good night, dear boy. God bless and keep you always. Your own, ——."

From J. B. G., Chicago.

He Must Have Her Anyway.

Dear Little Dear: How that thing men call fate must revel now in this, her last playful prank. She has downed me after all. Lil' pal o' mine, the grave doctors round my couch have shaken their learned heads and said that I'm hopelessly paralyzed! Paralyzed!

I would not write—so much easier would it be to hold you close to my heart, feel you sob and tremble, kiss the tears—tears for me—as I told you all, all about it. It's best to write. You will sorrow for me, even pity, maybe—and that I could not bear—pity in your eyes.

Star eyes that God made to shine and laugh always. When you come to me, for you will, have them laughing and shining love, for me. God! I need you. But you—what of you, whom love gave to me, taught me the exquisite sweetness and charm of you, the cleverness and rare wit of you, that has made our companionship so perfect. What of you?

World people will judge me selfish to have you say, but they know not the heart of you. Youth is yours, and rose strewn paths lie before you and I, a wounded fellow traveler, ask you to stay here in the quiet and shade of the roadside—is it all selfish?

God would not have given me the love of you had He not meant me to cherish it—always. So, stay with me, little dear. We'll live our lives so that we may write thoughts that will lift and cheer and courage those on the road that pass by our little home of love.

In the faith, your EDITOR MAN.

Does Woman Ever Propose?

Did you ever know a woman who proposed? "The Sunday Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. Your name will not be published. Address, Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

He Didn't Say a Word.

I never proposed to a woman in my life and I never had a woman propose to me, but I was engaged once for a short time. This is how it happened: I called on a young widow one evening whom I had known for several years, and while we were talking about some of our married friends she looked at me and said earnestly: "John, why don't you get married?" I was a little embarrassed and said carelessly: "O, I can't find any one to have me." She said, kindly and sympathetically: "Why, John, I'll have you." Then she got up, came over and sat down on my lap, put her arms around my neck, and kissed me. She repeated in a sorry for you tone: "Why, yes; I'll marry you, John." I didn't say a word.

The Home Harmonious

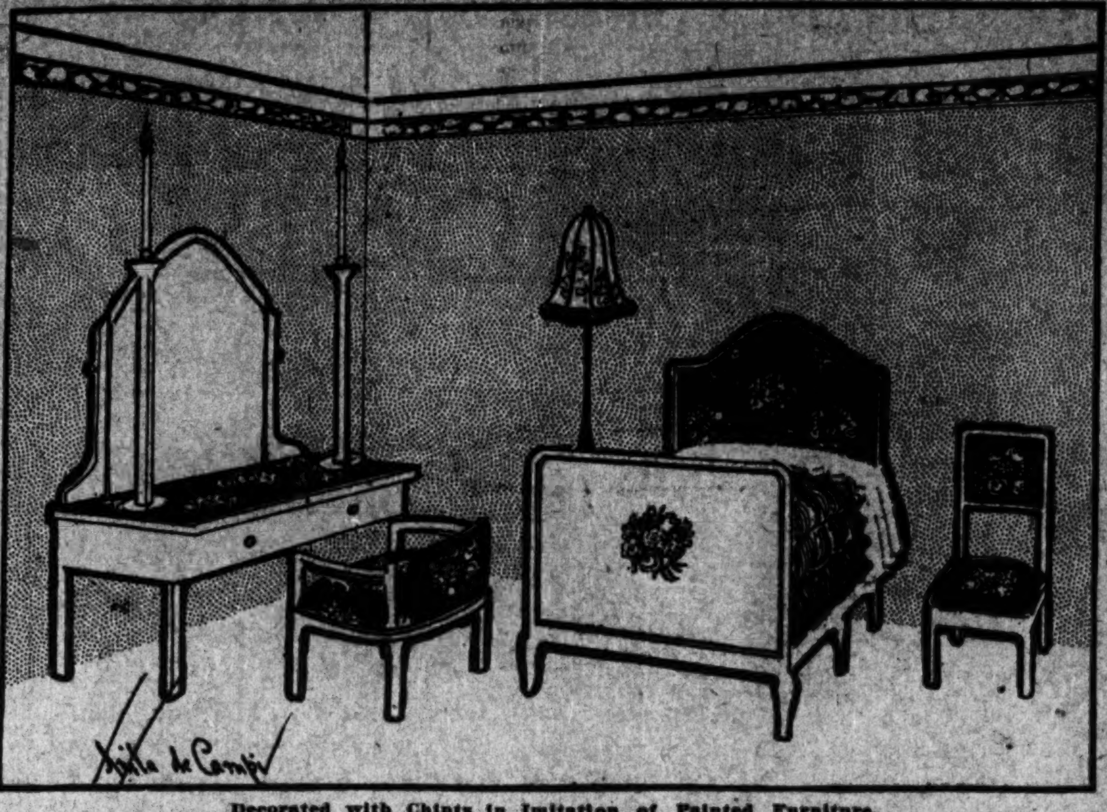
Anita de Campi



Decorated with Chints in Imitation of Painted Furniture.

THE amateur decorator is having a beautiful time just now experimenting on the decorating of home furniture in a mode cleverly simulating hand painted decoration. I am going to tell you about a bedroom set of furniture lately sold from one of the best decorative studios at a cost of $850 for eleven pieces, and then tell you how you can produce the same decorative effect shown in it at a fraction of that price and without requiring a knowledge of painting.

Some new printed linen had been brought into the studio, and one of the artists waxed so enthusiastic about it that he resolved to "do" a whole bedroom set in keeping with it. The furniture selected to pay tribute to the newly designed linen was unfinished hardwood and so square bodied that plenty of flat surfaces presented themselves for decorative possibilities.

The first move was to upholster the seats of the two wooden chairs with the linen. The linen was in unique design; the ground in wide stripes of dull tan and yellowish tan, had on it a futurist looking pattern of fruit done in distinct motifs. Well, the next move was to copy these motifs of fruit (bunches of fruit you might call them instead of bunches of flowers) on the square topped surfaces, on the sides of the furniture, and on the head and foot board of the bed.

The furniture, consisting of a dresser, a chiffonier, a chest of drawers, twin beds, twin bedside stands, a reading or writing table, and a dressing table, was painted and enameled a creamy white, then an inch wide band of yellowish tan outlined the edges of all, and inside of the yellowish band was a hair line stripe of pale mauve with the fruit decorations added.

Now, the yellowish band on the outside is not difficult to accomplish. You just measure it with a ruler and draw it with a lead pencil and paint it with ordinary oil paint. And this is the way to add the bunches of fruit to complete the decoration: Cut them out of the linen, lay each bunch in the center of each piece to be decorated, or towards the ends, then lay a piece of ordinary window glass that any glazier will cut to fit for you across the top of each article of furniture over the cutouts. The white enamel shows around the motif, which, being unexposed to wear, cannot crumple or ravel, and there you have a wonderfully effective decoration and one that is perfectly durable and hygienic. Furthermore, it has the advantage that it can be changed at will with no trouble at all. If you tire of fruit designs, whisk them out, and replace them with baskets of flowers.

A pretty conceit is to have the adjustable glass bound with any of the upholstery braids, that are so easily glued into place. A simpler plan is to bind the glass with narrow paper passe-partout.

Two ways may be resorted to for the finish of the bed heads. One is to follow

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

the direction for the furniture tops; that is, to cover the cutout designs with fitted glass set in under a tiny beading, and the other is, as shown in the accompanying sketch, to stretch the goods straight across the space to be decorated, paste it securely, just as you would paste wallpaper, and edge it with a narrow cording.

In a room where the papering is done in fabric paper, or flat neutral tones, this style of furniture is charming. The linen may be repeated in the curtains and the trimming of the bedspreads. If the decorating of the bed itself seems difficult of accomplishment, then the apt needlewoman may carry out the scheme by applying the cutout motifs on to the border of a heavy cream linen bedspread and bolster cover, with delightful effect.

Practically unlimited this year are the possibilities of obtaining astounding novel results by means of using modern fabrics. tive public, who begin to be readily appreciative of their merits.

Flat dwellers have awakened to the fact that it is easier to move into another flat all decorated and ready than to have redecorating done in the apartment occupied, and the whole population of city nomads delight in any form of decoration that can be "carried along." This aroused interest in well designed fabrics has taken many of the best artists out of the field of wallpaper designing into that of designing for fabric mills. Exquisite old patterns are being studied by experts and offered to an eagerly recep-

It is all on the principle of personal possession. The same pattern that is looked at with indifference when it is on the wall of our temporary home, owned by our landlord, is regarded with enthusiasm when seen in a couch cover, a screen, curtain, or cushion, owned by ourselves. But isn't this true of the largest percentage of all appreciation the world over? It is mostly a matter of pride of possession. A pride that is second only to the pride of creation.

Multi-colored and brilliant are the newest of fabrics—Futurist, Bulgarian, Poiret, and Martine. Used sparingly, they are splendid, but if, on the other hand, they are used lavishly, they are hideous. It is advisable, for example, in making inside curtains of "modern fabrics," to have the valance only of the figured stuff and the side curtains of some solid color, repeating a tone used among the figures, or vice versa. The short side curtains may be figured when the valance is plain tinted.

Tall wooden candlesticks have jumped into popularity. They are enameled to match furniture, and touched up by a narrow rim of color. A hole drilled through the stick makes a ready outlet for electric wiring and electric candle fitting. Some of them are topped with bell-shaped shades like the one indicated in the illustration. Others are left unshaded and remind one of altar candles. They go in pairs and are placed at either side of the dressing table.

The Confession I Wish I Had Not Made.

He Can't Lose.

Say, talk about confession, before I was married I told my wife that my father had lost a large fortune gambling, and ever since she throws it up to me. Every time I am in a quiet little game she says I will end up the same way, only I am minus the fortune. Hark ye, young men, who intend to enter wedded bliss, don't tell your ancestors' faults to your wife to be.

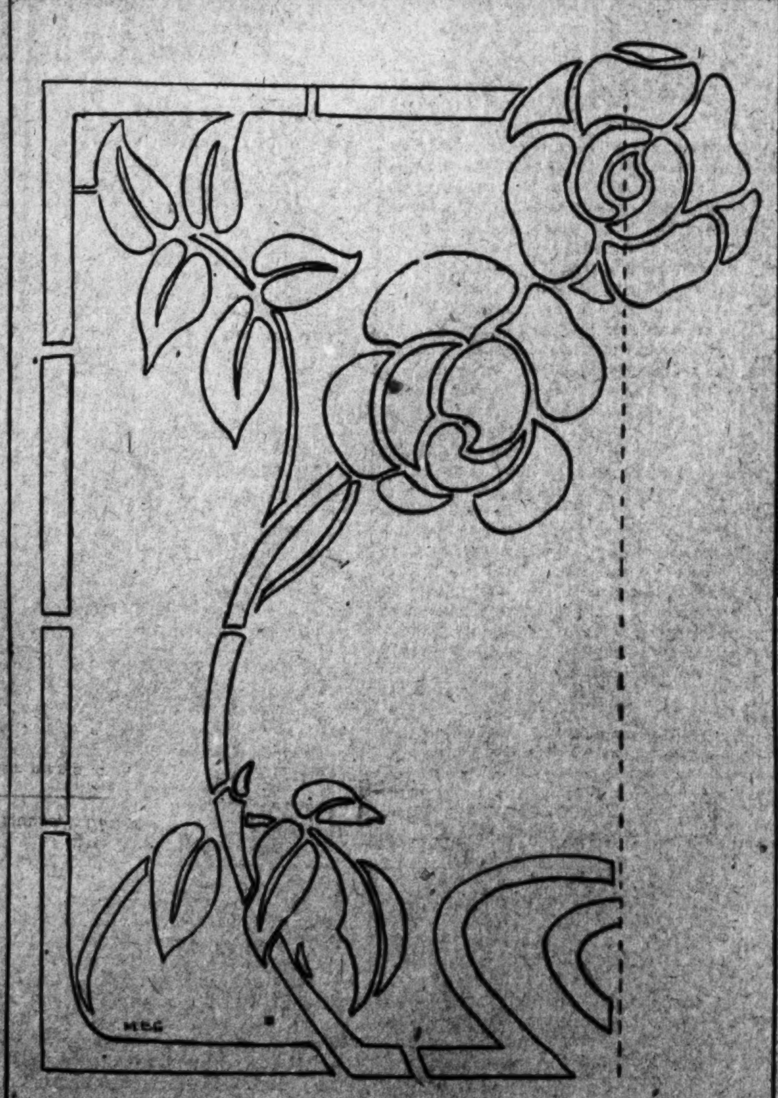
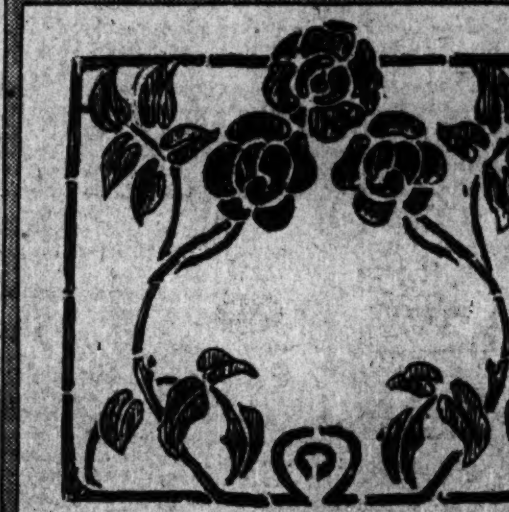
STENCIL DESIGN for PILLOW TOP





This design embroidered in rose and green on a cream or gray linen makes a charming cushion or pillow top for a rose room. Use three strands of the fine, soft thread for the embroidery, which is solid. The dotted line represents the middle of the design; repeat the remainder of the design to give the effect shown in the small sketch. This pillow is interesting because it is not exactly square and because the design shows an interesting arrangement of spots to secure the balance. The same design is almost as effective when stenciled with good dyes or with oil paints diluted with turpentine.

A Chocolate Bath.

The day after Easter I was working in a lunch room where they served ice cream. A gentleman friend of mine came in with a new light gray suit on. He ordered a chocolate milk with lots of chocolate. The floor had just been waxed, and I had on a pair of new shoes. I just got to his table when I slipped, upsetting it all over him, on his hat and new suit. Well, I paid for the cleaning.

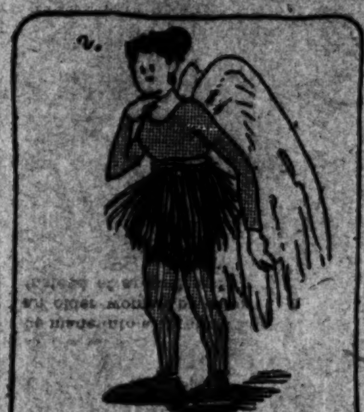
The Grasshopper's Caloshes.

I was in an operetta when 18 years old, and we had been rehearsing for almost two months. I was to represent a grasshopper. I was delayed in getting to the theater, and as it was snowing very badly I was forced to take a bus.

When I reached the theater everyone was on the stage, and I hurriedly threw my wrap to one side and rushed on. The curtain went up, and I stepped forth to sing my song, when a buzz and laughs came forth from the audience.



Can you blame them? For there I stood clad only in green tights, with my fairy-like grasshopper wings, but in my excitement I had forgotten to remove my overshoes.

Hard on Poor Richard.

I was downstairs making a call when a lady agent called. Not needing anything we did not give her an order. My friend's little boy, Richard, who is a very homely child with a large mouth and eyes far too big for his face, came in the room just as the agent was about to go. Seeing him she said: "O what a beautiful child; what a sweet little mouth."

After she was gone my friend said to me: "I've known that woman for years and she's the greatest one to tell things that ain't so."

"Yes," I replied. "Did you hear her talking about Richard?"

Chesterfield's Slight Mistake.

My husband always proved himself to be a manly fellow, well cultured in all the little niceties, and certainly in all the duties that go to make the gallant whom all women admire.

Shortly after our marriage, one evening, we were going somewhere on the street cars. When it was time to get off we walked toward the door with several others, among whom was a woman who stepped ahead of me and next to my husband in getting off. He alighted, reached out to assist her, thinking it was me, and started on and across the street with her. I saw at once what had happened, and although I had to follow behind, rather enjoyed the joke. He apologized in a self possessed and gentlemanly manner worthy of any Chesterfield and was civilly excused by the lady, who saw the joke.

Styles in Clothes.

Any question about styles in clothes, whether for babies, girls, boys, women, or men, will be gladly answered through the columns of "The Tribune" or by mail. Address Miss Louise James, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

MRS. M. K.: The skirt of the dress you mention is from your description still in good style. Three ruffles are popular this season. You can improve the waist by turning it back to front and reversing the sleeves. Then make the opening that formerly was the back fit over a V shaped vest which you can make out of your lace insertion. This will give you room as well as the stylish vest effect. Flouncing can be made into a dignified frock suitable for an older woman by using it up and down instead of around and by putting a box plait or a series of small plaits in the back and front panels. The more simply the waist is made this season the more stylish it will be.

ELSIE B. D.: The yellow pongee costume would be effective made with a skirt of narrow straight plaits. This would give the full skirt effect without accentuating your stoutness, as plaits on the straight give a long line. You could trim the waist with brown chiffon collar and cuffs, which you could make exquisite by embroidering with yellow silk. A narrow suede leather belt slightly above the waist line would give a good and stylish finish around the waist. If you are short waisted you can make a virtue of it this year, as it is the style.

Summer Is Here!

By Percy Hammond.

HOPE with a goodly prospect feeds the eye, for with the departure yesterday of the drama's glooms and pale sorrows the life theatrical is tinted with the rainbow gleams of "All Over Town" and "Maid in America."

Gone are the dun discomforts of "Moloch," which had no happy ending and which was not nice to war; vanished is "The Shadow," that pillow of disease and pain so deftly smoothed by the incomparable art of its actress. Even "The Songbird" has flown, bearing to other indefinite ports its somewhat shrill message of operatic (Aborn) mother love; and the only fly in the prevailing ointment is that "Dancing Around" goes, too, with Mr. Jolson and the half naked and altogether unashamed nymphs of his entourage.

It is the summer time of indolence and rose leaves. For the benefit of those who regard musical comedy with an eye osteopathic it may be said that in "Maid in America" knees will be displayed. On this desk there is the evidence of photographs that they will be numerously there, as dull, abraded, pragmatic, and knobular as ever, indicating the difficulties that beauty experiences with human locomotion. However, so far as is known, they are among the few joints that are conducive to morals; our first row youth is safe so long as knees are knees.

The proud but hurt exit of "Moloch" suggests the filing here of a personal grievance. Many sincere and literate correspondents have written to this department expressing an aversion to that play, with the opinion that the critic who said that he liked it was dishonest. I imagine that if I told one of these earnest persons that I am fond of Scotch whisky and abhor Bourbon; or that I prefer orchids to violets; or that Arnold Bennett delights me, while H. G. Wells does otherwise; that the landscapes of Innes interest me, though Corot's do not; that Schumann's music charms, while that of Brahms mystifies; that Valli Valli gives me pleasure and that Eva Tanguay gives me pain; that I place Homer above Hesiod and Spring Lake above Atlantic City—that if I avowed these preferences I might be pitied, though not censured. But let me go to a play like "Moloch" and say that I like it, an avalanche of accusation ensues—a calm, judicial, authoritative avalanche, overwhelming me as a corrupt critic.

It is pleasant to be able to reassure these complainants by a few words recording facts. A critic need not, even if he wishes to be, unfaithful in these days. Aside from the truth he is always too vain to chronicle an opinion adverse to that of his ideal reader, which is synonymous with his own—the ideal reader who looks over his shoulder as he writes. He has no temptation to be faithless. Managers nowadays (outside of New York City) do not value a critic's opinion—they know that it is merely the information he gives that is of commercial worth. Things which the reviewers call attention to as bad are the things which the playgoer often regards as good—and every one who goes to the theater is a dramatic critic possessed of his own knowledge of life, which is or ought to be, drama. If, for example, Mr. Ashton Stevens should say that "Moloch" is a greater sermon against war than "The Trojan Women," which, of course, it is, and that as he sat in the front row at Powers' his binoculars were bedewed with tears and that his breast heaved with emotion, his numerous readers would remain unconvinced and chill.

What they desire to know is the why and the wherefore of these manifestations. So he tells them that he was moved by certain uncomfortable elements in the play, that he thrilled with the miserable truth of it—that its agony and its cruelty were honestly presented—that the passions of war were pictured as ignoble; that it is an obscenity itself, that it is filth and degradation and horror and infidelity and futility. Mr. Stevens might expound with the utmost fervor upon the technical and ethical beauties of "Moloch," beseeching his readers to witness it, but when he discloses somewhere in his account that at the end there are no white arms and moonlight, those committed to the sweetmeats of the drama will disregard his admonition and remain away.

One of the many consolations of the theater critic comes each year with the visit of Miss Barrymore. No matter how honest one is in his estimation of her performance of whatever she plays, there is none to say him nay. Her visits are the festival of the reviewer. Then it is that he can indulge without objection or remorse in the rare recreation of enthusiasm. Her vehicle may be somber and her impersonation true; she may add to nature just enough of art in speech and action to upset all the favorite traditions of enjoyment in the theater. Mr. Collins, Mr. Hall, Mr. McQuigg, the Hattons, Amy Leslie, Mr. Stevens, and all the others may say that she is impeccant, but still no one else is angry and they go to see her. Miss Barrymore is the drama critics' Rock of Ages; the wind and the wave of lay opinion are with that of the experts, and so she is a safe recommendation. I trust that she may come back to Chicago in so good a play as "The Shadow" and one more popular.

Cut Rate Tickets' Effect on New York Show Business.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Separate the high lights of the eastern theatrical season drifting to its formal close this week, range them in the order of their importance, and you will discover they run something like this:

1. The cut rate ticket and its effect on business, particulary the business of threatened failures.

2. The presence and the activities of English actors and actresses in our more or less disturbed midst, and

3. The introduction of the midnight frolic as a feature of the tourist's expense account bohemia, and an aid to the native's indigestion, both mental and physical.

Otherwise it has been as much like other theatrical seasons as the untoward conditions would permit it to be. There have been, according to the statisticians, 174 new plays and revivals presented in New York since the middle of last August—the division being 113 new plays and 61 old friends brought back.

Of the "significant notes" struck that of the cut rate ticket is really the most serious and the most important both to managers and public. Theatrical entertainment has never before sold so cheaply in New York and there is a very considerable question as to whether the old tariffs can again be restored, at least so far as the quasi-success is concerned.

A few weeks ago this subject of cut rate tickets was taken up at a special meeting of theatrical managers with a view to having the practice stopped. So long as one-half the theaters were sending out slips entitling the bearers to a 50 per cent reduction in box office prices, it was argued, there could be no confidence in any theater. Consequently the business as a whole was materially affected.

Whereupon one smooth gentleman who has built up a tremendous business as a cut rate ticket broker sounded certain of the managers he knew would attend. Those who had lengthened the lives of a few failures by resorting to the cut rate were inclined to favor it, but there also was a strong sentiment against it. To overcome this opposition the broker promptly agreed to guaranteed the wavering managers a certain fixed sum per week for their attractions for the rest of the season, and when the meeting was held the proposition to fight the cut rate was found to be dead before it was openly suggested.

It is the boast of the influential managers that next year prices will go back to the $2 schedule and stay there: But will they? The manager who has saved one play by reducing the price of tickets will likely try the same experiment again, and it will take a stronger influence than any we have seen exerted heretofore to stop him.

One thing the half rate campaign has done, and that is to bring the balcony and gallery again to the attention of the crowd. It is into these sections the box office men have shunted most of those who have brought their half price slips to the theater, and as a result there has been a much healthier interest in the upstairs sections than at any time since the moving pictures became a serious opposition.

The presence of an unusual number of English actors and actresses was to be expected. Some little opposition to them developed in actor circles, but it was a foolish opposition and amounted to less than nothing. Even in war times there are quite as many American vaudeville acts in the London halls as there are legitimate players on this side, so that as a business and economic question the thing is quite evened. Many English actors have turned naturally to America during the troubled times at home, but they have asked nothing that they have not deserved on their merits as actors.

The experiences of Granville Barker and those of Phyllis Nielsen-Terry will no doubt cause them to remember this particular season the rest of their lives. Mr. Barker has been extremely fortunate.

Miss Terry, thanks to her abundant vitality, has come through her early failures beautifully and is really in a position, with her success in "Trilby," to laugh a bit at her American critics. It will be remembered that neither in "Twelfth Night" nor "The Adventures of Lady Ursula" was she given credit for knowing much about her chosen art. But when she played Trilby you would have thought she had learned to act over night, so complete was her success.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell had a good season with "Pygmalion," the Gayety girls, and the comedians who work with them were a success in "Tonight's the Night." the company Winthrop Ames brought over to play "A Pair of Silk Stockings" remained all winter at the Little theater, and Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion" was voted by at least two drama societies "the best play of the season." One of them incidentally followed with "Pygmalion" as a second choice, but spoiled it all by putting "Daddy Longlegs" third.

The midnight frolic has come to be something of an institution. Already there is talk of the police department "cleaning it up." There is, however, a vast difference in the legitimate midnight show, such as that with which Florence Ziegfeld started the craze on the roof of the New Amsterdam theater, and the cheaper imitations that have taken the place of cabaret entertainments in restaurants. The principal complaint to reach the police, I believe, is that in one of the current frolics there is a pajama chorus and that the young women engaged, after becoming tired with their exertions on the dancing floor, take seats with the patrons (and not infrequently, the report has it, on the patrons) at tables and in the boxes surrounding the balcony. This, being a reversion to the days of the mining camp soubrette and the percentage she collected for selling drinks, is declared to be inimical to the best interests of Broadway's refined reputation.

Something will probably happen to the "frolics" soon. Not only is there the pajama agitation to consider, but for some time legitimate managers of amusement have been complaining that if the restaurateurs want to go into the "show business" they should be made to pay the regular license fee. With the popular club sandwich already quoted at 75 cents after 10 in the evening, the mere diner is hoping for the best.

It has been a season of long runs, but just how much the cut rate tickets have helped probably no one will ever know. The one absolute exception has been "Chin Chin." Starting in October, there has been and there is still a steady capacity demand for this entertainment. It could easily run through the summer, but will probably quit in July and resume in August.

"On Trial" started in August and is still going; "Under Cover" is only a week and "It Pays to Advertise" but two weeks behind this record, and they, too, show no signs of quitting. The casts of all three, however, have been changed.

By various individuals of prominence in the theater world it has been found a season they would be very pleased to forget if that were possible. George Tyler will recall it as the season of the most wonderful production of his career, "The Garden of Paradise," and of his most unfortunate failure immediately thereafter; Joseph Brooks will have it tagged with the date of his defection from the Klaw & Erlanger forces and his reëntry into the field as an independent manager with two money making successes in "The New Henrietta" and "Trilby."

Leo Ditrichstein will remember it as the season in which he decided to cut the bonds that bound him to David Belasco and begin a new career as a star under the chaperonage of Cohan & Harris; George Cohan will mark it up in his personal reminiscences as the year in which he wrote what he considers his biggest play, "The Miracle Man," and his best revue in "Hello, Broadway!" Winthrop Ames already has it fixed in his mind as the year in which he produced a $10,000 prize play, "Children of Earth," and watched it die the death of a common failure. Henry Miller will remember it as the date "The Dragon's Claw" scratched him something awful, and we shall all recall it as the season in which the war play did its best to flourish and to entertain.

The Ravinia Season.

By Ronald Webster.

THE season at Ravinia park will be formally opened on the evening of Saturday, June 26, with the first of the summer's concerts by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, under the personal direction of Frederick Stock. The symphony orchestra's complete membership has been engaged for the entire ten weeks' season at Ravinia. In addition there will be eight weeks of opera by distinguished performers, and during the first two weeks of the season Joan Sawyer will interpret modern dances at the evening concerts. In many ways the plans for Ravinia, as announced by Louis Eckstein, president of the Ravinia company, promise more for the music lovers of Chicago and the north shore than ever before.

The engagement of the symphony orchestra for the entire season at Ravinia enables Mr. Stock to keep his organization intact through the year and affords the public an opportunity to hear not only the orchestra but such artists as Bruno Steindel, Harry Weisbach, Alexander Zukovsky, and the wood-wind and brass soloists of the orchestra even more frequently than it may during the winter season at Orchestra hall. As has been the custom, the Friday night concerts by the orchestra will be devoted to Wagner, and the other concerts to less exacting music. There probably will be rendered, in addition to the works of the composers whose art always has appealed to Mr. Stock for popular programs, some representation of the newer American composers.

The program of the orchestra will be augmented, beginning July 12, by singers from several grand opera companies, who will perform operas in English, as the tradition of Ravinia demands, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings, Monday evening being devoted to a popular concert and Friday evening to the Wagner program by the orchestra. Morgan Kingston, the tenor, who came so quickly into his American reputation with his appearance in New York a year ago last winter, will sing such rôles as Alfred in "Traviata," Rhadames in "Aida," and Rudolpho in "La Boheme." Louis Kreidler, a former baritone of the Metropolitan Opera in New York, who is so well remembered of Ravinia audiences, is under contract for the season. Bettina Freeman, a soprano, who has sung much in England, particularly as Elizabeth in "Tannhauser." as Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana," and in the title part of "Madame Butterfly," is another newcomer, so far as Ravinia is concerned. Beatrice La Palme, the French-Canadian soprano, who sang so many important rôles with the Century Opera company, is an old favorite at Ravinia, as are Florence Mulford, Alfred Kaufmann, Louis D'Angelo, Walter Wheatley, Phil Fein, and William Schuster. The management promises that the casts will be made up throughout of singers of reputation and achievement. The company has been chosen with a view to the production of "Valkyrie" as the feature of its eight weeks of repertory.

The grand opera performances will be directed by Josef Pasternack, for many seasons director of the Sunday evening operatic concerts at the Century Opera house, and Carlo Nicosia, director at Oscar Hammerstein's Philadelphia Opera house, and for four years with the Aborn company. Both Mr. Pasternack and Mr. Nicosia conducted at Ravinia park last season.

The tentative repertory for the season is as follows: "Martha," "Traviata," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Rigoletto," "Aida," "Mignon," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Tales of Hoffmann," "Carmen," "I Pagliacci," "Madame Butterfly," "Thaïs," "Faust," "Lohengrin," "La Tosca," "Louise," "Jewels of the Madonna," "La Boheme," "Marta of the Lowlands," "The Secret of Suzanne," "Manon Lescaut," "Romeo and Juliet."

While the orchestral and operatic program thus outlined makes manifest an attempt to do more and better things than in past seasons, it by no means represents all that has been done since last September by the directorate toward increasing the place that Ravinia has taken in the life of Chicago, nor all that is planned to make this unique place as popular as it is lovely. Joan Sawyer has been engaged to appear nightly during the first two weeks in modern dances. Miss Sawyer, assisted by George Harcourt, will appear just before the intermission in the orchestra's program. Miss Sawyer's reputation to which Mr. Hammond added considerably, rests almost as much on her originality in varying familiar dances and in devising gestures and steps of her own as in her skill in executing them. Her performances are to be made the occasion of presenting a number of new dances, which she has developed in preparation for next winter's theatrical season, but which will be seen in public for the first time this summer at Ravinia.

Playbills of the Week.

Grand Opera house—"Beverly's Balance," with Miss Margaret Anglin, whose vehicle now is a comedy by Paul Kester. She is, in this, a luckless singer, unable to get an engagement in New York. She volunteers to serve as the technical co-respondent in an impending divorce suit, the man in the case being quite innocent, but willing to favor his wife, who is insistent that they part. Miss Anglin, in this play, is called upon to be comic, and she is always interesting and worth while as a comedienne. First time this evening.

Garrick—"All Over Town," with Joseph Santley. This is a revue of his design and authorship, with songs by Harry B. Smith and tunes by Silvio Hein. It has had some weeks of performance in other cities, whose press has been laudatory of the entertainment. The company includes Miss Beatrice Allen, the dancer, and Roy Atwell. First time this evening.

Palace Music hall—"Maid in America," a revue from the New York Winter Garden, where it has been in performance for some weeks. It is of the general scheme of preceding entertainments from that theater, with a runaway for the choristers, a scenic "effect," etc. Miss Dazie, the dancer, heads the company, which includes Miss Rita Gould, Miss Florence Moore (of Montgomery and Moore), and Joe Jackson, the comic cyclist. With this entertainment the Palace will be for the first time used for the purpose in Mort H. Singer's mind when he promoted the handsome theater. First time Thursday evening.

Cort—"Peg o' My Heart," with Miss Peggy O'Neill. Still popular. Third week of return engagement.

Olympic—"Along Came Ruth," with James Bradbury and Miss Florence Shirley. Comic narrative of the rejuvenation of a New England town and its people by a bright city girl. Sixth popular week.

La Salle Opera house—Mixed program of musical comedy (by a resident company), specialties, and movies. Bill changes Monday afternoon.

VAUDEVILLE.

Majestic theater—Miss Evelyn Nesbitt in an arrangement of songs and dances is the feature of the bill.

McVicker's—Juliette Dika in songs is the headliner.

Colonial—Marie Russell in a black-faced novelty is the leading light, with "Vaudeville in Monkeyland" on Thursday as an added attraction.

Great Northern—Francesca Redding and company in "Honora" is a headliner and so is Loyal's "Pets," described as a wonderful collection of leaping dogs.

David W. Griffith Tells How He Entered "Movie" Business.

By Mae Tinee.

I TRIED three doors at the Illinois theater before I found one that would open.

"Goodness!" I said to myself. "Is it possible that after all I'm not going to get to see that man?" Whereupon the fourth door opened and I scatted through the lobby and up the marble steps that led to the office where I expected to find the man of the hour of moving pictures, Mr. David W. Griffith, waiting for me.

The others in the office vanished as though touched by a magic wand as Mr. Griffith shook hands with me. He's tall, clean shaven, blue eyed, and brown haired and has an English accent, though he was born in Kentucky.

"My dear young lady," Mr. Griffith said, "I have the same horrible aversion to publicity that characterizes Eva Tanguay, Charlie Chaplin, and others of our best known public characters. A shrinking violet I am—not! No! Consider me at your service. I suppose you would like me to tell you confidentially whether or not 'The Birth of a Nation' will be shown in Chicago. Give you some 'inside dope.' Is that the idea?"

"O, of course, I wouldn't mind knowing" I said, "but I'll leave it to the news writers to inveigle information along those lines. I am here for the sole purpose of merely chatting informally with a great man for the purpose of interesting greatly that prominent class of people known as motion picture fans."

"They don't want to know about me, do they?" Mr. Griffith inquired. "Where I was born and all that? It's the pictures they want to hear about, isn't it?"

"Yes—and the man behind the pictures. How he happened to 'go into' pictures, and all that."

"I am here to assure you," Mr. Griffith said, with twinkling eyes, "that as a child I never dreamed of such a career as has been mine. I aspired to be a lawyer—or a writer. My preference was writing and I did 'several little things'—a play, some verse, and a couple of stories. The verse and one story were printed in publications I blush to mention, and James K. Hackett took my play, which was called 'The Fool and the Girl,' and did such unutterable things to it—with me cursing, praying, and staking my last dollars on it in the background—that, shortly afterwards as I walked the byways of New York, penniless, seeking work, I made a solemn vow—never to write again. A little later I obtained a position in the scenario department of the Biograph company."

"Writing?"

"O, yes—but that was different."

"Did they let you direct pictures from the start?"

Mr. Griffith shook his head and examined with minutest care the cane he held across his knees.

"No," he said after a minute, "I had to beg before I was allowed to do that. Then, when I began to try to introduce improvements I almost lost my job. The camera man was king in those days. And the camera man wanted straight photography or none at all. He scoffed at the idea of 'fade-outs' and reverse lighting, and insisted that the camera must stand on a level, especially when taking scenes where crowds are seen in the distance. I used to just about have to prostrate myself at his feet to even get him to try anything new. In 'Judith of Bethulia' we took the crowd scenes from the top of a mountain, but it was a weary time before I could get that camera man to climb the mountain. He wanted to stay on the level, a proceeding which would have made the crowds look like rabbits. However—" He paused and looked at me questioningly. I nodded.

"It was a great picture—but, of course, not to be compared with 'The Birth of a Nation.'"

We were quiet for a moment. Then I asked: "What do you think constitutes the great appeal in 'The Birth of a Nation'?"

He said strongly: "Because it's the story of a lost cause. Napoleon is a great and popular figure in history—not because of his triumphs—but because of the island of Elba. And what in the life of Christ has influenced most people throughout the ages? His beautiful life? No. What then? His crucifixion—the cross."

"Did the idea of making the reconstruction period into a photoplay come to you suddenly?" I asked. He shook his head. "No, it had been bothering me for months. I knew such a picture could be a marvel if worked out rightly. Eight months it took me, Miss Tinee, to make it."

"I can believe it! How in the world did you direct those battle scenes? Surely no megaphone would be strong enough."

"No," he said, sitting forward interestedly, "we did it through a system of telephonic communication. I would pass the word to a general a certain distance away. He to the next one and so on. The camera was set on a platform 125 feet above the ground. Action of three miles was photographed."

The telephone jangled at his elbow and his secretary rushed in to answer it. Boston was calling. Somebody would speak to Mr. Griffith. We'd been talking for some time and I thought that he must be hungry. I knew I was. So I said goodby and gave Boston the floor.

Between you and me he is vurr', vurr' nice!

NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

MISS MARGARET ANGLIN as BEVERLY DINWIDDIE in "BEVERLY'S BALANCE"

IDEAS grow in importance as actors lose in interest. The institution called the "revue" furnishes an illustration. Mr. Ziegfeld long since paid $10,000 as a retainer to Joseph Urban to design the settings for the new "Follies." Now, according to Mr. Ziegfeld, a rival producer of revues has pilfered the Urban designs through the device of sending a minor painter of scenery, disguised as a night watchman, into the studio where Mr. Urban has been working.

The first performance of "Maid in America" at the Palace has been postponed to Thursday night.

Digby Bell has been singing his old part of Doctor Daly in De Wolf Hopper's New York City performances of "The Sorcerer." Bell was a notable player of parts of the kind when the Gilbert-Sullivan operettas were new. He and Hopper were for years associated in the famed McCaull Opera-Comique company, although Hopper was not in those days regarded as "safe" for the Gilbert-Sullivan works.

Forbes-Robertson will sail on the Philadelphia June 5 for home, following his company, which will return on the New York a week earlier. Percy Burton, the manager, says that Forbes-Robertson's receipts in America this year were in excess of $500,000.

Cyril Maude's profit from the performances of "Grumpy" last week in Toronto was donated to the Royal Canadian patriotic fund.

"The Only Girl," the musical play which Henry Blossom and Victor Herbert made from the comedy called "Our Wives," will be the first of next season's offerings in the Garrick. Miss Adele Rowland, who made a hit in the New York City run, will not be in it, but will be here at the same time as the chief actress in "It Pays to Advertise."

Harry B. Smith, ex-Chicagoan and the Lope de Vega of American librettists, obtained $300,000 the other day by the sale of his library. He didn't sell of necessity; he has taken down in royalties at least $1,000,000 since his first work, "The Begum," was produced in 1887 by McCaull.

Patrons of the Chicago variety theaters of the late '80s doubtless recall a performer billed as "Marinelli, the Human Snake." He was a contortionist and was quite as popular then as the Kernells, the Russell brothers, Hallen and Hart, Tony Pastor, McIntyre and Heath, and other variety theater idols of the day. This same Marinelli, now the American agent of numerous performers, recently submitted to the magnates of the variety theaters a list of 240 "acts" for the coming season. Among the persons he represents in any negotiations they may make for the two-a-day in the United States are Miss Mary Garden, Miss Lina Cavallieri, Miss Vesta Tilley, Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini, Mme. Rejane, Mascagni, Leoncavallo, Arthur Bourchier, Miss Irene Vanbrugh (Mrs. Bourchier), George P. Huntley (he was in Chicago in "Three Little Maids"), and George Graves, London's pet comedian in light opera.

Forbes-Robertson, in a Massachusetts town, was called upon for an entr'acte speech. He asked the audience to give support and encouragement to his successor in that theater, Robert Mantell. Local reporters of the occasion assert that Mantell's laughter was even heartier than Forbes-Robertson's.

The Howard brothers, George W. Monroe, Harry Fisher, and Boyle and Brazil, the dancers, are in "The Passing Show of 1915," the Shubert equivalent of the annual Ziegfeld "Follies."

Miss Phyllis Neilson-Terry, her New York City run in the revival of "Trilby" being ended, goes into the Canadian cities in Anthony Hope's comedy called "The Adventure of Lady Ursula."

Gareth Hughes, who has been playing the "foreign" lieutenant in "Moloch," is identified as one of the Welsh company which appeared a season or two ago at the Fine Arts. He is 20 years old.

Seymour Hicks in England is trying the experiment of giving two performances of George M. Cohan's "Broadway Jones" nightly. The scheme is said to be successful.

Despite the suggestion of Mr. Frohman's family that no flowers be sent to his funeral, the church where the services were held was full of them. Those which surrounded the casket were sent by Miss Anne Murdock, Miss Doris Keane, Miss Julia Sanderson, Miss Marie Doro, Miss Billie Burke, Miss Maude Adams, and Miss Ethel Barrymore.

Miss Laurette Taylor has added to her London vogue, from all accounts, by her acting in "Happiness," which, in its one-act form, she gave as an item in a recent benefit bill. This is the play which, in its three-act form, will be given by her when, on Dec. 27, she starts her long Chicago engagement at the Blackstone. Her associates in the London performances were Leon Quartermaine, who was here last winter in "My Lady's Dress," in the Blackstone; Miss Violet Kemble-Cooper, who was the actress of the caddish Ethel Chichester in most of the New York performances of "Peg o' My Heart;" and J. H. Barnes, whose merits as an actor were in a measure obscured to American audiences through the zeal of the press agent to have him referred to in print as "Handsome Jack." That was back in 1888-89, when he took Forbes-Robertson's place as principal actor in support of Miss Mary Anderson.

From the Chicago Little theater comes this note descriptive of the triumph of the organization in its present tour: "The Chicago Little Theater company, touring in the 'Trojan Women' of Euripides, are still creating a sensation wherever they appear. They are receiving the appreciation that they so richly deserve for their untiring efforts in the cause of peace and art. Even the most sophisticated theatergoers succumb to the classic spell this company succeeds in casting so artistically."

The Messrs. Shubert offer a prize of $1,000 for the best practical suggestion for a novel utilization of the huge tanks in their New York Hippodrome. Next season musical spectacle will replace moving pictures at the Hippodrome.

Miss Edna Ferber's stories about Emma MacChesney have been dramatized by George V. Hobart, and many actresses are seeking the opportunity to "create" the principal rôle.

Julian Mitchell has been restored to his job as stage director of "The Follies."

MUSIC AND THE MUSICIANS

Italy's entrance into the war has scarcely disturbed the taking of subscriptions at the office of the Chicago Opera association, and in fact has been discussed little among the officials. Gossip among musicians shows a different feeling. Judging from letters received from France, the opera singers there have developed a violent hatred for "deserters," as they call them. They are unsparing in their denunciation of Armand Crabbe, who was a Belgian and is now a man without a country.

Crabbe was according to last report in London bewailing the fact that the authorities would not transfer his money from Brussels to the Bank of England. Crabbe served his time with the army before the war and is an opponent from principle of militarism.

Muratore and some of the other French singers have shown a disposition to be patriotic. He is now in Paris recovering from typhoid, contracted during six weeks in the trenches. Marcoux has not been heard from. He is an Italian by birth, but a naturalized Frenchman.

Of the Italians little is thus far known. Ferrari-Fontana, the husband of Mme. Matzenauer of the Metropolitan and the creator of the chief rôle in "The Love of the Three Kings," has left his wife and volunteered with the army. He is under contract for a few performances with the Chicago company this winter, but probably he will make no attempt to return.

No word concerning the fate of Gatti-Casazza, the director of the Metropolitan, has arrived. He was trained as a civil engineer in the Italian army, and is on the reserve list. Mr. Gatti arrived in Italy just before the declaration of war.

From Titta Ruffo, the baritone, already engaged for the Chicago season, comes the information that he will not think of returning to Italy. His season at Havana over, it is understood that he will head directly for New York, canceling his engagement in Buenos Aires, since to get there he would be compelled to go first to Europe. Caruso will also return immediately to New York, it is said, and join his friend Scotti at the Knickerbocker.

Giovanni Zenatello, the tenor, also of the Chicago company, is now in America, and the bureau of information of the opera association believes that he will remain in this country.

The American Guild of Violinists will hold its fifth annual convention at the Hotel Sherman, June 3, 4, and 5. The guild includes in its membership many of the most prominent violinists of Chicago, among them being Messrs. Kortschak, Krauss, Sametini, Weissbach, Zukowsky, Fischel, Weidig, Listemann, Lehman, and others, as well as many out of town members. A large attendance at the convention is anticipated.

Three programs will be given and many novelties included, such as the Mendelsshon octet, the Svendsen quintet for strings, "Romance" for four solo violins by Helmesberger, two sonatas by Brune and Levy, and other numbers. There will be also an exhibition of instruments of famous players, and a competitive test of new and old violins will be held Saturday morning, June 5. The convention will be open to the public.

Bismarck Gardens has caught the "revue" infection. An elaborate entertainment, employing a dozen or more professionals, is being staged thrice nightly in the Domino room. There are singers and dancers and chorus girls. The names of the gay performers are Fred Sosman, Doris Reber, Rae Cole, Beattie and Ryan, Mlle. Webster, and Miss Billy Williams, Blanche Hall, Emma Rinker, Florence Gray, Clare Moldie, Amber Leigh, Marie Meyers, Dixie Baldwin. Frank Leport conducts the orchestra.

Musically the program at Midway gardens is living up to the standard set last year, when practically every branch of modern musical literature found presentation on the programs of Bendix and Erlinger. The latter's program for this week shows compositions by Handel, Strauss, Bizet, Thomas, Mendelssohn, Dvorak, Rubenstein, Smetana, Massenet, Donizetti, Schubert, Verdi, Weber, Poldini, Wagner, Herbert Flotow, Lachner, Tschaikowski, Meyerbeer, Schumann, Liszt, Gounod, Haydn, Moskowski, Von Suppe, Beethoven, etc. Decoration day's program is particularly enticing, though not indigestible. Miss Jane McArthur, soprano, is giving some Arditi waltzes.

Edyth Walker was in Berlin recently, but she will doubtless be able to leave the country if Mr. Campanini, who is now in Paris, succeeds in reaching agreement with her.

The symphony orchestra concluded its spring tour last night with its thirty-ninth program out of Chicago.

Dean Lutkin

Gentlemen: The fact that for twenty years the Mason & Hamlin Pianos have been used in our School of Music bears eloquent testimony of the high esteem in which these instruments are held and incidentally certifies to their stability and durability.

For many years I have had a Mason & Hamlin Parlor Grand in my own home. Its refinement, its delicacy, its beauty of tone, its mellow sonority and its matchless mechanism never cease to charm and satisfy me.

Yours sincerely,
Peter Christian Lutkin
Dean.

WAITING FOR SUNSHINE.

HARRY McRAE WEBSTER, general producing director for the United Photo Plays company, with Gerda Holmes, Wilmuth Merkyl, and seventy-five actors and dancing girls, spent most of last week in Highland Park waiting for the sun to shine. They had gone there to make one of the big exterior scenes for "The Victory of Virtue," the six reel feature by Penelope Knapp, which will be released the latter part of June. The play, in part, is allegorical, and requires many mythical Grecian settings outdoors. Some of these were made in Starved Rock and the rest in Highland Park.

Do actresses really love their work? Helen Holmes had this question put to her recently, and replied, "I believe that most of them do, and I know that the majority feel the same as I do when they have had a couple of days off. Honestly, I don't know what to do with myself. My friends are glad when I return to work again. Yes, I genuinely love my work, and would not do anything else if I could."

Those addicted to Keystone comedies undoubtedly will be overjoyed at the news that Raymond Hitchcock shortly will add his variety of humor to the potpourri.

Miss Billie Burke, the charming actress, has joined the New York Motion Picture corporation, it is announced, and is under contract to begin work shortly at the Kay-Bee studios in Los Angeles.

Little Billy Jacobs of the Mutual company has been sick for several weeks with pneumonia, which in its convalescent stage was capped by measles. He's "all better" now, though, and his hosts of friends may soon expect to see him back in pictures.

The Lasky company will soon produce "The Chorus Lady." Here's hoping they procure Rose Stahl for the screen Patricia!

Dorothy Donnelly, famous as "Madame X," in the play of that name, has been engaged by the Metro Pictures corporation to play in the picturization of Margaret Deland's "The Iron Woman."

When Paulina Bush returned to work at the Universal she soon found out that her marriage to Allan Dwan was not to be passed over lightly. Her dressing room door was a mass of white roses with two big lilies and a number of shoes hung up. When she and her husband opened the door a big bucket of rice emptied itself over them.

Blanche Sweet and Carlyle Blackwell are, we venture to express the opinion, some combination. They are soon to be seen together in the Lasky picturization of the novel by Alice and Edgerton Castle, "The Secret Orchard."

It is rumored that Otis Harlan will sign a contract with the Selig Polyscope company.

Louise Glaum is now Mrs. Harry Edwards, wife of the head comedy director of the L-Ko company.

Feature Films of the Week.

"A PHYLLIS OF THE SIERRAS"—World Film production, featuring Beatriz Michelena. This picturization of the Bret Harte novel gives this young woman much chance to display her versatility.

"GHOSTS"—Five reel Mutual picturization of Henrik Ibsen's greatest drama, featuring Henry B. Walthall, Mary Alden, Thomas Jefferson, and others.

"MAN AND HIS MASTER"—Two reel Biograph drama featuring Jack Durm[illegible] and Louise Vale. A factory owner with a heart well crusted over with selfishness is "shown."

"ON BITTER CREEK"—Three reel Lubin drama featuring Edgar Jones and Justina Huff. A feud caused by a mistake is happily adjusted.

"OUT OF BONDAGE"—Two reel Majestic featuring Dorothy Gish. Well permeated with the w. k. Gish charm.

"THE DARKENING TRAIL"—Four reel Thomas Ince feature in which you see William S. Hart and Enid Markey playing the principal rôles. A story of the Yukon in which, among others, you meet a cad, a man, and a girl.

"THE LAW OF NATURE"—Two reel United featuring the roving Edwin August.

"THE LONGER VOYAGE"—Essanay feature. A wife gives her life for her husband.

"THE SILENT COMMAND"—Four reel Universal featuring Robert Leonard and Ella Hall. A doctor with a pair of hypnotizing eyes is put to flight by an interested young lawyer.

"THE SWINGING DOORS—Two reel Universal featuring Murdock MacQuarrie. The dramatic story of a French immigrant through which runs the golden thread of his daughter's love story.

"THE FAILURE"—Four reel Reliance drama, featuring John Emerson. Story of a playwright and his play.

"THE PRETTY SISTER OF JOSE"—Famous Players picturization of Frances Hodgson Burnett's charming story, featuring Marguerite Clarke.

"THE MOTH AND THE FLAME"—Famous Players picturization of Clyde Fitch's great morality drama. All star cast.

From Left to Right:- MR. CASSIDY-(BENJAMIN CARPENTER) MRS. CASSIDY-(MRS. SAMUEL T. CHASE) MRS. FINK-(MRS. ARTHUR ALDIS), FINK, (CHARLES T. ATKINSON) ~

On Thursday evening the Playhouse the toy theater which has been built on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Aldis at Lake Forest for amateur dramatics, was opened for the summer season with two most interesting plays. Ninety-nine guests witnessed the performances and proved an enthusiastic audience, for all were friends of the actors, who included Mrs. Howard Shaw, Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson, Mrs. Arthur Aldis, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, John Root, Benjamin Carpenter, Charles Atkinson, and John Baggett. "The Village," a French play by Octave Feuillet, and O. Henry's "Harlem Tragedy" were the two plays given, and the scene above is from the latter play, which represents Mrs. Samuel T. Chase and Benjamin Carpenter as Mr. and Mrs. Cassidy, and Mrs. Arthur Aldis and Charles T. Atkinson as Mr. and Mrs. Fink. The Playhouse each year is an important feature of the summer enjoyment for the fashionable folk who gather at Lake Forest for the season.

Comment by Mme. X.

By Mme. X.

THE entrance of Italy into the European conflict directly affects those inner circles of Chicago society of which Count Giulio Bolognesi, the Italian consul, is a popular member. Nothing but his consular duties—which have now become even more important than before—keep him here. He has one brother already at the front with the first detachment of Italian troops sent to meet the Austrians. A second brother, who is staying with him, is preparing to go back to Italy to rejoin his regiment. His stepfather has volunteered. His mother is at the head of the Red Cross in Modena. His sister is a Red Cross nurse. He has twenty-one cousins all in active service in different regiments of the Italian army. One of his uncles has nine sons, eight of whom are already enlisted. Count Bolognesi—affectionately dubbed "Bolo" by his intimates—is a reservist in the artillery.

No wonder that he chafes under his civil duties in a foreign country when everything draws him back to his native land! But the Chicago Italian consulate—next to that of New York the most important Italian post of its kind in the country—needs an expert like Count Bolognesi more than ever before. He is experienced, able, and much in earnest. So profoundly does he feel the tremendously serious and important step that Italy is taking—a step inevitably fraught with such grave consequences to Italy—that, following the example of most of the foreign diplomats at Washington, he has decided not to go to any social functions, except small and informal ones.

Chicago friends of an ex-Chicagoan, William Carrington, will be interested to hear of his engagement to Miss Margaret Houston of New York. Although not in her "premiere jeunesse," Miss Houston is striking in appearance, with dark eyes and red brown hair and a charming manner. She has spent much time abroad cultivating her beautiful voice, and has been singing in concerts this last winter—more from the love of singing than from necessity, as she is financially independent.

Mr. Carrington's first wife, Mrs. Dora Allen Haines, was also musical and was one of the founders and promoters of the Amateur Musical club. She was a fine pianist and had a vivid, brilliant personality. She died six years ago. Mr. Carrington is a brother of Mrs. John Hannah, who used to be prominent in Chicago society, but who has lived in the east since her husband's death ten or fifteen years ago. Mr. Carrington has an apartment in New York and a lovely country place near Greenwich, Conn., where his flower gardens are the pride of the surrounding district.

The William G. Bealeses have just returned from a six weeks' sojourn in the east. They spent a month at White Sulphur Springs and the rest of the time in Washington and New York. The most interesting event of their outing was their trip with the president on the Mayflower when he reviewed the Atlantic squadron.

The Bealeses were the only Chicagoans in the president's party, except Miss Helen Bones, who formerly lived in Chicago. Miss Bones is a cousin of the late Mrs. Wilson and was her private secretary during the two years when she fulfilled the arduous duties of the mistress of the White House.

To see such a fleet of battleships, dreadnaughts, cruisers, and other war craft as our north Atlantic squadron steam in review, each ship's cannon thundering forth a presidential salute, is a sight never to be forgotten, especially at so momentous a time as today.

There is to be an important gathering here of the executive council of the National Woman's Suffrage association, and several local suffrage societies are preparing to welcome them. Head and front of these local associations which are so occupied is the Chicago Equal Suffrage association, whose energetic and efficient president, Mrs. James W. Morrison, is allowing no grass to grow under her feet in this matter (no future hay crop for the C. E. S. A.)

Besides providing accommodation in private houses and hotels for the visiting delegation, this association is going to give a dinner for the delegates on June 9 at the Hotel La Salle, which is to be a great social feature and rallying point. Miss Suzette Ryerson is chairman of the entertainment committee, with Mrs. Augustus Peabody, Miss Mary Waller, Miss Marie Rozet, and Miss Cornelia Conger to assist her.

Besides the officers of the organization the reception committee will consist of Mrs. William Hale Thompson, Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, president of the Fortnightly; Mrs. Harlan Ward Cooley, president of the Chicago Woman's club; Miss Mary McDowell, president of the Woman's City club; Mrs. Wilbur S. Trout, president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association; Mrs. C. W. Thompson, president of the Political Equality league; Mrs. Charlotte Rhodus, president of the Woman's party; Mrs. Willis McCrea, and Miss Sophonisba Breckenridge.

The C. E. S. A. hostesses of the occasion hope to get addresses from Gov. Dunne and Mayor Thompson (the new citizens have stronger claims on public officials than their sisters in other non-suffrage states). Dr. Anna Shaw, president of the national association, is sure to make a spirited speech, while Mrs. Raymond Brown of New York, Mrs. Frank M. Roessing of Pittsburgh, and Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, who are also to give brief talks, are among the best of American suffragist speakers. It is sure to be a noteworthy occasion.

One of the developments of the suffrage movement is the discovery that in the matter of oratory men "have nothing on women." Witty, brilliant, incisive speeches are the rule at most suffrage gatherings.

The president of the National Woman Suffrage association, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, is one of the striking figures of her day. Although she is 80 years old, she is as full of fire and energy as a woman fifty years younger. In the recent suffrage parade in Philadelphia on May 1, one of the greatest ever held, she marched alone in cap and gown at the head of the procession amid a clamorous bellow of enthusiasm from the spectators who packed the line of march and made themselves hoarse shouting "Shaw, Shaw, Dr. Shaw."

Chicago society is much interested in the marriage in New York next Thursday of Miss Katherine Winterbotham to George Buchanan, the writer and dramatist. Miss Winterbotham, who has a charming voice, has been studying singing in New York this winter and through her sister and brother-in-law, the Ernest Pooles, has been thrown much with a rather literary and artistic circle where she met Mr. Buchanan.

She will make her home in New York. Her cousin, Miss Genevieve Mott of Highland Park, is to be her maid of honor, while Mrs. Ralph Poole will be her matron of honor. She will be a distinct loss to Chicago's younger set.

Hiram Foster, who was right hand man to Roy McWilliams during the recent fête at Mrs. John Borden's residence, is starting in Chicago an undertaking to be called "The Twenty-five Tango club"; that is, a club composed of twenty-five couples to whom Mrs. Sheldon (a niece-in-law of Mrs. Theodore Sheldon) and Mr. Foster will show three or four entirely new tango steps as well as any other modern dances.

The club is to meet in a studio on the top floor of the Blackstone Wednesday evenings from 9 to 11 o'clock, after which there will be chafing dish suppers.

Many of those who took part in the Borden fête are interested in the scheme, for, prophecies to the contrary notwithstanding, the vogue for dancing continues to thrive and each week sees some new step or terpsichorean wrinkle. If you can't "twinkle," your fox trot is crude, imperfect, and archaic.

Mr. Foster has had much success in founding similar clubs in Paris and New York. In Paris he had the active cooperation of André de Fouquières, Elisha Dyer, and Mrs. Berry Wall. An astrologer, or soothsayer will also read the future for club members by crystal gazing.

Even more interesting to these amateur tangoists than to stare into a mysterious crystal ball would be to see themselves as others see them in a moving picture film. This is a suggestion thrown out free gratis for nothing to those getting up this club.

It is a poignant and stirring sensation to see yourself in a "movie." Generally it is also a bitter disappointment, but it is a fascinating disappointment. You have the feeling that your soul has temporarily forsaken your body, which, untenanted, is going through strange antics. It is usually a wholesome and humbling experience. None of us has any real idea how he or she sits, stands, or moves. Snap shots are slightly enlightening, but not such a complete revelation as a moving picture machine.

A social feature of the week was the opening of the Lake Forest dramatic season at the Aldis playhouse on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, when two playlets were given by members of the troupe of Lake Forest players.

The first one was "The Village," translated from the French of Octave Feuillet by Mrs. Arthur Aldis and a dramatization, also by Mrs. Aldis, of a short story of O. Henry's "A Harlem Tragedy."

Those who took part in the double bill were Mesdames Samuel T. Chase, Ray Atherton, Arthur Aldis, and Charles T. Atkinson, Messrs. Charles T. Atkinson, Benjamin Carpenter, John Root, and James E. Baggott.

The Lake Forest Players are an ambitious, capable group of amateurs, but they are not so numerous nor so imposing an organization as the St. Louis Dramatic club. This is an interesting and enthusiastic enterprise. It has a large membership—250 active and 150 associate members. It gives two or three plays a year in a regular theater. It has a professional coach and the performances are extraordinarily good. There is usually a ball given at the end of the plays, either in the theater or at the St. Louis club.

There is nothing in St. Louis quite so smart and chic as its dramatic club. It is this gay city's greatest social asset. Every one wants to belong to it and to take part in the plays.

Have Color in Your Cheeks

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

If you want a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results.

News of the Chicago Women's Clubs

By Inez Travers.

June 6 to 9 inclusive will be the dates of the most important event of the season for suffrage in Chicago. The national board of the National American Woman's Suffrage association will call a conference of the members of the executive council, including the state congressional chairmen.

The conference will be in the interest mainly of the future campaign for national legislation. The association is striving to promote unification of effort not only because it believes that suffrage depends mainly upon activity within the states but because it is by coöperation between states that the national work is maintained. The value of this coöperation between the states, the board believes, was demonstrated strikingly in the result of the vote in congress last January, and therefore calls for persistent effort in the future to maintain success.

To this conference are invited all state presidents and other members of the executive council of the national association, all state congressional chairmen, and any other member of the association who may be selected by the state officers. The presidents of all the local suffrage associations and most of the women's clubs also are requested to be present.

The national board of directors is composed of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Mrs. Stanley McCormick, Mrs. Desha Breckinridge, Miss Katharine Bement Davis, Mrs. Richard Y. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Orton H. Clark, Mrs. Henry Wade Rogers, Mrs. Walter McNab Miller, and Mrs. Medill McCormick.

News of the Religious World

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

BISHOP THEODORE S. HENDERSON of Chattanooga, Tenn., is inaugurating this month the Methodist forward movement, which is to continue for a year, or until the beginning of the next general conference of the church, in May, 1916.

He is coming to Chicago in July, and will outline his plans at the Desplaines camp meeting, where he will be the principal speaker from July 7 to 10.

Bishop Henderson is president of the general conference commission on evangelism. Before his election to the episcopacy he became noted in his denomination as an evangelist and won conspicuous success especially in appealing to students in the colleges.

The aim of the Methodist forward movement is to secure during the year 250,000 new members for the Methodist Episcopal church, 500,000 members of the time legion, composed of persons who will agree to devote time in seeking to win others to a Christian life, and 1,000 young people who will volunteer for some form of special Christian service as a life task.

The pledge taken by those joining the time legion is not a general promise to devote some period of time to Christian work, but is a promise recorded by the signing of a card to devote at least two hours each month under the direction of the pastor to inviting persons who are not Christians to become such. The pastor will furnish the names of the persons to be visited.

Bishop Henderson bases his expectation of a gain of 250,000 new members in one year on the unusually large gains made in the denomination during the last two years without any special evangelistic program, and especially as compared with the smaller gains of previous years. The gain in the membership of the Methodist Episcopal church in 1913 was 155,115, and in 1914 was 167,376. The gain in 1912 was 64,190, and in 1911 was 32,116.

In order to secure this total result of 250,000 it will be necessary to enroll on the average, Bishop Henderson says he has learned by repeated experiments in cities large and small, 13 per cent of the church membership in the time legion.

An outline of work for the entire year has been prepared. Last Sunday, which was Pentecost Sunday, was the first of the special rallying days for evangelistic purposes. The next special day will be two weeks from today, known as children's day. In the fall there will be win-my-chum week, Nov. 7 to 14; go to prayer meeting week, Nov. 15 to 19; watch night, Dec. 31; go to church Sunday, Jan. 2; week of prayer, Jan. 3 to 9; day of prayer for colleges, Feb. 10; life work Sunday, Feb. 13; the year's work culminating in Passion week and Easter Sunday.

Two weeks from tomorrow the Chicago Methodist ministers will hold their regular weekly meeting on the Desplaines camp ground. In addition to the ministers there will be a general attendance from the membership of the churches of Chicago and vicinity.

The speaker at the morning session will be Prof. Lynn Harold Hough of the Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston. In the afternoon the annual meeting of the camp meeting association will be held. Special trains will be run to accommodate those who desire to attend.

The further program of the camp meeting includes the following features:

Bishop William O. Shepard of Kansas City, Mo., who was for many years a pastor or district superintendent in Chicago, will preach Sunday morning, July 11.

Bishop William F. McDowell, the resident bishop in Chicago, will preach Sunday morning, July 19.

The Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell, pastor of St. James' church, will preach both Sunday afternoons.

The Rev. J. S. Ladd Thomas, pastor of the Austin church, will preach every evening, beginning July 11.

The Rev. Paul Rader, pastor of the Moody church, will conduct a Pentecostal service every afternoon at 8 o'clock, beginning July 12.

Woman's day will be Tuesday, July 13. Epworth league day will be Saturday, July 10. The speaker will be the Rev. J. C. Baker of Urbana, Ill.

The Rev. F. O. Beck, pastor of the Covenant church, Evanston, will have charge of the recreation hour at 4 o'clock for young people.

The music will be in charge of the Rev. Charles A. Gage, pastor of the Olivet church. The Rev. T. K. Gale, pastor at Wilmette, will have charge of the young people's meetings.

Ministers who will lead the 6 a. m. meeting are the Revs. G. C. Carswell, B. H. Fleming, C. J. Dickey, S. B. Edmondson, Roderick Murray, Erwine Thompson, E. C. Cattermole, W. J. Hyde, F. F. Farmiloe, A. E. Saunders, Alfred Peache, and B. G. Swaney.

Ministers who will speak at the Sunday school hour at 9 o'clock are the Revs. M. E. Cady, J. S. Dancey, F. O. Beck, and Harry C. Wilson.

Ministers who will speak at the Bible hour at 10:30 are the Revs. F. W. Barnum, L. F. W. Lesemann, John Thompson, C. B. Mitchell, J. A. Beebe, and J. L. Thompson.

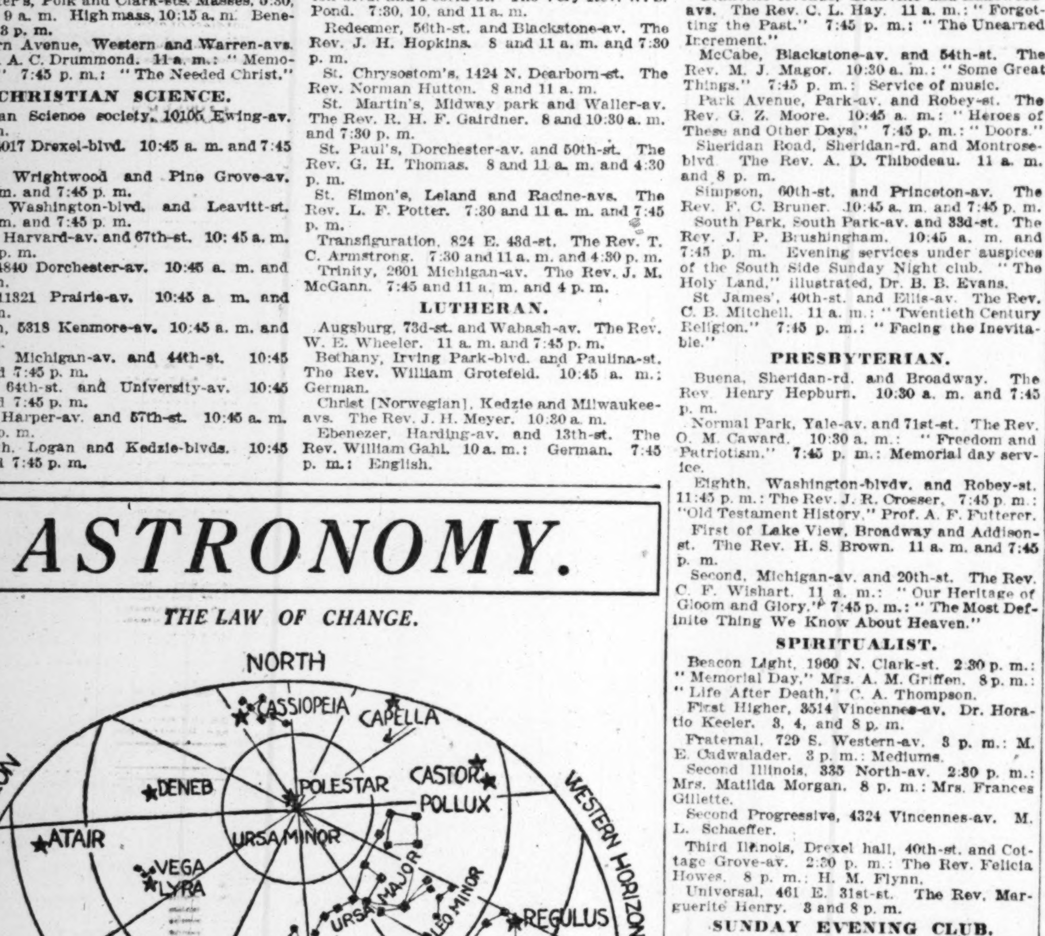
ASTRONOMY.

THE LAW OF CHANGE.



POSITION of THE STARS at 10 O'CLOCK TONIGHT SHOWING ATAIR IN THE EASTERN HEAVENS

CHANGE in circular form is the evident law of the universe. Change is insistent. Nothing may remain stationary in position or permanent in 'form.' From the midge that finds its way within the screens of a warm spring night to the great suns of the heavens all must go from simplicity to complexity and, we presume, from complexity to simplicity, thus closing the circuit and making change at once destructive and creative.

The simple elements of animal life develop the complexity of instinct and action, or of thought and action. They are involved, in the case of reasoning creatures, in an increasing multiplicity of incident and circumstance, tending gradually towards the simplicity of weariness and inaction—called old age. They are then released by death to return to the simplicity out of which the body originally was constituted.

The great sun Arcturus, which commands the evening sky, came from simplicity of elements and is evolving, through whatever unmeasured span of centuries, towards a cold complexity of elements. This ultimately may, if the circular theory be true, result in a destruction which will set at work all the creative impulses, and, reducing the complexity to a white heat of protohydrogen, start this bit of the universe on its way from simplicity towards complexity again.

The motion of celestial bodies, it is known in intimate cases and presumed in faraway cases, is in the closed circuit. The moon has its course about the earth. The earth has its course about the sun. Comets have their courses sweeping in and turning out from a center of gravitation. Great binary systems of suns show stars revolving about a common center of gravity.

The universe seemingly moves in circuits. In whatever direction celestial bodies move they move to make a return some time, however distant, to a relation previously had with other celestial bodies. Change, so far as it affects motion, seems undoubtedly to have this purpose of a reëstablishment of the condition away from which progress tends.

Is inorganic and organic change also in the form of a circuit? Does the substance of the universe, when tending towards destruction, have in it the germ of recreation? Is the law of change the law of permanence and immortality?

If the circuits of motion and substance, the course and law of change, whether in direction or material, be closed, if they start from a point to which they ultimately return, and if the process be one equally creative and destructive and creative again, the permanence of the universe is a fact which an astronomer would recognize as proved.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

by FANNY BUTCHER

SOLDIER-AUTHOR MAC GILL.

"THE RAT PIT" (Doran) is life at its starkest. I have never read a book that left me with a more definite feeling of the futility of things for those whose only bounty from life is the leaving of it. Patrick MacGill, the young man who tells this grim story, has lived enough of it to speak with a true voice. Perhaps because he knows the aches himself they seem less poignant to him. It is amazing how a story of such horror of physical conditions should be so free from sordidness. There is not one moment of anything but fineness and nobility in the writing of it.

What a man this Patrick MacGill must be! Somewhere in France he is serving as a private in the London Irish regiment. Between his boyhood in Donegal and the donning of his uniform lie years filled with work and success. He tells with bitterness of his boyish remembrance of his mother knitting socks for a rich yarn merchant. By working fourteen hours a day she was able to earn 1¼ pence. He was always hungry as a boy. When he was 11 he worked in the fields for 6 pence a day, beginning at 5 in the morning and working until 11 at night.

Even in those days, while he suffered hardship and hunger, he was filled with the passion for writing. When he had settled himself in his attic under a roof that leaked when it rained he used to write verses to the stars until his master caught him at it and threatened to discharge him. From Ireland he went to Scotland, where he traveled from farm to farm with a potato digging gang, sleeping in byres and pigsties. Finally he got work as a navvy on the Caledonian railway.

It was while he was a navvy that he wrote his first story. It was written on a greasy piece of paper. "I intended," he says, "to make a fair copy of the tale afterward, but not having the requisite pence for ink and postage stamps I put the story by and promptly forgot it. Five years later I came across it again when examining some old papers, rectified a few grammatical errors, typed the story, and sent it to the Pall Mall Gazette, where it was immediately published."

The publication of the story encouraged him. He began to study English, although his fellow navvies chaffed him about ending his days in a madhouse. After successes as a poet and a story teller he left railroad work to become a Fleet street reporter, and ultimately he wrote "Children of the Dead End," which ran into three editions of 10,000 copies in fifteen days.

Mary Boberts Rinehart was thrown from her horse last week while riding near her home in Sewickly Heights, just out of Pittsburgh. The injury was serious, but not fatal. It does seem a little ironical that accident should overtake her in the quietness of home after she made that hazardous trip to the battle lines of the great war without any hint of accident.

The father of Greenland literature is one Mathias Storch by name. He is a clergyman, the son of a seal hunter in the far north, and his book records his boyhood experiences. As it is in the Eskimo language, no first hand information can be given about it except that the title, "Singnagtugag," means "The Dream." It is said that the book concludes with a "dream of self-governed Greenland 200 years hence." Perhaps now that some one has taken the plunge the literary pond will prove attractive to others of Greenland's icy mountainites.

"The Crayon Clue" (Mitchell-Kennerley), from the pen of Minnie J. Reynolds, is a novel based on board of education graft and scandal. It is said that many people in various cities will recognize characters and incidents in the book. I have a constitutional aversion to "recognizing" men and women in stories, but perhaps you like to.

As succinct a word as has been said of Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology" (Macmillan) is this from the friendly pen of William Marion Reedy, in whose Reedy's Mirror parts of the anthology first saw print. "It is life seen from the clear far height of death." If you haven't read the anthology you still have a literary sensation to feel.

Gilbert Cannon, whose "Young Earnest" (Appleton) won a high place for its author, is serving as a policeman in London. When off duty he works on the new novel which he has promised his publishers for fall. Wouldn't it be an experience to find a literary star shining behind the glistening nickel on a State street bluecoat's breast?

"The good news has come from Beaconsfield that Gilbert Chesterton is able to leave his room and hopes shortly to resume his literary work," writes a London correspondent. He further says that it is significant that Chesterton's latest book, "Poems," is published by the leading Catholic publishers in London. For a long time it was rumored in literary circles that G. K. C. had become a Catholic. It would seem that this was a confirmation of the rumor, although there has never been either a definite avowal or denial of the rumor by him.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

by Mme. Y.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—A social register for dogs is just out, giving the family connections, initials, clubs, and social as well as intellectual attainments of every canine that has any standing worth the name on Manhattan. Mrs. James Speyer is the social autocrat—the Ward McAllister, so to speak—who has determined this animal four hundred.

As with humans, it costs one dollar, as well as a guaranteed five year subscription to the annual publication, to get your dog recorded among the blue blooded, with telephone number and country residences in parentheses; but it does not follow that every dog possessing one dollar can get in. Indeed, a dog may be subject to the income tax levy and yet be turned down for eligibility in this book of the well-to-do. Only the highest connections in the way of a master or a mistress can get one in here.

As with humans, the occupation, as well as the ladder for social ascending, is charity. Every dog of the socially elect has a little bank with a slit in the top of it, called the mite box. Into it he drops his spare pennies and these pennies go to sustain a home for the waifs of his kind. The boxes were opened the other day at a dog party given by Mrs. Speyer at her lovely place on upper Fifth avenue and several hundreds of dollars were turned out of the little private banks.

Dog society, like ours, recognizes art and permits the pets of artists to mingle even with those of the rich and great. Mary Garden's little dog, Rab, is an active member. He turned over $133 as his savings. He said that it represented some little self-denials, as every penny represented money with which he might have bought bones and other delicacies without the knowledge of his mistress.

The four little dogs of Mrs. John Jacob Astor are not such self-denying little beasts. They saved only $2 each, and doubtless spent all of the remainder of their allowances on their own selfish pleasures. Mrs. August Belmont's little dog contributed $35, and Miss Anne Morgan's handsome Russian wolfhound with much dignity handed over $20, as being all that he could spare, or perhaps all that he deemed appropriate. It is vulgar, you know, to make too ostentatious a display even in giving, especially when you are perfectly aware that your act will be recorded in the public prints.

One whose influence prevails even after he is gone is the silky haired, small, and impulsive dog of Mrs. Edward Breitung. He is dead, but his little mite box sits on her lace trimmed dressing table, and into it slip many pennies in memoriam of the classy little beast who breathed his last just one year ago amid the luxurious surroundings of a private dog hospital. In his memory some $8 was turned over to this most fashionable of all the dog charities. There is a cat auxiliary board to this hospital, and numbers of our best known families of them contributed handsomely, but not so lavishly as the dogs.

The TRIBUNES WEEKLY ALMANACK

MAY–JUNE

In Tune with June.

WHEN the honeysuckle nods in a soft west wind, when the catbird in the wild grapes in melodious mimicry makes clowning an art, when phlox and wild geraniums spot the woods, when May apple blossoms are waxen white, when the viburnum is in flower, when garden sass is coming and young green corn has raised its head, when the sun makes loafing days and there is a bench at the edge of the shade, what, then, is man that he should work?

He is a creature ordained to spread himself and be at ease; occasionally, at least, to recognize the vegetable aspect of his being and to forget that he has nerves demanding that he be a creature of action; to forget that he must be going somewhere, whether or not it be worth while reaching, or doing something whether or not it be worth while doing.

With no purpose and no thoughts, no ambitions and no wants he is ordained to sprawl in the light, in days when the chill remains only in the shade, and in days before the too potential sun has baked the outdoors.

On such days vegetable man may yield to the allurements of his primitive pleasure of stretching out a doless body where it may know passively the sensations of warmth, and where through the refinements of sense may come appreciation of the time of June, a time not to be rushed or taken aggressively, but one asking a surrender.

Otherwise the oven bird singing in the white oak is unnoticed, the perfumes carried on the wind are unsensed. The senses take fright at activity and will not register a rare day in June unless they be given the upper hand, full control of a lazy person.

Routes in King's Official Ohio Route Guide

Buckeye State Has Fine Roads for Tourists.

By L. M. Steffens.

THE eastern states have a greater percentage of good roads than the western states, for they are more densely populated and are better aided financially in the building of good roads. Ohio built tar bound macadam roads last year which cost several million dollars, and, according to the state highway commissioners' report, there will be many new roads constructed and old roads repaired this year. Practically all the roads in the northeastern part of Ohio—that is, the territory that borders Lake Erie—have been improved. This part of the state had been generally avoided by the tourist on account of the dirt roads, which were in poor condition in wet weather, but one can feel safe in traveling this part of the state now, for all the dirt roads are eliminated.

Nearly all the cities of any importance in Ohio have commercial clubs and good roads organizations, which spend much time in promoting marked trails and constructing good roads.

Ohio has three important highways that traverse the state east and west, the first being the central New York route, which is given below in the route from Chicago to New York City. The Lincoln highway crosses the state from Pittsburgh through Canton, Massillon, Wooster, Mansfield, Galion, Bucyrus, Upper Sandusky, and Lima. The National Old Trails route from Wheeling goes through Middletown, Zanesville, Columbus, Springfield, Dayton, Eaton, and Richmond. From Columbus to Pittsburgh the best route to take, avoiding the National Old Trails route, is by going through Granville, Newark, Hanover, Coshocton, New Comerstown, Gnadenhutten, Tuscarawas, Cadiz, Steubenville, and Pittsburgh.

In contemplating a trip from Chicago to New York City through the state of Ohio I recommend the following route: Leaving Chicago, go south to Hammond, Hobart, Valparaiso, Westville, La Porte, South Bend, Mishawaka, Goshen, Ligonier, Brimfield, Kendallville, Waterloo, Bryan [O.], Archbold, Wauseon, and Toledo, thence south to Woodville.

Avoiding Toledo one can go south from Archbold to Napoleon and then go east through Grand Rapids and Bowling Green to Woodville. From Woodville go through Fremont, Clyde, Bellevue, Norwalk, Oberlin, Elyria, and Cleveland.

Leaving Cleveland, follow the shore route along Lake Erie through Euclid, Willoughbly, Painesville, Madison, Ashtabula, Conneaut, and then Buffalo.

From Buffalo go through Clarence [N. Y.], Batavia, Caledonia, Avon, Canandaigua, Geneva, Auburn, Syracuse, Utica, Amsterdam, Schenectady, and Albany.

From Albany go south along the Hudson river, which is a picturesque drive, through Hudson, Rhinebeck, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Yonkers, and New York City.

Avoiding the road through Syracuse and Hudson for New York City one can go south from Avon through Morris, Dansville, Bath, Elmira, Binghamton, Lenox, Waverly, Scranton, Delaware Water Gap, Newark, Jersey City, and New York City. This route is over good roads and it offers many beautiful scenic features.

The Yellowstone trail, which extends from Puget sound to Plymouth rock, has expended $7,000,000 for the construction of the road from Minneapolis to Seattle, Wash. The telephone poles are marked with a yellow and black insignia at all cross roads. This route will be a popular trail to San Francisco because it invades the two most prominent national parks in the United States and also many historical places.

In a report just issued by the Mason laboratory of mechanical engineering, Sheffield scientific school, Yale university, covering forty of the leading makes of cars which the school has put through exhaustive scientific tests for motor car efficiency as well as for economy of operation, the Maxwell stood out first and foremost in actual results obtained under their close observation.

Among other things embodied in this report on the Maxwell are the horse power developed at certain speeds and the pulling strength of the car, determined by special draw bar tests at various speeds, but the most striking figures obtained by the Yale engineers were those bearing on the gasoline consumption of the Maxwell at various speeds and under different conditions. This report indicates and proves the Maxwell's perfect carbureter action over the whole range of speed and load. "The mileage record," the letter, signed by Prof. E. H. Lockwood, goes on to state, "is better than that of any one of the forty automobiles tested in our laboratory to date." The fuel miles per gallon brought out by the test at a speed of ten to twenty miles per hour, exceed thirty-three miles per gallon; and at thirty miles per hour, the fuel average was over twenty-three miles per gallon."

"We would indeed be grateful to you for your choice of road from Oregon, Ill., to Grand Rapids, Mich., irrespective of route but considering best road.

"P. H. JACK, Oregon, Ill."

Go south from Oregon through Grand Detour to Dixon, thence go east through Nachusa, Ashton, Steward Junction, Rochelle, Creston, Malta, De Kalb, Cortland, Geneva, Chicago, Hammond, Ind., Hobart, Chesterton, Laporte, Rolling Prairie, Niles, Mich., Pokagon, Dowagiac, Decatur, Paw Paw, Kalamazoo, Plainwell, Bradley, Wayland, Corinth, and Grand Rapids.

"Will you please publish in next Sunday's TRIBUNE the best route from Desplaines, Ill., to Mattoon, Ill.; also what kind of roads I may expect?

"C. S., Desplaines, Ill."

From Desplaines go through Chicago, Chicago Heights, Steger, Crete, Momence, Kankakee, Clifton, Loda, Champaign, Savoy, Tuscola, and Mattoon. The roads are gravel and dirt. The distance is 210 miles.

For Motorist and Motorcyclist

By High

Inquiries concerning motorists, motorcyclists, etc., will be answered. Address letters to "High Speed," care of The Chicago Sunday Tribune.

"Please advise the best route from Jacksonville, Ill., to Chicago.

"D. P., Roodhouse, Ill."

Go east from Jacksonville to Springfield, thence north through Riverton, Lincoln, McLean, Bloomington, Lexington, Pontiac, Dwight, Morris, Minooka, Joliet, and Chicago. The distance is 258.6 miles over dirt roads to Dwight, and from then on the roads are gravel.

"I would be grateful if you would kindly tell me the best route by automobile from Chicago to Freeport, Ill.

"L. B. CORBETT, Chicago."

From Chicago go west through Addison, Elgin, Harmony, Coral, Marengo, Belvidere, Rockford, and Freeport. This is a good gravel road and the distance is 113.5 miles.

"Kindly print, as soon as possible, the best route for an automobile to take from Chicago to Muskegon, Mich.

"A. ZOEPHEL, Richmond, Ill."

Leaving Chicago go south through Hammond, Hobart, Chesterton, Michigan City, New Buffalo, Sawyer, Stevensville, St. Joseph, Benton Harbor, Coloma, South Haven, Glenn, Saugatuck, Holland, Grand Haven, Ferrysburg, and Muskegon.

"Please publish the best route from Chicago to Omaha, Neb., and the distance of this trip. H. M. S., Chicago."

Leaving Chicago for Omaha, go west through Naperville, Aurora, Somonauk, Earville, Mendota, Princeton, Sheffield, Atkinson, Davenport, Iowa City, Marengo, Grinnell, Newton, Colfax, Des Moines, Van Meter, Earlham, Menlo, Adair, Atlantic, and Omaha. The distance is 507.8 miles.

"I would like to get a map of the shortest and best route to Muncie, Ind. Also number of miles by road from south side.

J. G., 326 East Fifty-sixth street."

The map was printed in THE TRIBUNE on March 28.

"What is the best route from Chicago to Pittsburgh, Pa.? How long will it take to make the trip by auto?"

"CHARLES B. REDINGER, Indiana Harbor, Ind."

The best route beyond a question is the Lincoln highway. Three to four days will be required for the trip.

"Please give me the best route from Murphysboro, Ill., to the Mammoth Cave, Ky. H. H. ROTH, Murphysboro, Ill."

The best route was published in THE TRIBUNE of March 28.

"I would like some information in regard to Knight motors. Have they proven by actual tests to be superior in all respects to the poppet valve? And, if so, why haven't more car makers adopted them? Any information you may be able to give will be greatly appreciated by

"C. L., Morris, Ill."

The Moline Automobile company of Moline, Ill., performed a remarkable test with a Knight motor at New York more than a year ago. That the Knight motor, however, is better in every respect than the poppet valve type I believe to be a mooted question. I advise you to correspond with factories building the different kinds of motors for literature and advice in answer to your query.

"FRED COON JR., Chicago."

THE TRIBUNE cannot reprint a map of the road to Starved Rock. Briefly the route via Joliet is as follows: Chicago, Summit, Joliet, Minooka, Morris, Ottawa, La Salle.

"Will you please give me the names of towns and cities through which the Lincoln highway passes in Indiana?

"J. G. B., Waukegan, Ill."

The chief towns touched by the Lincoln highway in Indiana are: New Haven, Fort Wayne, Churubusco, Merriam, Wolf Lake, Kimmell, Ligonier, Goshen, Elkhart, Mishawaka, South Bend, Laporte, and Valparaiso.

"Be good enough, please, to inform me what the mileage is from Diversey boulevard and Sheridan road to Fort Sheridan via following route: Diversey and Sheridan to Clarendon avenue, down Clarendon to Sheridan road, through Evanston, Wilmette, Winnetka, Glencoe, Ravinia, Highland Park, etc., to Fort Sheridan. I walk the distance in six and one-half hours. Do you consider it good time?

"J. A. M., Chicago."

About twenty-two miles. I should consider you made good time.

"My car is a six cylinder Lozier. The engine has developed a 'tap tap' when pulling. Can you suggest where to look for the trouble?

"R. W. P., St. Joseph, Mo."

I suggest you look over the connecting rods, flywheels, and valve tappets, which may be loose.

"I desire to melt some rubber tubing, that is, to put it into a semi-liquid form. I would like to know if you can tell me how to do this. I have tried ether, but that does not seem to affect it.

"F. A. T., Valparaiso, Ind."

Try benzine.

"Please give me the best route for Memorial day run to Delavan, Wis.

R. N. C., Chicago."

Go northwest from Chicago through Wheeling, McHenry, Richmond, Lake Geneva, and Delavan. The distance is about eighty-five miles.

Racers Will Warm Up Near Chicago for Derby.

By Reed L. Parker.

CARS entered in Chicago's 500 mile international speedway Derby will be seen on the two mile course at Desplaines river and Twelfth street on Wednesday. By that time Contractor Shanks will have finished his work on the track.

With the Indianapolis race a matter of history for another year, nearly all the entrants in the Hoosier contest will make preparations tomorrow for their getaway. Over three-fourths of them will come to Chicago to enter the contest for a possible $24,500 prize and a $1,000 trophy offered by the Rayfield Carburetor company.

Owing to the newness of the course, most of the drivers will take advantage of the three weeks' practice to become accustomed to the peculiarities, particularly the enormous width of the turns, which will measure from seventy to eighty feet. This width will permit cars to pass each other with safety, while the stretches have been wide enough to allow the pilot to open his machine at top speed.

Since drivers made as high as ninety-eight miles an hour in the elimination trials at Indianapolis, with the turns narrower than those at the Chicago course, local speedway officials are confident that the top notch mark in the test contest will be over the 100 mile mark. At least a half dozen cars are reported to be capable of producing that speed.

Accommodations for drivers at the course are the best in the country. Forty steel garages have been constructed, assuring safety and protection for each pilot's car. By June 10, the closing day for entries, Director of Contests F. E. Edwards feels certain that forty cars, with pilots, mechanicians, and pit men, will be on the scene.

Since the American Automobile association holds the number of qualifiers to twenty-seven, some thirteen or fourteen machines will have to be eliminated in the speed tests early in the week of the race. Since all the premier drivers of this country and Europe passed through the elimination events without a demerit, local speedway authorities feel certain that all the stars will be left in the race on June 19.

Since the speedway has been nearing completion swarms of automobilists have been journeying to the course daily. Last Sunday 1,100 cars visited the plant, which with their occupants and those that came by foot and rail brought the number of spectators up to 6,000.

The advance sale of reserved seats has been extremely heavy, nearly 10,000 having been sold.

Experts have been engaged to handle the information department. There will be no guesswork as to the leaders and time. Director Edwards has worked out a systematic arrangement, whereby the car number and time and lap will be posted as soon as the driver flashes by the judges' stand.

Because of the pains taken by the architects in laying out the course a spectator from any stand, either grand stand or bleacher, will be able to see every car in action. As for the safety and protection of the fans, more than the usual precautionary measures have been taken. Members of the Illinois national guard will patrol the course and a safety wall has been constructed along the stands.

Odds are being laid that all the European cars, regarded superior to the American makes in several respects, will qualify. The foreign machines are Peugeots, Sunbeams, Delage, and Buggatti.

Wood & Shadburne of the local King Motor company are ordering King eights by the trainload. So far this year they have sold seventy-five carloads of these cars. On April 15 they received a shipment of a full trainload of King eights, which was said to have been the largest single order for eight cylinder cars ever given. It was the first solid trainload of motor cars of any make shipped to Chicago this year. Every car in that shipment has been sold. Though the factory is said to be swamped with orders, the company is making prompt deliveries.

With the Indianapolis 500 mile race off the slate, local motorists are looking forward to the next event on the calendar—the 100 mile race to be run at Galesburg on Wednesday, June 9. The Galesburg meet is given considerable local color through the fact that prominent members of the Chicago Automobile club will act in official capacities. Among those who have been asked by John G. De Long, director of the contest, to serve as officials are George F. Ballou, chairman of the C. A. C. contest committee; F. E. Edwards, J. W. Maguire, J. E. Callender, L. A. Hillman, Harry A. Tarantous, Darwin S. Hatch, S. E. Hibben, E. A. Turner, R. O. Evans, M. J. Kavanaugh, J. E. Duffield, Charles Erbstein, O. B. Duncan, and Fred W. Jencks.

Fred J. Wagner is coming on from New York to act as starter. In their first attempt the Galesburg people made good by conducting the best dirt track race of 1014, and indications are that the second annual renewal of the 100 mile race will outdo the previous effort.

The entry blanks were issued a few days ago and five entries are reported to date. The list includes two Duesenbergs, to be driven by Tom Alley and Eddie O'Donnell; a Stutz, to be driven by Andy Burt; a Crown special, to be driven by Jack Doughty; and an Apperson special, to be driven by S. Ostweig. Several other entries are expected from drivers now quartered at Indianapolis, it being figured that many of the pilots will take in the Galesburg race on their way to Chicago for the opening of the local speedway on June 19.

Among those who competed at Galesburg last year and who are expected to send in their nominations this time are Ralph De Palma, Bob Burman, and Ralph Mulford. Mulford, who won at Galesburg last year in a spectacular finish after Bob Burman ran out of gasoline after leading for ninety-nine miles, has signified his intention of defending his honors. He will drive the same car he piloted in the 500 mile race.

[Special excursions Tuesdays, June 1st and 15th.]

THERE IS MANY A MAN sitting in a rented home today glum and blue from lack of employment. Wide miles of land are waiting in the Swigart Tract for such men to take hold and establish for themselves a home and competence.

A PLUMBER AND STEAMFITTER told me yesterday he was not deceived by pay of $6.00 a day because with lay-offs and strikes his earnings would not average $3.00 a day; and therefore he bought land in the Swigart Tract where he would have profitable and pleasant work the year round and a steady business of his own.

MANY A FARM RENTER is worried today because he has only a year's lease and must pay most of his profits to a landlord. Farming was never more profitable than now, but he is not working under conditions that give him the full benefit of his labor. To show how good the times are for farmers, the U. S. exported in March this year $61,545,000 worth of foodstuffs, as against $8,900,000 in March, 1914.

THE LANDS IN THE SWIGART TRACT are well located, with schools, towns, transportation, and good markets nearby and good roads. They are within one to five miles of twenty-five towns in Mason, Manistee, Lake, and Wexford counties, Michigan, and over 1,200 forty acre pieces to select from.

YOU CAN PICK OUT YOUR FARM with a creek or spring on it, or near a large stream or within easy access of some beautiful lake. You can get a choice 40 acre piece of good lying land for $400 to $1,000 by paying $10 to $50 down and $5 to $10 per month or annual terms on the same basis. After your contract is partly paid out you are insured for the balance and thus doubly secured in your investment.

BUYING A FARM resolves itself into self-questioning. Do you like to work in the open air? Do you like to grow things? Do you prefer green pastures and fields to city streets; the quiet and peacefulness of the country to the hurly-burly of the city; the certainty of earnings from the farm to the alluring but seldom maturing promise of the city? If you are looking for such a place, I have it, as well as the plan by which you can easily acquire it. It is a plan suited to each man and his conditions, and takes care of periods of sickness, nonemployment, and financial stress by extensions of time.

WE SUCCESSFULLY GROW clover, rye, vetch, wheat, oats, corn, millet, buckwheat, timothy, beans, cow-peas, and all vegetables, including big money crops of potatoes. Call at our offices and see our crop display and get a book of 72 pages describing our district. We will mail it if you will write for it, but call if you can and also get a large map and see 100 views continually being shown in our stereopticon room. Let us tell you about growing fruit on these lands located in the center of Michigan's Fruit Belt. Apples, peaches, pears, plums, cherries, grapes, and berries grow to perfection. Well developed orchards in our district earn annual profits of $200 and up per acre. If you are earnest in looking for a farm, and the requirements I mention here are what you want, then I ask you to come with me on the short trip to my Michigan headquarters, where I will show you the lands, take you to the farmers, and in every way aid you to make a thorough investigation.

MY NEXT TWO SPECIAL EXCURSIONS will be Tuesdays, June 1st and 15th, leaving my Chicago offices at 11:30 a. m. Round trip fare from Chicago to Wellston is only $8.30, which will be rebated on your purchase. Arrange to join me on one of these trips. Ample accommodations for both men and women. Automobiles and guides are furnished free. Offices remain open Monday evenings and Saturday afternoons, also all day Monday, the 31st.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

INVESTMENT — AN OPPORTUNITY IS open for a sales manager with a firm manufacturing a high priced automatic device. We have brought this device to the point of marketing and the ones already sold are giving complete satisfaction. Some progressive sales manager or individual familiar with the marketing of specialties can take hold of this as general manager and treasurer and we believe push the proposition to a tremendously successful conclusion. The man we take in must finance the selling problem and in return for taking the selling burden off our hands we will give him a very substantial interest and make him treasurer and manager, as our whole purpose of getting in a man is to relieve ourselves of the burden of further management. The investment required will be about $3,000 or $4,000, but the indications point to the ability of the right man to develop the proposition into a very substantial business of a size limited only by the possibilities in the man himself. We will gladly furnish full particulars to any man who we feel might take hold of a problem as big as this. For appointment address B S 388, Tribune.

The right man with $20,000 to $30,000 to invest can secure a substantial dividend paying interest on a liberal salary and become permanently identified with the company as officer and director. A REBUILT CADILLAC

It's a Safe Used Car to Buy

SPECIAL VALUES NOW.

A rebuilt Cadillac is superior to any new car at the same price. They are the truest values on the street. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been taken entirely apart, each part examined, and, if necessary replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory; the entire car repainted and refinished like new; all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstructed until it is good as new in every detail.

We offer Cadillacs exclusively, as we do not accept other makes in trade. Consequently we are as interested in the performances of these rebuilt cars as we are in new Cadillacs. In actual service values these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them, and we usually have a variety of body styles to select from. See them before you buy.

A REPRISAL

When Germany, aroused by the Russian devastation of East Prussia, announced a program of reprisal by destruction of Russian towns at a ratio of three to one, it was said that the little Russian city of Suwalki was the first to suffer.

Interesting contrast is presented in these pictures of the principal Orthodox church of Suwalki, a humble reproduction of the famous cathedral of Vasili the Beautified of Moscow. This church, a cathedral of the poor, where copper replaced gold, plaster stood for marble, and frescoes for mosaics, was the pride of the community.

The pictures showing the interior of the church in such perfect order and the exterior view were sent to the Chicago Tribune by the Oversea Press Bureau of the German government. But a private picture sales enterprise sent along another interior view telling something of a different story.

Suwalki's pride was its church. The shame of the city was that it was the home of Col. Miassayedeff, who twice betrayed the Tenth Russian army.

"The United States navy can take care of itself," recently declared William Mathew Lewis, secretary of the Chicago chapter of the Navy League of the United States.

"What we lack in engine speed is balanced by the fact that our men-of-war have the quickest firing control on earth. Our bluejackets are sure to be the 'quickest on the draw.'"

But the Navy league has adopted resolutions calling on President Wilson to call congress in extra session to authorize a bond issue of $500,000,000 for "adequate means of naval defense."

Experts agree that swift battle cruisers are now our navy's greatest need.

These pictures were taken when the battle squadron was assembled in the harbor of New York.

They weigh 150 pounds and are loaded with trotol-gelatin, an explosive akin to dynamite. They are controlled by electricity with detonation switches on shore. One would wreck a dreadnaught.

A MIGHTY good doctor says to me once: "When it comes to curin' folks, Nature is the real M. D. I'm only her assistant." That's the way I feel about curin' tobacco for VELVET.

Velvet Joe

IT'S hard to show Nature anything about curing tobacco. So we have adopted Nature's own way to make VELVET the smoothest smoking tobacco—slow, patient ageing.

Men may "process," but they can't put into tobacco any finer pipe qualities than those Kentucky's limestone soil so richly gives to the Burley de Luxe.

But these qualities can be improved. They are brought out in their fullness in the aged-in-the-wood mellowness of cool, slow-burning VELVET.

For two years the finest Burley leaf remains in sealed wooden casks, and then only is it ready to be made into VELVET.

Get your tin now—join the growing ranks of the army who have found VELVET tobacco a delight without a single drawback.
